200,000 Germans Attack in Waist Deep Flood; Mowed Down

COULD U. S. BE INVADED? YES, BUT WHAT A JOB!

Enemy Must Solve Huge Problems.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Maps on back page.)

Washington, D. C., June 2.—With the United States about to launch a 4½ billion dollar rearmament program as Hitler's blitzkrieg progresses in Europe, the question uppermost in American minds today is: "If war comes, where will the enemy strike?"

THE TRIBUNE today put this question to the most responsible army and navy officers and national defense experts. It was assumed that the invasion would be undertaken by a European power with a fully equipped force of 500,000 men.

To begin with, the experts agreed that if the United States maintains an adequate navy, establishes an adequate air force, and provides for a small but well trained and highly equipped army, this nation cannot be defeated by any invader.

How Defeat Could Come.

However, they said the United States could be defeated without military conquest of continental United States if it was without a navy capable of holding the sea against an enemy. In such an event the enemy could establish and maintain a blockade against American foreign commerce and set up air bases within striking distance of industrial areas.

The only possible blitzkrieg on the United States, the experts agreed, would come by way of Newfoundland. It would require, first the defeat of the American fleet so that it could not prevent the arrival of troop ships.

Because of weather conditions, the invader would have to plan to land troops at Newfoundland no earlier than June 1. By December winter would again block the route. The enemy would have six months in which to conquer America—a true blitzkrieg.

Must Control St. Lawrence.

The invading army, landing on Newfoundland, would have to cross Cabot Strait to Nova Scotia and then, gaining and holding control of the St. Lawrence, fight thru Montreal and Quebec and down into the Lake Champlain region.

The experts noted that history would repeat itself if the invaders did gain a foothold in Canada. After attacking Quebec and Montreal, land operations would be launched on the trail taken by Burgoyne during the revolution, and which ended in the disastrous British defeat at Saratoga. Nova Scotia would be used as a base for air attacks on the industrial coast.

The experts were unanimous in saying that a blitzkrieg by the northern route could not possibly be accomplished in the face of a well armed and organized American-Canadian force, or a force of long range bombing planes.

Possible Southern Route.

A gradual conquest of America could be attempted over a southern route. This move would involve the occupation of Pernambuco and Natal in eastern Brazil, after first establishing a base in Africa across the South Atlantic.

When new bases in Brazil were set up, the plan of the invader would embrace progressive movements up the Brazilian coast and occupation of the West Indies, culminating with the landing of troops on the southeastern seaboard of the United States.

By using the southern route, it was said, an enemy could expect to encounter less resistance because the coast is not nearly so populous as that of North America. The invader would be able to move far more leisurely, whereas in the north he would have to strike a rapid blow or be hacked to bits.

Fleet at Disadvantage.

In Brazil, an invader could spend six months in assembling his force and then move slowly northward, according to the experts. The United States fleet would encounter a disadvantage in operations against the Brazil base because it would find itself in the rôle of attacker far from home.

At Venezuela and Trinidad the invader could expect to find oil. Furthermore, if he secured a foothold in the Caribbean, he would be able

BRITAIN'S GREATEST ALLY

Strike Settled; Resume Work on 6 Warships

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kearny, N. J., June 3, Monday.—Striking workmen at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company, where construction of six new fighting ships for the United States navy had been halted during a three day walkout, late yesterday voted to return to work. Several thousand men returned to work at midnight. The others are expected to report for duty during the day.

John Green, national president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, said the men decided to end their strike "in order to avoid charges of obstructing the national defense program." The strikers are members of an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Yesterday's vote, at an uproarious meeting in a Jersey City dance hall, was to accept a compromise wage increase agreement which adds $550,000 to the company's annual pay roll. On Memorial day the workmen turned down this proposal and voted to strike. Since then, however, a storm of criticism has arisen in Washington. Legislation was proposed for the outlawing of strikes involving national defense projects.

Platform Opposes Defense.

Reports of "fifth column" activities brought federal bureau of investigation agents to the scene. The platform adopted at the communist party convention in New York City opposes rearmament. Communists occupy key positions in many C. I. O. unions and are especially strong in the maritime industry.

J. H. Love, industrial relations manager of the shipbuilding company, announced acceptance of the union's action. He said the company is willing to negotiate further on any disputed points.

Pay raises range from 2½ cents an hour for common laborers, who have been receiving 66½ cents an hour, to 4 cents per hour for skilled workers who have been getting $1 an hour.

Two Nearly Finished.

Work was to be resumed on the superstructures of the two new destroyers, nearing completion, in the wet basin. The keels of two light cruisers, costing 11 million dollars apiece, will be laid down shortly. Two other destroyers are on the drafting boards.

About 7,000 persons were affected by the strike. Of this number 6,700 are plant workmen, and the C. I. O. claims 6,200 of these as members.

Allan Haywood, national director of the C. I. O., spoke of a "reactionary wave in congress to bridle labor." He insisted labor favors the government's defense program.

Seek Official Backing.

A committee headed by the national president was selected to call on officials in Washington for aid in obtaining additional concessions on wages, vacations, a union shop, and other matters still in dispute.

At a press conference, in C. I. O. headquarters at Newark, Green was asked whom he will see first in Washington.

"The guy who is running for governor of New Jersey," he replied.

This was an unmistakable reference to Secretary of Navy Charles Edison, Democratic nominee for governor.

Green said the committee will see members of the council of national defense. One of the council is Edward R. Stettinius Jr., president of United States Steel corporation, of which Federal Shipbuilding is a subsidiary.

SENTRIES KILL TWO BRITONS WHO FAIL TO HEED CHALLENGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—Two men who failed to stop when challenged by sentries were shot dead in Britain this week-end.

Military guards fired into an auto near Stapleford, Essex, last night after the driver failed to heed flashlight signals to halt. The driver, Joseph Vaughan, 20 years old, was wounded and he died today. A man companion also was wounded.

John McDonald, 58 years old, was fatally shot by a sentry at an air force camp in northern England while he was riding on the rear seat of a motorcycle.

The ministry of information tonight warned all persons to approach airports, factories, and military camps by the main entrance to permit their identity to be checked. Otherwise, the ministry declared, they may be fired on.

65,000 CHILDREN TO LEAVE LARGE SWEDISH CITIES

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 2 (AP).—New measures to protect the Swedish population against air raids, including removal of 65,000 children from Stockholm and other large Swedish cities, were announced today. The children will be removed between June 10 and 15.

Charge Gang Rule Over 15 Unions in City

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Charges that gangsters have taken over 15 labor unions were made yesterday in State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney's office. He is investigating these charges that the unions with a Chicago membership of 25,000 men and women are paying tribute in dues and that their union activities are controled by the old Capone gang, now captained by Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti, Murray Humphreys, and Danny Stanton.

State's Attorney Courtney's prosecutors also are trying to find out what happened to George Sanders, business agent of the Chicago Waiters' Alliance. Sanders has been missing since April 5, 1939. His former associates have heard that he was shot to death and that his body was buried in quick-lime.

George McLane, business agent of the American Federation of Labor Bartenders' and Beverage Dispensers' union, local 728, who survived a Nitti blitzkrieg on labor unions, was one of those who charged yesterday that gangsters seized his union. Michael McLane, a brother, and William Salvatore, a brother-in-law, both members of the union—but of uncertain standing—were the others to talk.

Courtney Promises Help.

The McLanes and Salvatore, who have bodyguards since they appealed last week to the courts for the protection of their union standing as well as the protection of the $125,000 in the union's treasury, were accompanied by their attorney, A. C. Lewis.

Courtney promised to use the power of his office to drive gangsters out of unions. He provided police guards for the unionists and said he would do likewise for all who come to him with information on which he can proceed against gangsters.

George McLane, who was a business agent of the union before prohibition and who kept the union alive during the arid days when only a few soda fountain operators were members, asserted that the gangsters have gone into the legalized liquor business. First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley and Assistant Prosecutor William Crawford listened to McLane's charges.

Union Troubles Told.

"Our first trouble with the gang came when we tried to organize bartenders working in taverns or night clubs owned by the Nitti outfit," Mc-

HITLER STRIKES AT RAILROADS IN SOUTH FRANCE

Renews Raids Near Italian Border.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 2.—Preparatory to Italy's expected entrance into the war and a vast drive on Paris, German flyers today struck again at southeastern France.

Bombers succeeded in damaging the railroad lines in the Rhone valley between Lyons and Marseilles, the war communique said. This had a special significance in view of the reports circulating that Premier Mussolini will join the war within the week.

Messages coming from Rome indicated to observers here that the Italians expect to attack the French island of Corsica and southern France "the minute Hitler starts his drive on Paris and his new offensive in France."

Vital to Troop Movements.

The attempt to cripple the railroad between Lyons and Marseilles is expected to render more difficult the movements of French troops which might become necessary to counteract simultaneous German and Italian offensives.

Marseilles, France's busiest port and key of the lifeline to the colonies in Africa, is about 100 miles from the Italian border and about the same distance from Corsica. Of the first raid on Marseilles on Saturday, the German communique said "two great merchant ships in the harbor were set afire by bomb hits."

[At least 56 persons were killed and 100 wounded in a half dozen cities and towns in the path of the German air raiders. The French acknowledged that one merchantman, an English freighter loaded with cotton, was hit at Marseilles.]

Increase Nervousness.

The southeastern raids, the Germans believed, increased the nervousness in France, because it was said the French now can imagine German bombers flying right over the heart of France.

Germans assert the value of the Maginot line has become imaginary with German forces able to threaten its rear from Sedan southward.

A violent propaganda campaign against the French continued in the press and observers here believed that an offensive against Paris and France will start within the week. The propaganda campaign over the air waves also continued, attempting to undermine the French morale.

Dunkirk Attacked.

The grim battle for Dunkirk, where many British and French troops still are struggling to escape, goes on unabated.

D. N. B., the official news agency, asserted that the number of British and French soldiers drowned in the channel as the result of the sinking of transports "represents probably the strength of several divisions." [The allied divisions are estimated to comprise 15,000 to 18,000 men each.]

The agency asserted the British transport fleet at Dunkirk has been dispersed or destroyed.

On June 1, the high command communique claimed, Stuka [dive bomber], fighting, destroyer, and pursuit squadrons of the German air force sank four warships and 11 transports with a total of 54,000 tons. It was stated bomb hits damaged 14 warships, including two cruisers, two light cruisers, one antiaircraft cruiser, six destroyers, two torpedo boats, and one speedboat as well as merchantmen with a total of 160,000 tons.

Occupy More Towns.

Numerous small vessels were upset and "concentrations of troops on the shore of Dunkirk were attacked successfully with bombs," it was said.

Nieuport and the adjoining coast toward the northwest and Adinkerke, Belgium, and Ghyvelde, France, six miles from Dunkirk, were reported in German hands.

The German navy claimed that one of its speedboats sank a "heavily loaded transport of 4,000 tons by torpedoes." The air force also asserted it had destroyed 58 enemy planes, while only 16 of its own planes were "missing."

FOUR-FIFTHS OF BRITISH SAVED, EDEN ASSERTS

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—The first official estimate of withdrawals of the British expeditionary force from Dunkirk, France, was given tonight by Minister of War Anthony Eden in a radio broadcast. More than four-fifths of the B. E. F. and tens of thousands of French troops, he said, have been brought to this country. The B. E. F. originally numbered 175,000 and Eden's statement indicated 140,000 have been taken from the German trap in Flanders.

Anthony Eden.

The evacuations are reaching a climax and only a thin trickle of men passed thru British ports tonight.

300 Ships Aid in Rescue.

While a diminished rearguard battled German attacks behind floods and marshes at Dunkirk more than 100 allied warships and 200 transports were reported to be undertaking the desperate attempt to rescue the remainder of the B. E. F. and the French forces.

French military sources were quoted by British papers tonight as expressing the hope that another 100,000 allied troops would be evacuated within 48 hours.

British flyers continued to play a major rôle in the fighting around Dunkirk. Two air ministry communiques today credited the flying force with having bagged 113 Germans planes in less than 48 hours, and with numerous other daring exploits.

78 in Record Day.

Seventy-eight of the German craft were downed yesterday, establishing a new record for Britain's fighter planes. After the battle was resumed this morning, it was stated, 35 more German planes were shot down. The fight still was in progress when the statement was issued.

One communique stated:

"Huge formations of Nazi bombers, escorted by fighters, came out and attempted to sink the ships [troop ships]. They did not lack targets, for the sea was thick with craft of all kinds. But when they attempted to bomb, our fighters attacked and drove them off.

"Most of the bombs [German] fell into the sea. Many Junkers, Heinkels, Dorniers and Messerschmitts soon crashed into the sea after their bombs."

Three Down 5 in 13 Minutes.

Three American-built Hudson bombers, the air ministry said, attacked 40 German bombers and fighter planes attempting to bomb transports yesterday at Dunkirk. The three craft in 13 minutes shot down three Junker dive bombers, forced two down out of control, and drove off the 35 other planes without suffering even a bullet hole.

The air ministry also said the British airmen were pounding German communications and ammunition dumps.

Machine gun fire off the southeast coast of England, followed by heavy fire from antiaircraft guns, was heard late tonight. Two bombs were dropped on open country in Norfolk county, northeast of London, early today.

Eden Admits Heavy Loss.

Eden, in a dramatic account of the withdrawal operations, admitted that in "the battle of the ports" which has been raging for the past three weeks "Germany made great strategical gains, and the loss to us in equipment and material has been heavy."

With coöperation of the allied air forces and navies, he said, "We have been able to save more than four-fifths of the B. E. F. which the Germans claimed to have surrounded."

France Bans Private Use of Phones Near the Front

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 2.—To prevent telephones being used for the transmission of information "favorable to the enemy," all private telephone calls in northeastern France have been suspended. The military zone was extended to include 23 additional departments in central France and along the western coast.

BODIES OF DEAD SINK INTO SHELL CHURNED WATER

Allies Pounded by Heavy Guns.

PARIS, June 2 (AP).—Waves of German infantrymen wallowing waist deep in Dunkirk's protecting floodwaters launched a supreme effort today to wrest that channel port from the allies—their last foothold in Flanders—but latest reports said the Nazis were mowed down or beaten back.

French military circles estimated Germany had thrown 15 divisions—or around 200,000 men—into the assault on Dunkirk. Allied shelling, machine gun and rifle fire, and the strafing of low flying planes were blended into a defensive holocaust to meet the Nazi drive, altho the city was under German fire from field guns almost ringing the town.

The German guns were said to be pouring out a ceaseless bombardment to cover the infantry movements and to blast the British and French from their fiercely held point of embarkation from Flanders fields.

Plunge Into the Flood.

Merciless combat developed as the Nazi soldiers, no longer shielded by tanks, plunged into the flood.

Wave after wave of German troops strove to cross the water hazard, it was said, and each showed great gaps as the individual attacks ended. The survivors stumbled back to the high ground and the dead and wounded disappeared in the few feet of water.

Bursting shells made geysers in the water and churned it into a muddy and bloody froth.

The sea, let in around Dunkirk to form a great protecting moat like the water barrier of a medieval castle, almost encircled the city.

Beaches Prove Beneficial.

Beaches extending for several miles on either side of Dunkirk were helpful in the embarkation of allied troops, permitting a spreading out of the retiring forces.

More than 100 allied warships took part in the operations and more than 200 transport vessels ranging from large steamships to little more than launches came and went under intense fire and bombing, ferrying troops across the channel to England.

The nightly French communique, after lauding the "heroic tenacity" of the British and French troops, said that most of the allies who had succeeded in reaching Dunkirk had been embarked. Germany paid for her successes, the French said, with "immense loss of life and material."

British Hold Out at Calais.

Twenty-five miles down the coast from Dunkirk at Calais a little British garrison, cut off for a week and making a last stand in the thick walled 17th century citadel, was reported beating off German attacks virtually engulfing the channel port.

Outnumbered and provisioned by parachutes, the garrison signaled last night it was still holding out. The British had taken refuge in the citadel after being forced back thru Calais step by step in heavy fighting.

The citadel was built by Marshal Sebastian Le Prestre, marquis of Vauban, as part of the fortifications system started in northern France in 1678. Its thick walls have proved solid ramparts against German tanks, it is said, and its deep, turf covered galleries are safe shelters from bombs.

A "Strategical Pause."

Military circles called the present phase of operations outside Dunkirk—despite their ferocity—a "strategical pause" in the general progress of the war.

They were not sure, however, how long the pause might last. This phase is regarded as a pause merely because the direction of the next German offensive has not become apparent.

The Dunkirk drive, of course, was aimed at a complete domination of the Flanders battlefield. The allies clung to the city at least to keep the way open for the rest of the French rear guard, withdrawing from the inner plain.

There has been a suggestion, however, that the allies might try to hold Dunkirk indefinitely as a spearpoint in the channel flank of the Germans.

FRENCH SMASH GERMAN DRIVE TO CROSS SOMME

Halt Rubber Boat Raids at Two Points.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 2.—German bombers again attacked southeast France today from the industrial area around Lyons to Marseilles, great French seaport on the Mediterranean. The fighting in the north from the Somme to the Rhine diminished except in the Rethel region, where hostile artillery boomed away under a full tide of June sunshine.

Two German attacks on the Somme, made last night, were reported repulsed. During these forays the Germans, it was said, attempted to cross the Somme at Corbie and Peronne in inflated rubber boats.

Allied air activity continued, however, and reconnaissance flights were made over Treves and the Black Forest. Near Abbeville, French planes dropped 23 tons of explosives upon the Germans, the air force communique said.

[A British short wave broadcast picked up in New York last night said that the supreme allied war council met in Paris over the week-end. Representing Great Britain were Prime Minister Churchill, Clement Attlee, lord privy seal, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Greer Dill, new chief of the imperial staff, and other officers.]

Bomb Railway Lines.

In their raids upon southeast France, a continuation of attacks yesterday that cost at least 56 lives, the German bombers paid particular attention to railway lines and certain military objectives, the identity of which was veiled in the strict censorship prevailing. [The British Broadcasting corporation reported 40 casualties in a bombing of Lyons].

The Germans' air expedition yesterday cost them 12 bombers, the French high command said.

The French believe the Nazis are conducting the raids just as much for the political effect they might have upon Italy as for any physical damage they might accomplish. Just when Italy has about made up its mind on the advisability of entering the war, the French assert, the Germans, thru the raids, are attempting to show Premier Mussolini that they would be able to support the Italians in operations against France in the southeast.

Peace Offensive Seen.

Informed persons in Paris said it was certain that the Italians would make some move to cause a diversion in the Mediterranean next week. Where, how, and exactly when, is, of course, not clear. There also exists the possibility that Italy first will stage a peace offensive under a threat of war.

The French censorship allowed the publication of dispatches from Washington, D. C., saying that Premier Mussolini on Tuesday would issue an ultimatum that, unless peace could be established under certain conditions, he would go to war.

Italy, it was reported, is massing troops in the southern part of the peninsula to dispel appearance of Italian-German collusion. When and it Italy starts fighting, it was said, it will do so "da se" [by itself], as the Italians put it.

The report that Rumania had changed foreign ministers was considered bad news, inasmuch as it indicated a swing toward the pro-Nazi side of Rumanian politics. On the other hand, some persons were encouraged, believing the change meant a stiffening of the Rumanian attitude toward Russia. [Ion Gigurtu Saturday replaced Grigore Gafencu as Rumania's foreign minister. Gigurtu is considered a friend of Germany.]

Increase Allied Fleet Units.

New York, June 3, Monday (AP).—The British Broadcasting corporation, in a broadcast heard by NBC in New York, said today allied fleet units in the eastern Mediterranean "have been greatly increased during the last 14 days" despite the drive of the Germans to the English channel.

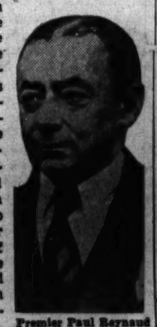
REYNAUD VOICES GRATITUDE FOR AID OF RED CROSS

Pledges France Will Help Refugees.

PARIS, June 2 (AP).—Premier Paul Reynaud, speaking to the United States today on "The Work of the Red Cross in the War," said France in these distressing times "is especially appreciative of the gestures of those who have remained her faithful friends and who have been in a position to prove their friendship." Of these friends, he said, the Red Cross has been among the foremost.



Premier Paul Reynaud

"I want to extend a greeting to the American Red Cross," the premier asserted. "Since the very first moments of the drama which has hurt and devastated so many homes, and has thrown out upon the roads so many victims, the American Red Cross has stood by.

France Ready to Help.

"Speaking in the name of Frenchmen, in the name of the Belgian and Dutch refugees, and of all the others, I express today to the American Red Cross, our deepest gratitude."

France, Reynaud declared, already is setting up its organization for assisting the Red Cross in the distribution of aid to refugees.

"Thus at the very time when brutal forces pursue its action, the American Red Cross and its French protégé are affirming the victorious power of righteous humanity," the premier concluded.

Reynaud Visits Somme Front.

Reynaud made a Sunday visit to the Somme front with Vice Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and Raoul Dautry, minister of armament.

A communique issued by the premier's office said: "The ministers congratulated the command for the energy and speed with which a defensive organization, remarkably adapted to the present phase of the war, has been achieved."

DECLARE CHUTE TROOPS SUFFERED SEVERE LOSSES

LONDON, June 2 (AP).—Authoritative sources, basing their estimates partly on the evidence of German prisoners, said today a majority of the German parachute troops dropped in Holland were killed. "Amazing examples," cited by these sources, included a reported case of 16 infantrymen in one plane of whom only one prisoner survived. In another, they said, of 10 men who tried to land, three were killed in the air and four were shot when they reached earth.

THE NINTH DUKE OF NORTHUMBERLAND IS KILLED IN BATTLE

LONDON, June 2 (AP).—The Duke of Northumberland, 27, the ninth to hold a dukedom created in 1766, was killed in action, it was announced today.

Duke of Northumberland.

The duke, known a year ago as the largest single owner of coal properties in England, created a stir when he temporarily quit his 200 room castle for a 20 room house nearby because of heavy taxes and declining royalties. At that time he drew an annual income of $345,000 from coal royalties.

Death duties on the estate inherited from his father, who died in 1930, were estimated at £1,000,000 [then approximately $5,000,000].

The duke died fighting in France in his father's old regiment, the Grenadier Guards. The duchess, who was staying in Surrey, was informed of her son's death in a telegram today. Soon afterward the duke's own flag was flying at half staff on the tower of Alnwick castle in Northumberland and the tenants knew the duke was dead. His brother, Lord Hugh Algernon Percy, 16, a second lieutenant in the Northumberland yeomanry, becomes the new duke.

MACHINE GUN IS TRIED OUT BY KING GEORGE

LONDON, June 2 (AP).—King George tried out a Bren machine gun today and put 60 bullets in or close to the bull's-eye at 200 yards.

"I had no idea the gun was so steady," he said.

The king spent two hours touring a gun factory that is operating seven days a week under war pressure. He saw glowing steel pounded into gun barrels by pneumatic hammers and viewed the first rifles brought back from Flanders for repair. They were rusty from sea water.

THIRD NAZI PLANE IN DAY SHOT DOWN BY SWISS FLYERS

Was Returning from Raid on Rhone Valley.

BERNE, June 2 (AP).—Swiss fighting planes shot down another German bomber today—the third in 24 hours.

The aerial violation of Swiss territory was coincident with massed German bombing raids from the Rhine airfields against the rich industrial region of the Rhone valley in France.

The first two Nazi planes were brought down yesterday afternoon, one within sight of the Swiss capital. The one destroyed today was returning from a Rhone valley raid and crossed Swiss territory near Yverdon on Neuchatel lake, ignoring the warning of Swiss anti-aircraft batteries.

Bomber Opens Fire.

A Swiss fighting plane tried to warn the German pilot back, but the bomber suddenly opened fire. The Swiss returned the shots, and the bomber burst into flames.

The crew managed to put out the fire and the plane landed in a field where it was surrounded by Swiss soldiers who had seen the fight.

A German officer and three members of the crew drew revolvers while the fifth member tried to set the plane on fire. When the Swiss warned they would shoot, the officer and his companions surrendered and the plane was seized.

Operating from Baden.

Since Saturday morning German planes have been operating from bases in Baden and the Black Forest against the Rhone valley objectives.

It was reported from Berlin and in diplomatic quarters in Berne that Italy plans to enter the war when allied aviation becomes sufficiently crippled to no longer threaten industries of the Po valley.

The sudden concentration of German bombing raids on Rhone valley airports and plane factories is believed designed to show the Italians they have little to fear from the French air force.

Britons Leave Hungary for Home; to Go Thru Italy

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 2 (AP).—A number of British citizens, including some women members of the legation staff, left for England via Italy today, saying they hoped to reach allied territory before Italy goes to war. Others prepared to leave on short notice for Turkey if the war spreads.

STIRRING PARADE OF SOUNDS TELLS EPIC OF AMERICA

W-G-N Symphonic Hour Stars Pat O'Brien.

BY BRUCE DENNIS.

For a half hour last night radio listeners in every part of the land heard a swift moving epic of history in sound. Over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system, on The Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour, went The Pageant of America.

Some of the sound was joyous and triumphant—the landing of Lindbergh in Paris, the discovery of gold at Sutter's mill. Sometimes the sound was tragic, or foreboding—the Johnstown flood, the sinking of the Lusitania.

Growth of Nation Told.

At other times the surging growth of a new nation was plain to hear—the Declaration of Independence, Lincoln's address at Gettysburg, the building of the Panama canal.

The kaleidoscopic story of America was produced in the main studio of W-G-N. The narrator, his voice now soft and sad, now challenging, now exultant, was Pat O'Brien, Warner Brothers' star of a score of film successes. O'Brien made a special trip from Hollywood to take the radio rôle—and score another hit.

In the studio, as guests of Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, were more than 100 veterans of the 1st division who fought at Cantigny, France, during the world war. Col. McCormick, likewise a veteran of the 1st division, entertained them in the afternoon at the annual reunion at his Cantigny farm.

Col. McCormick Speaks.

During the symphonic hour Col. McCormick spoke of the reunion and of the division's days overseas. He recalled that experiences in France had led him to advocate mechanization of the army 20 years ago. He concluded with a message from the veterans to Gen. Charles P. Summerall, wartime head of the division, now president of The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., military school.

Also in the studio audience were members of the Sons of the American Revolution and of the Western Society of Engineers.

The Pageant of America was written and produced by William A. Bacher. A cast of outstanding radio actors took part. The musical background came from the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. The pageant closed on the patriotic notes of "God Bless America," the Irving Berlin hymn which Kate Smith first popularized.

Music Smoothly Done.

Weber and the orchestra, with Cecil Smith of the Tribune staff as commentator, also attended smoothly to the purely musical half of the program. From Haydn Wood's "Virginia Rhapsody" to Hadley's "Streets of Peking" the program was zestful and pleasing. The scherzo from Dvorak's New World symphony was particularly well favored.

Miss Marion Claire, soprano, attractively gowned in red and black, sang three numbers, of which the aria, "Pour Quoi" from Lakme, was especially noteworthy.

After the program was concluded, O'Brien stepped to the front of the stage with his war buddies [he's a Chicago Legionnaire himself].

"I want to thank Col. McCormick for the privilege and honor of being here tonight," said O'Brien. "It is one of those rare occasions when one has the opportunity—" His voice was shaking and he stopped.

"I guess I'm still keyed up over that pageant," he smiled. It was that kind of a pageant.

Following is the text of Col. McCormick's address:

"Today was the 16th reunion at Cantigny farm. The first one was held in 1925. I do not remember whether the idea was mine or some one else gave it to me, but it was a good idea. We had been home seven years and were getting a little lonesome for each other.

"We have met every year since, on the Sunday nearest to the 28th of May. At first we met in the woods near Roosevelt road, but of late we have preferred the natural amphitheater known as '1st Division grove.'

Recalls Early Contests.

"I remember in the first years we did not have enough baseballs or bats. There would be several games going on at once. Now one diamond is all we use, and most of us have become spectators, or contestants for the championship of barnyard golf.

"We talk about the old days and I have noticed that we talk about pleasant things or the amusing things or the things we can look back on as amusing now. Matters too tough to be laughed at, we just leave out.

"It seems funny now that when the artillery brigade went overseas, the only equipment it took was harness, but it isn't quite funny that the horses we received were so thin the collars did not fit.

A Reason for Mechanization.

"It was as much the memory of those horses and their horrible sufferings, as any tactical sense that made me advocate mechanization in the army 20 years ago.

"You drivers can laugh now at the steel stirrups, adopted for dress parade purposes, that nearly froze your feet when you rode in them those cold nights in Lorraine.

"I can laugh at the serious quartermaster who explained our double-breasted overcoats on the theory that they supplied extra buttons, and I can laugh to remember that all of the buttons came off and you had to use a good deal of ingenuity in making buttons out of sticks. A pretty ragged looking lot of soldiers we were.

"We can laugh that when our shoes gave out, they furnished us French shoes made of tarpaper. The boys could not learn to treat them carefully and soon had them punched full of holes.

Tin Cans New to Natives.

"Many of the natives in eastern France had never seen canned foods and thought our cans were hand grenades.

"My own pet peeve was the inverted soup bowl tin hat. Wearing it was orders, but I got around it by always forcing mine on some poor replacement who joined up without one.

"Do you remember when we went on French rations? Coffee and bread for breakfast, beef and potatoes and bread and wine for lunch, wine and bread for supper. Then in response to the demands of prohibition, the wine was taken away from us, and we supped on bread and water. It seems funnier now than it did then.

Officer Steps Into Trouble.

"I can laugh at the officer whose legs were so big that when his breeches wore out, he could not get into any others. Somehow he obtained a pair of British slacks. A general from the rear saw him and ordered him tried. When he appeared in court, the judge advocate demanded that he be compelled to remove the slacks. The court held with him, and when the officer removed the offending garment, the judge advocate changed the charges to conduct unbecoming to an officer and gentleman.

"This farce went on for an hour until finally the trial was indefinitely postponed.

"One of the favorite recollections is the time that Mess Sergeant Simpson rushed up to Capt. Rueberg and complained that the Boches had ruined the only pies on the western front.

"Simpson earned the DSC that day.

Summerall's Methods Recalled.

"You were a fine bunch of kids. You never disobeyed an order I gave you. I never had to put a man under arrest. Gen. Summerall had explained his methods to me. 'They are only boys,' he said. 'It is much better to keep them from breaking the rules than to punish them for breaking them.' What seemed like severity was really kindness.

"I suppose we all thought Gen. Summerall was hard boiled at first, but for 20 years we have worshipped him. We knew that the head of the division was the best man in it. We miss the general tonight more than we can say. But he is listening to us. So let us send him this message:

"'Gen. Summerall:

"'Your comrades of the 1st Division at its Cantigny day celebration extend their affection, loyalty and best wishes to you, sir, and hope to be with you at the legion convention this fall.'"

ARREST BRITON AS BROTHER OF LORD HAW HAW

LONDON, June 3, Monday (AP).—Frank Joyce, 22 years old, has been arrested under defense regulations and confined to Brixton jail. He is a brother of William Joyce, identified in British quarters as "Lord Haw Haw," the Oxford-speaking German radio broadcaster.

Scotland Yard detectives arrested Joyce Saturday night. Another brother, Quentin, 25, an air ministry clerk until the outbreak of the war, has been interned for some time for his propaganda activities.

Frank was employed on the British Broadcasting company technical staff until early this year. The brothers were members of the National Socialist league, a Fascist organization which was disbanded last August.

Arrest of Joyce followed by little more than a week the arrest of Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British Union of Fascists, and several of his followers in a vigorous drive to cleanse Britain of fifth columnists. Lord Elibank in the house of lords implied that Mosley may have had a connection with "Lord Haw Haw."

Report Queen of Holland Will Reside in East Indies

New York, June 3, Monday (AP).—A broadcast in English on the wave length of the German radio station DXB, heard today by NBC, reported "well informed circles in London" as saying that Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands had decided to take up residence "for the time being" in the Netherlands East Indies.

CHARGE BRITISH PLOT IN MEXICO AGAINST NAZIS

MEXICO CITY, June 3, Monday (AP).—The press bureau of the German legation charged today that many British secret service agents had arrived in Mexico and the Panama Canal Zone recently to organize sabotage operations and to create "incidents" which would be attributed to German agents.

The aim of these alleged tactics, the bureau asserted, is to arouse fear and hatred of Germany in the Americas, particularly in the United States.

"The current catch-phrase 'fifth column' of which British propaganda talks so much in the United States, is designed to create uneasiness and fear in the American people—which are exactly what the war-mongers desire for their mechinations," said Arthur Dietrich, chief of the bureau.

Dietrich quoted the declaration of President Lazaro Cardenas that no "fifth column" exists in Mexico.

ALLIES PLAN TO SEIZE TANGIER, ITALIANS HEAR

ROME, June 2 (AP).—The international settlement of Tangier, in Morocco, has been disturbed by rumors that the allies intend to land troops there, Stefani, the Italian official news agency, stated today. It said the plan was to use the troops to hold Tangier as a pawn to oppose Spanish claims on Gibraltar, which lies across the Strait of Gibraltar from Tangier. A campaign of incitement against Italians is in progress in the French colony of Algeria and in Casablanca, Morocco, Stefani stated.

ITALY MOBILIZES IN QUIET MANNER; NATION TOLD WHY

Editor Gives 'Moral and Political' Reasons.

ROME, June 2 (AP).—The authoritative Fascist editor, Giovanni Ansaldo, disclosed today that Italy is carrying out general mobilization in preparation for Italy's entrance into the war, generally expected any day.

"Mobilization is under way," declared Ansaldo, editor of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, in his weekly broadcast to Italian troops. He explained, however, that it was being conducted by individual summons rather than by the alarming call of former times.

Ansaldo indicated Italy's reason for entering the war was to make her weight felt as a nation whose people could not tolerate a position of inferiority as well as gaining a share of the spoils from the British and French empires.

Exchange with Roosevelt.

Political circles assumed that Premier Mussolini told President Roosevelt as much in a recent exchange of messages between them. Responsible Italians said the Duce undoubtedly stated his position frankly.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt has raised the possibility of unfavorable American reaction to an Italian war move was not possible to ascertain. But this was considered possible in the light of new statements volunteered by authoritative Fascists Friday that threats were not likely to influence Mussolini.

In any event, the impression that Italy would be in the war within a fortnight if not sooner was intensified after the exchange of messages.

Ansaldo declared the Italian people must know why they are likely to be called to war and named the reasons as moral and political.

Destiny of Europe.

Of the first, he demanded to know "how a people like ours, with all our energy, could remain outside a great contest like the present one, in which all the great peoples of Europe are participating and which will decide the destiny of Europe."

"If Italy should stay out of the contest," he declared, "it would signify irreparable decadence, a kind of disqualification. You would suffer consequences of this disqualification because to be Italians would mean to be feeble, cowardly. We must then act to maintain our moral position and affirm it. That means fight."

Discussing political aspects of potential Italian intervention, Ansaldo named Corsica, Tunisia, Gibraltar, and Suez as Italian objectives.

Control Independence.

All these, he said, "control our independence. These controls, these annoyances, must disappear.

"Italy must achieve this by its own means and with its own victories. To wait until satisfaction of our claims should rain from heaven would be to act like fools."

Ansaldo explained that the Italian mobilization is "calmer and more moderate" than in the past. For several weeks reservists have been receiving pink cards calling them up individually.

When these forces might be sent into action remained an unanswered question. Many thought that the day might be next Tuesday, June 4, when the cabinet meets.

However, the newspaper Il Resto del Carlino said that date was excluded. It expressed the conviction, nevertheless, that Italy would move "soon."

If the precedent of the Ethiopian war is followed, neither the cabinet nor the superior body, the Fascist grand council, necessarily would meet before Italy goes into action.

At that time, the only official action was Premier Mussolini's announcement from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia that the war had begun.

COULD AMERICA BE INVADED? YES, BUT WHAT A JOB!

Enemy Must Solve Titanic Problems, Say Experts.

to conduct operations against the Panama canal.

However, an invasion by the southern route could not be expected to take less than two years, and time would be a powerful ally on the side of the United States.

Transportation Facilities Lacking.

There are no railroads or trunk highways in Brazil to afford easy transportation of troops. Once the northern coast of South America were gained, the enemy would face an inch-by-inch struggle for the possession of each island in the West Indies.

During this time consuming drive, the offensive and defensive power of the United States could be built up immeasurably. Even the landing of troops on the southeastern seaboard, if the enemy advanced that far, would be hampered by the marshy terrain.

And such a landing, it was declared, could not be attempted before the destruction of the American fleet and long distance bombers. It could not succeed if the United States held strongly the key islands of the West Indies. If the Americans had on the mainland a trained, mobile force of 500,000 men, they likewise would form a barrier against invasion.

Fear Reckless Sacrifice of Fleet.

It was agreed that any conquest of America by the southern route would be impossible in the absence of a reckless sacrifice of the American fleet and its air armada.

However, to carry the hypothesis a step further and assume, the invader landed a force in the south, it is expected he would take much the same route as Lord Cornwallis did in attempting to subjugate the colonies from the south one by one, or that taken by Sherman in his march from Savannah north to Washington.

Any attempted invasion of the United States, the experts said, would necessitate the building and gathering of the greatest sea and air armada the world has ever known.

The greatest invasion to date was the ill-fated attempt of Phillip II. of Spain to subjugate England in 1588. He spent eight years in gathering together his armada of 130 ships, manned by 8,000 seamen and carrying 19,000 troops, which were to constitute the advance guard of an invading force.

The Time Element Today.

Preparation for an invasion of America might not take eight years, the experts said, but would not be a matter of weeks or months. In the first place, the invader would have to have a naval escort which could overcome the American fleet, if the invading force was to be moved at one time.

The United States fleet today stands at 369 vessels. In addition to the escort which would have to handle this fleet, the invader would need transports to carry his troops—250 ships of an average capacity of 2,000 men.

The heavy arms, mechanized equipment, short range planes, ammunition and supplies of such an army would fill more than 500 of the largest freighters. The expedition would require at least 100 oilers of capacities ranging from 5,000 to 12,000 tons, making a total of 850 ships in addition to the naval escort.

The escort fleet itself might be swelled to almost 1,300 vessels by inclusion of airplane, destroyer, and submarine tenders; repair ships, store ships, hospital ships, and other naval auxiliary craft.

Vast Armament Necessary.

The force of 500,000 men would have to have approximately the following arms:

Rifles	150,000
37 mm. antitank guns	1,100
Machine guns	12,000
Mortars	4,000
105 mm. howitzers	1,500
155 mm. howitzers	1,000
155 mm. guns	400
240 mm. howitzers	100
Tanks	600
Scout cars	700
Motor vehicles	100,000
Antiaircraft guns	500

The force would carry at least 15 days of ammunition for each weapon. Fifteen days would be the minimum only if the force could be sure it could maintain its lines of supply. It would carry 30 days rations for each soldier.

Army ammunition is computed by fire days. The fire day of a rifle is estimated at 160 rounds—the limit a soldier can carry—even tho the amount of ammunition can be used within a comparatively short period.

For Heavier Pieces.

The fire day of a machine gun is 800 rounds, that of a 37 mm. antitank gun 200 rounds, and artillery fire days range from 100 for the lighter pieces to 20 rounds for the heaviest.

On the number of airplanes needed, experts agreed that the sky would be the limit. Three times as many as we could raise would be the minimum.

Experts held it possible that the planes might aid in the transportation of troops. However, it was said, this would entail establishment of bases.

And what about parachute troops?

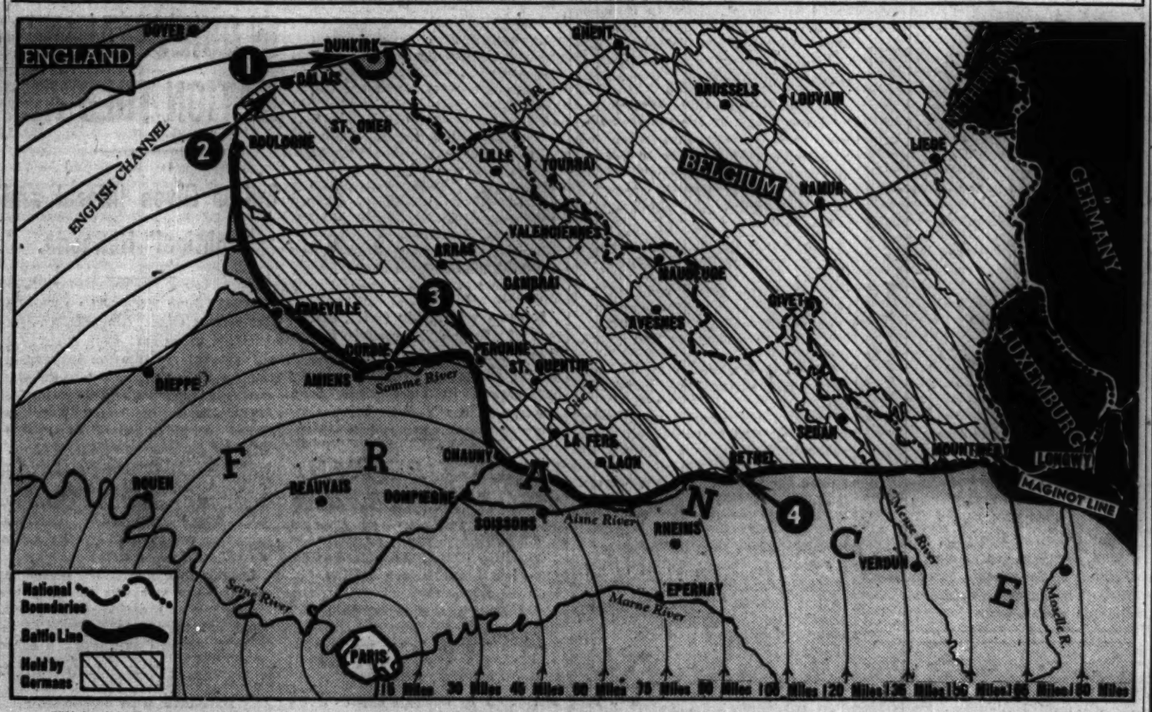
In the Belgian campaign, German planes were reported to have dropped as many as 12,000 to 15,000 parachute troops a day. This record was established by a shuttle service across a comparatively short distance. Nowhere near such a number could be moved across the northern or southern Atlantic, the experts said.

The experts gave studied answers to questions on all phases of possible invasion. For obvious reasons they declined to be quoted. They cautioned that an enemy would not be able to undertake such campaigns with the original invading force. The 500,000 men would have to be augmented by more and more troops and equipment to replace losses and to extend operations as the campaigns proceeded, they said.

In their discussions of the possible avenues of invasion of the United States, the experts asserted that they were merely setting forth hypotheses.

They expressed themselves as confident that the army and navy would make short work of any invader, even tho his initial expeditionary force numbered a million or more well equipped troops.

Germans Hint at Drive on Paris as Fight for Dunkirk Continues



With the Germans indicating a mighty drive toward Paris may be imminent, circles 15 miles apart on map above show distances from the present war theater to the French capital. In the fighting yesterday Germans were beaten back at Dunkirk (1) as they wallowed waist deep in mud in an effort to seize allied embarkation point; a little British garrison in a 17th century citadel at Calais (2) was making what appeared to be a heroic last stand; allied troops at Corbie and Peronne (3) repulsed German attempts to cross the Somme river in inflated boats, and an artillery duel at Rethel (4) was being fought.

COLOMBIA NAZIS BOLDER; ENLIST PROPAGANDISTS

New Paper Blasts Democracy.

(Copyright: 1940: By the New York Times.)

BOGOTA, Colombia, June 2.—Nazis in Colombia are becoming bolder daily, but despite revelations in the press the German chargé d'affaires insisted today there is no German fifth column in Colombia or any other part of the world. He added that Adolf Hitler has said he has no territorial interest in the Americas, and that Germans are prohibited from spreading National Socialist propaganda in foreign countries.

Colombia in black.

Yet there appeared last night a new newspaper in which the motto "Fatherland, Justice" is printed above the drawing of an unsheathed sword. The paper proclaimed its policy as completely antidemocratic, and said it marches under the banner of the Catholic revolutionary movement.

Attacks French Mission.

The paper, in its first issue, attacked the government of Colombia and insulted the French military mission, charging it is composed of officers who fled the Nazi attack in Flanders. It loudly praised the current actions and ideals of Nazi Germany.

The Nazis are enlisting Colombian propagandists to aid their cause and the newspaper Tiempo accused Carlos Ortiz Silva, an optician who studied in Berlin, of being a fanatic supporter of Hitler. Silva has been making speeches on "The National Revolutionary Movement." In his talks he has attacked the Colombian government and warmly praised Hitler.

Asserts 3,000 Get Visas.

Tiempo, in an article on Colombia's fifth column, asserted the authorities refuse to give data on the number of Germans now in Colombia, but that information obtained from a reliable source reveals that tourist visas for visits to Colombia in July have been given to 3,000 Germans.

The paper also cited the case of Lila Linke, a recent visitor who posed as a British newspaper correspondent. It charged she is a German agent.

Mrs. Anna Holden, 73 years old, 6850 South Green street, died yesterday in County hospital from injuries suffered in a fall in her home April 19.

40 LIGHT PLANES FOR ALLIES ARE FLOWN TO BORDER

Portland, Me., June 2 (AP).—About 40 light planes, destined to enter war service for the allies, droned over the northeastern corner of the United States tonight. Flying in groups of five or more from New York, they landed here for refueling, then headed for the northern town of Houlton, from where they were to be hauled across the Maine-New Brunswick border for delivery to the Canadian government.

Once in the dominion, they were expected to be flown to Halifax, N. S., for transshipment to the allies. Pilots of the ships said that most of the planes are Stinsons, once privately owned.

Old Irish Republican Army Men Enlist with De Valera

CORK, June 2 (AP).—Veterans of the old Irish republican army, forerunner of the present outlawed I. R. A., rallied today to the government's appeal for men to defend the country. Eamon de Valera, prime minister of Ireland, was a leader in the old I. R. A. Hundreds of veterans will parade thru Cork on Tuesday and enlist at police headquarters.

ARMY OF 750,000 AND 11,000 PLANES URGED BY LODGE

Washington, D. C., June 2 [Special].—A regular army of 750,000 and an air force of 11,000 planes and 176,000 men was advocated today by Senator Henry C. Lodge Jr. [R., Mass.]. Such a force, he estimated, would entail an annual outlay of 1 billion, 86 million dollars, allowing for a 10 per cent replacement charge on materiel.

He also proposed a military policy under which the United States would protect a "base area" consisting of North and Central America and the Caribbean Islands, waters, and shores.

Lodge described this area as "essential to the safety of the United States." He said the army should "prevent any non-American state from acquiring territory in the area bounded on the east by the 30th meridian of west longitude, and on the west by the line Alaska-Hawaii to the southern extremity of the western hemisphere." He said he intended to submit his proposals to the senate.

Hindsight and Foresight

By HOLGAR J. JOHNSON

President, Institute of Life Insurance

YOU'VE probably heard a lot about the service a life insurance agent should give his clients. Exactly what is that service and why is it so indispensable to you?

• • •

Well, in the first place, the agent should be an expert in life insurance. He can guide you in putting your money into the right kind of insurance—right for you. Good agents today are planning people's life insurance carefully—fitting it to the needs of each individual client.

No two persons' needs are exactly alike and, in each case, insurance must be carefully fitted. In this way the conscientious agent can help you get maximum protection—and the right kind.

But his service doesn't end once you've taken out a policy. Time brings changes in your affairs . . . death of beneficiaries, changes in your income, in the size of your family. All these eventualities the agent must watch for and check with you periodically. In short, he must see that your life insurance stays fitted!

Unfortunately this space isn't large enough for me to mention the many other ways a good agent can help you get the most for your money, but I shall explain some of them specifically in later columns.

HERE'S A POINT on which I think most of us will agree if we don't hide from the truth. Again and again widows have told me, "Frankly, Mr. Johnson, my husband would never have taken out that insurance if his agent hadn't shown him how vitally necessary it was! He'd have put it off!"

I guess there'd be thousands of families left without support each year if the agents let us put off the insurance duties we mean to assume "some time."

NOTE: In this regular Monday column, paid for at advertising rates, the Institute of Life Insurance has asked its president to discuss questions of interest to life insurance policyholders. Inquiries may be addressed to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

2,700 AMERICANS SAIL HOME FROM ITALY, IRELAND

Liner from Genoa Jammed with 1,900 Refugees.

GENOA, Italy, June 2 (AP).—The United States liner Manhattan, jammed like a troopship with American and foreign refugees, sailed today for New York.

Aboard were 705 first class passengers and 1,200 third class passengers, nearly three times the ship's normal capacity.

The sailing was delayed a day because of the crush of applicants for accommodations, but several hundred were left behind.

Their hopes now are pinned on the United States liner Washington, due at Bordeaux, France, on Tuesday.

War to Decide Sailing.

United States Lines officials, however, were not sure whether the Washington would call at Genoa after leaving the French port. They assumed that a decision would depend on whether Italy entered the war by that time.

Third class passengers, more than two-thirds of those on board, stood in line from early morning to embark. Altho precedence was given to Americans, they were forced to battle thru crowds of unhappy refugees from northern and central Europe who resignedly awaited their turn.

Scores of British, French, Canadians, and Australians, after waiting hours, were told they could not embark because they had failed to obtain exit visas, now required by Italian authorities on passports of citizens of the allied countries.

Seven in a Cabin.

Several hundred had no cabin assignments and were compelled to sit on trunks on deck while emergency dormitory arrangements were completed.

Every foot of cabin space was made available. Cabins normally occupied by three persons were fitted for seven.

Steamship agents said at least 1,000 persons hoping to embark on Manhattan were left behind. Two smaller American liners, the President Harrison and the Excambion, due to sail tomorrow or Tuesday, were booked to capacity.

Among the Manhattan's passengers was Mrs. Myron Taylor, wife of President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican. Taylor stayed behind.

Refugees Sail from Ireland.

GALWAY, Ireland, June 2 (AP).—The United States liner President Roosevelt left this port tonight with 800 Americans aboard.

The Roosevelt, originally scheduled to leave early this morning, was delayed until 8:20 p. m., by the failure of tenders to finish loading 600 tons of water which the liner had to take aboard before sailing.

Orders were issued at noon that no bar will be open during the crossing to New York—which may take 10 days—and only a limited amount of drinking water will be allotted each passenger.

But the passengers had the consolation of this Sunday dinner menu: Shrimp cocktail, chilled celery, queen olives, purée Jackson, consommé Bretonne, boiled cod with Hollandaise sauce, roast duckling with current jelly, braised beef, leg of lamb with mint sauce, lima beans, baked tomatoes, boiled or mashed potatoes, lettuce salad, French dressing, nut cake, ice cream with wafers, American cheese, Cheshire cheese, toasted crackers, fresh fruit, and coffee.

RED ARMY PUTS FINLAND'S WAR DEAD AT 85,000

MOSCOW, June 2 (AP).—Russia's Leningrad military headquarters declared in a communique tonight that more than 70,000 Finns were killed and that 15,000 others died from wounds in the Russo-Finnish war. The Finnish wounded were put at more than 250,000. An average of 2,000 Finns a day met death, the Russians said, from Feb. 11, the start of the Karelian offensive, until March 12, when the conflict ended. The communique said that data were issued in view of a Finnish announcement that Finnish casualties totaled 66,406, including 19,263 killed and 43,500 wounded.

BERLIN SUBDUED DESPITE NAZIS' VICTORY CLAIMS

Long War Hinted in Air Force Call.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 2.—With news of additional victories being issued frequently by the German high command, one would expect Sunday afternoon crowds in Berlin to be jubilant, but rarely have I seen them quite as subdued and patiently expectant as today.

For quite a while I watched the throngs near a newsstand on one of the busiest corners of Berlin, the Potsdamerplatz. A group of men, probably of the well paid middle class, approached the corner, talking together seriously and with quiet dignity as they walked. A few of them bought their Sunday afternoon papers, and the group stopped to study the war communique.

Ponder Over Plane Losses.

"I wonder," one of them said, "whether there isn't a special significance in this one phrase that always refers to the planes which we are supposed to have lost as 'missing'. Could this mean that we report only the planes actually missing and not those lost in battle?"

For a moment his friends pondered the question, then they looked around nervously and moved on much faster than they had come without saying another word.

I submitted this man's question to a German official. He was highly indignant and assured me that whoever doubted the figures of the German high command must be branded as a defeatist and that, luckily, there were only a few of this type left in Germany.

Appeal for Air Recruits.

A special appeal to the youth of Germany to enlist in the air force was issued under the caption: "Fly, German youth, fly."

The appeal said: "The big events in Poland, Norway, and now in the west have shown to us and to the whole world the decisive power of an excellent and well directed air force for the political and military developments of our time." It urged "all boys who have the spirit of enterprise and freshness and enjoy action" to join the air force and become flyers, radio operators, and gunners.

That the Germans are getting ready for a more protracted war was revealed in the fact that the youths were assured they may start as aspirant officers on Oct. 1 and that applications must be in by Aug. 1.

Expect Victory by August.

Despite these measures, the German public still believes the war will be finished by August at the latest. If no exceptionally big deliveries of airplanes from any of the English colonies, or possibly America, reach England within the next few months, the Germans believe they will be able to keep up their numerical superiority in the air for several months. This, they hold, is the absolute guarantee for final victory.

"Supremacy in the air," they assert, "spelled victory for Germany in Poland, Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium, and northern France and will be decisive in the coming offensives."

20 Year Aim Realized

The 20 year fight to open Damen avenue between 74th and 79th streets was ended yesterday when Mayor Kelly cut the ribbon officially opening the new system of subways and pavement to traffic. More than 2,000 persons cheered the ceremony.

The opening of the section provides a thorofare from 47th to 87th street. Two subways were built under railroad tracks, new paving was laid for 3,286 feet, and lighting was installed. The roadway is 51 feet wide.

The work, begun in 1938, cost $600,000, financed by some of the city's motor fuel taxes and by the Public Works administration. The new opening will provide a thru street in the middle of the mile stretch between Western and Ashland avenues.

BRITONS BATTLE NORWAY SNOWS; ELUDE GERMANS

10 Soldiers Get Home with Thrilling Tale of Escape.

LONDON, June 2 (AP).—Ten veterans of Britain's ill-fated campaign in Norway returned today with a tale of escape that rivaled stories of the allied withdrawal from Flanders.

The soldiers, who landed at a Scottish port, said they were separated from their main force in fighting at Otta, in the Gudbrands valley south of Dombas. It took them three weeks of trudging thru the mountains, in snow five feet deep and with scant food supplies, to reach the coast.

Their spokesman, Private Robert Ogle, said that once during the trek they stopped at a house to get food and were met by a German officer and an orderly, who told them they were prisoners.

Wipe Out Enemy Party.

"I pulled the pin out of a hand grenade and kept them at bay until we could get back into the woods and escape," Ogle said.

"We had a Bren gun that stood us in good stead once when we ran into an enemy party 20 yards below us on a mountain side. They started firing, but we wiped them out. Once, as we hid in a house, 5,000 Nazi troops marched past us."

Upon reaching the coast the 10 soldiers secured a rowboat and some provisions. They spent the next 10 days in the boat until they reached an island where they hired a motorboat to take them to Scotland. The boat broke down en route and a trawler finally towed them into port.

Swedes Down 2 Nazi Planes.

STOCKHOLM, June 3, Monday (AP).—An official Swedish communique said today: "A great many foreign planes touched the Swedish-Norwegian border in districts of northern Lapland Sunday." It added that the Swedish neutrality patrol opened fire several times, forcing down two German planes.

One plane was destroyed, and the crews "partly saved themselves," the communique said, by taking to their parachutes. Two officers and seven men were interned, it was added.

Narvik Port Reported Blocked.

Germans retreating from Narvik have rendered that Norwegian ore port useless for a year, a correspondent of the official Norwegian news agency reported today. The correspondent said the Narvik harbor was filled with a "forest of masts of sunken ships" and that the channels leading to the dock were hopelessly blocked with more than 30 hulks.

Docks, loading equipment and electric plants all are wrecked, he said. It will take months to clear the harbor to resume ore shipments, let alone to repair the docks and the railroad to the Swedish ore mines which the retreating Germans are expected to blow up.

The correspondent said between 400 and 500 allied and Norwegian prisoners captured by the Germans were left in Narvik when the Nazis retreated. The allies are increasing their pressure on the withdrawing Germans, the correspondent added.

TURKS WARNED: BE READY TO DEFEND YOUR FATHERLAND

Premier Saydam.

ANKARA, Turkey, June 2 (AP).—Premier Refik Saydam told the nation tonight that Turkey wants to stay out of the war, but warned his countrymen to be ready at any moment to defend their country.

"We all know we are out of war and want to remain out," the premier said in a radio address. "But obscure movements go forward abroad and none can say where they may lead. So don't for a single moment forget the obligation of taking up arms if need be for defense of the fatherland."

The premier asserted Turkey's army is "ready to repel any aggression from any side."

Political circles attached importance to the fact that the premier did not mention Turkey's mutual assistance pact with Great Britain and France. He referred to it obliquely, however, with the assertion that the foreign policy of government has followed was "the best road for the security of the country." While some observers interpreted the speech as a slight shift away from the allies, it also was regarded as notice Turkey will fight if Italy moves in the eastern Mediterranean or the Balkans.

Argentine Training Ship Is Welcomed at Honolulu

Honolulu, T. H., June 2 (AP).—The Argentine training cruiser La Argentina arrived at Honolulu today. United States army and navy officers, government officials, chamber of commerce representatives and hundreds of spectators greeted the visitors. Capt. Abelardo Pantin, the commander, said La Argentina would proceed to Yokohama, Japan; Batavia, Java; Colombo, Celyon, and Cape Town, South Africa, before returning home.

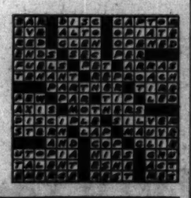
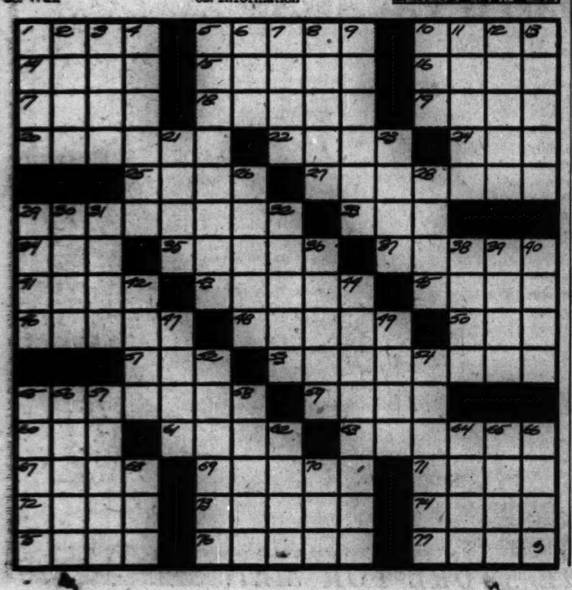
PUZZLE OF SATURDAY, JUNE 1, SOLVED





FLEE NAZI TRAP; CROSS CHANNEL IN MOTOR LAUNCH

41 Allied Troops Find a Way to Escape.

A SOUTHEAST COAST PORT IN ENGLAND, June 2 (AP).—Thomas McCulloch, a truck driver with the British expeditionary force, today told how he and a party of 40 that included 30 Belgian soldiers escaped from the German trap in Belgium and northern France and reached England in a motor launch.

He said his unit, withdrawing after the surrender of the Belgian army by King Leopold III., was bombed and machine gunned by German planes until it had to abandon its trucks and proceed on foot.

McCulloch said the unit found a motor launch on a river near the coast, but couldn't float it at first. He swam to another launch for help just as a strafing plane swooped down. The group, led by a British officer, finally floated the launch and crossed the English channel in it.

Boatmen Reach Home.

Boatmen who helped ferry troops from the beach at Dunkirk, France, to the ships standing off shore returned to England today. Some had been on duty for 50 hours. One motorboat, which towed eight small boats in repeated trips to a larger craft, had as one member of its crew a boy 15 years old.

The coxswain of the motorboat said the first words the crew heard when the craft reached the Flanders coast was the exclamation of an infantry officer: "Thank God, there are such men as you!"

Bombs Burst Everywhere.

"Explosions kept going on around us all the time," the coxswain said. "The motorboat was nearly blown out of the water time and again. Every trip the small boats were loaded to the thwarts and soldiers baled water with their tin hats. Once we carried 50 Highlanders. We kept on until all troops in that and other parts of the beach had been removed."

At this port's railroad station the tired troops came in momentary contact with some of the 48,000 children the government was moving from the imperiled coastal areas to the safety of Wales and central England.

Girls Salute Soldiers.

There were scores of school girls, carrying dolls and gasmasks, rucksacks, school books, and cricket bats. They marched into the station, passing the troops, who were taking a different train.

The grimy soldiers and the neat little girls saluted one another with waves of the hand—some grave, some gay.

Eden Tells How Army Fought Way Out of Trap

LONDON, June 2 (AP).—Following is the text of the address broadcast by War Minister Anthony Eden today:

"In the battle of the ports which has been raging during the past three weeks, Germany has made great strategic gains. The loss to us in equipment and in material has been heavy; but there is now another side to this picture. The bulk of the British expeditionary force has been saved, and quite apart from what the French have done for their own forces, we have been able to bring tens of thousands of our French allies off with us from Dunkirk.

"Nor is this effort ended. Four days ago not one of us would have dared to hope that the isolated allied armies could have fought their way thru the bottleneck to the coast.

"These men have marched hundreds of miles. They have fought countless actions with an enemy that hemmed them in and pressed upon them from three sides.

"Surrounded," They Escape.

"The German high command proudly announced that they were surrounded. They have fought their way thru. How they have achieved the seemingly impossible? Man for man, the British troops have proved themselves superior to the Germans whenever they have met them. All accounts show that the British expeditionary force took a toll of the enemy greatly in excess of that suffered by themselves. On at least two occasions, at Arras and on the Ypres canal, the losses suffered by the German army were enormous.

"So it is that the last the German plans were foiled, and that, despite the surrender of the Belgian army, our own troops and the French allies with them have fought their way thru.

"Let me now state the sequence of events. At the call of the king of the Belgians, the B. E. F. advanced into Belgium, and took up its positions on the River Dyle. The advance lasted several days. Thru events they could not control our army had to come back in less than half that time. It did so with little confusion and with few losses. Seventy-five miles forward, a fight at the end of the advance, and 75 miles back, fighting all the way, all in the space of 10 days.

"Brilliantly Executed."

"That was the first phase of the battle of the ports, and it was brilliantly executed. I have a report of one division which had not lost a single straggler on that 150 mile march, and here is a quotation from an account of an eyewitness of our troops on the front: 'No display of drill at Olympia would be smarter than the work of men of our forces that I saw. The feeling of confidence was magnificent.'

"And so the British expeditionary force found itself back on the shore, with its strength in men and material almost intact; but meanwhile the German mechanized columns were pouring thru the gap to the south, advancing across our lines of communication, biting ever deeper into our back areas.

"Desperate efforts were made to stem the tide. Units which had been doing much needed labor behind the lines were thrown into the fight and acquitted themselves splendidly. Others were sent to hold the channel ports in an effort to keep open communications for the B. E. F.

March 35 Miles in a Day.

"Some troops marched 35 miles in 24 hours. British brigades on the flanks stood firm, despite enormously extended frontage they had to defend. At one time the expeditionary force of nine divisions was holding a front of 80 miles. They held on, and they fought back.

"On the west, British troops defended the narrowing gap to the sea. Day after day the battle continued, and at the end of it they had fought themselves to a standstill, but they held their ground, and by doing so they enabled the remainder of the expeditionary force to get clear.

"On the east, corps artillery coming into action against the enemy massing for attack inflicted such heavy casualties that the attack never developed.

"No Braver Epic."

"The stories of individual exploits at this time are legion: An anti-tank gunner who knocked out seven tanks; a hero who, after knocking out hostile tanks, swam a canal to bring back marked maps and other booty. But the triumph is not the triumph of individuals, however gallant; it is the triumph of an army.

"There is no braver epic in all our annals. There, then, is the story of the battle of the ports. From the moment of the collapse of the Belgian army there was only one course left to the allied armies, to hold the line around Dunkirk, the only port that remained, and to embark as many men as possible before their rear guards were overwhelmed. Thanks to the magnificent and untiring coöperation of the allied navies and air forces, we have been able to embark and save more than four-fifths of that British expeditionary force which the Germans claimed to have surrounded. The armies' debt to the royal navy, to the merchant navy, and to the royal air force can never be forgotten.

"We have been compelled to destroy much valuable material. We have suffered casualties. Once again our ally has to bear the invasion of the sacred soil of France. But the Germans, in spite of the huge losses which we know them to have suffered, have failed in their main object, to surround and annihilate the allied armies in the north.

"The British expeditionary force still exists, not as a handful of refugees, but as a body of seasoned veterans. We have had great losses in equipment, but our men have gained immeasurably in experience of warfare and in self-confidence.

Spirit Promises Victory.

"The vital weapon of any army is its spirit. Ours has been tried and tempered in the furnace. It has not been found wanting. It is this refusal to accept defeat that is the guarantee of final victory. Our duty in this country is plain. We must make good our losses and we must win this war. To do that we must profit by the lessons of this battle. Brave hearts alone cannot stand up against steel. We need more planes, more tanks, more guns. The people of this country must work as never before. We must show the same qualities, the same discipline and the same self-sacrifice at home as the British expeditionary force have shown in the field.

"The nation honors with proud reverence those who fell that their comrades might win thru. The innumerable actions, the countless deeds of valor of the last week cannot all be recorded now. Each will have its place in history—soldiers, sailors, airmen, who gave their lives to help. Theirs is an immortal memory. Their spirit must be our banner, their sacrifice our spur."

EXPLAIN HOSPITAL UNIT PROGRAM TO RESERVE DOCTORS

Members of the army's organized medical reserve who have expressed apprehension at creation of affiliated hospital units, such as those being set up at Cook County and Presbyterian hospital and the Northwestern university medical school, were assured yesterday by military and medical authorities that they will not be displaced or made less important by the units.

The new units are being organized by the surgeon general's office at Washington. "They will be used for base haspital work only," explained Lieut. Col. Charles G. Hutter, senior army medical instructor in Illinois. "The reserve doctors, besides practicing their professions, have been trained to work at the front and provide rapid medical care under combat conditions."

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the Northweestern school, said the hospital units are designed solely for surgical work and care of badly wounded at base hospitals far behind the lines. He explained that in event of war these units can be functioning within a day. An army officer estimated it would require two or three months' training of tactical units to get the reserve doctors corps ready for action. Both types of organization will draw hospital equipment and enlisted personnel from the regular army.

THREE BANDITS ROB TAVERN.

Police yesterday sought three bandits, one of them armed with a sawed-off shotgun, after they held up a tavern at 3322 47th street and took $180 from Ralph Budrik, the owner, and Charles Januska, a customer.

D. WORTH CLARK WARNS AGAINST WAR RACKETEERS

Senator Tells Perils of Propaganda.

South Bend, Ind., June 2 —[Special].—Senator D. Worth Clark, [D., Idaho] sounded a warning against foreign propagandists and the "war racketeer" in his commencement address to 665 University of Notre Dame graduates today.

Senator D. W. Clark.

Clark, himself a graduate of Notre Dame, also challenged the students to do their part in restoring economic balance to the nation.

"No sooner had the torches of election night burned out than the war racketeers became busy, and in a few months we were plunged into the first world war, the 'war to end wars,' the 'war to make the world safe for democracy'," he said. "So you see how foolish it is to be certain that it cannot happen now. A little propaganda, a few songs about the glories of war, and civilized men soon become a horde of brutal killers."

"Heat and Burden."

"Apart from the war," Senator Clark continued, "our whole domestic economy is at the crossroads. It will take all of your ability and courage during the next few years to preserve capitalism and democracy as we know them in the United States. If the struggle is successful, it can then be said that democracy can be made to work, even in a 'blitzkrieg age'."

Senator Clark typified America's present economic setup as a "paradox of plenty." "My generation stands in horror and amazement at this fearful paradox," he said.

"We have struggled with all the energies at our command to solve these problems. Only the future historian will impartially record the net result of our effort."

"You young men will soon be bearing the heat and burden of the day. The people of America will not tolerate forever a social mechanism which functions so poorly on their behalf."

The Most Rev. John J. Cantwell, archbishop of Los Angeles, preached the baccalaureate sermon at the solemn mass celebrated this morning by the Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, former Notre Dame president and now auxiliary bishop of the army and navy diocese.

Honorary degrees of doctor of laws were given Senator Clark, Archbishop Cantwell, and the Very Rev. John R. Hackett, chancellor of the diocese of Lansing, Mich.

GOVERNORS SPLIT ON ROOSEVELT'S PLEA FOR GUARD

Duluth, Minn., June 2 (AP).—President Roosevelt's move for a shortcut to possible mobilization of the National Guard was the subject of conversation here tonight as chief executives of 19 states and Puerto Rico gathered for the governors' conference.

Missouri's governor, Lloyd Stark, chairman of the executive committee of the conference, said the general subject of national defense probably will be discussed at Monday morning's meeting. He said he will suggest that the discussion be limited to broad grounds without going into such details as guard mobilization.

Of the early arrivals, Gov. Frank M. Dixon, Alabama Democrat, and Gov. Richard C. McMullen, Delaware Democrat, backed the President's appeal for added power. South Dakota's Harlan J. Bushfield and Charles A. Sprague of Oregon, Republicans, favored moving cautiously.

TALK OF TROOPS ON FOREIGN SOIL STIRS CONGRESS

Island Bases of Empires Eyed by Roosevelt.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—The movement to keep congress in session indefinitely to deal with new problems of national defense and to revise taxes gained additional momentum today. The demand for such a course was voiced by members of both major parties, with the suggestion that a recess be taken for the period of the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

A combination of circumstances deepened the growing conviction that congress must remain on the job. Foremost were the disclosure that President Roosevelt is contemplating the possible dispatch of American armed forces beyond the borders of the United States and the rumors of the possible destination of such forces.

Details Are Lacking.

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army, declined to amplify his explanation that the authority the President requested of congress to call the National Guard and army and navy reserves into active service is to permit employment of our armed forces in other countries in the western hemisphere.

From the diplomatic corps, however, comes the information that several Latin American republics are so alarmed by the inroads of Nazi fifth columns that they are appealing to the United States to send warships and troops to help them combat the common menace. It was in response to such an appeal, according to this information, that the President dispatched the cruiser Quincy to Rio de Janeiro last Friday.

Information from other sources indicates that the administration envisages also the possibility of using troops against the Nazis in Mexico, in Colombia, and other countries near the Panama canal and in the British, French, and Dutch West Indies and the Guianas.

Attitude on Islands Changes.

With the very existence of the British empire jeopardized by the Nazi blitzkrieg the administration attitude toward acquisition of Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Trinidad, and other British islands off our Atlantic coast appears to have undergone a change. It was only a few weeks ago that the President, questioned regarding the wisdom of acquiring islands to protect the approaches of the Panama canal, termed the proposal silly.

But today, Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.], an administration spokesman, sought to justify the President's request for authority to send troops abroad by contending that if the allies should be defeated it would be to the self-interest of the United States to occupy the British, French, and Dutch West Indies.

To occupy these islands it would be necessary not only to dispatch warships but troops. Hence, according to Minton, the President is exercising only ordinary foresight in seeking such authority.

Would Provide Bases.

The current crisis in the fortunes of the allies has aroused support of the proposal to acquire the British and French islands in quarters hitherto cool to the suggestion. The argument is now heard that we should obtain possession of these islands not only to get naval and aviation bases essential to our defense but to help the allies in their hour of need.

It is pointed out that if Britain and France would cede these possessions to the United States in consideration of cancelation of their war debts to this country the terms of the Johnson act would be satisfied and it would be permissible to extend American credit to the allies. The Johnson act forbids loans to a debt defaulter.

The British and French already have occupied Dutch Curacao and Aruba in the West Indies for protection of their interests against Nazi plotters. The argument is now heard that the United States would be justified in carrying out a "protective occupation" of all the West Indian island to combat Nazi forces that the allies are rapidly becoming too weak to resist.

Distrust of President.

A conspicuous motive of those urging congress to remain in session is distrust of the President, who is accused of magnifying the war crisis for political purposes. Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], considered a likely choice for Mr. Roosevelt's running mate, pulled no punches when he attributed the impression that the President is getting the country into war to such projects as that of calling the National Guard into active service.

Speaking of the authority sought by the President to dispatch troops abroad Senator Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.] said: "We will be here all summer before we grant that power. There will have to be some justification that doesn't appear now before congress will do it, in my judgment."

Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.] said he will press this week for favorable action on his resolution to authorize the President to sell the allies American army and navy airplanes, destroyers, and other warships which he deems surplus to our current needs. He thought several hundred airplanes and 25 or 30 destroyers could be spared.

"Such aid would turn the tide in Europe," said Pepper. "There is a chance it would keep Italy out of the war."

Bears Throne Heir

ATHENS, Greece, June 2 (AP).—A son, heir to the Greek throne, was born today to Crown Princess Frederika. Guns fired a salute thruout Greece. Greece's king, George II., is childless and his brother, Prince Paul, to whom the son was born, is next in line of succession. Prince Paul married Princess Frederika, of the German house of Brunswick, on Jan. 9, 1938. Their first child was a girl, Princess Sophia. Court circles said the prince probably will be christened Constantine after his grandfather. The Acropolis was floodlighted in celebration of the birth.

DRAFTED LABOR TO HELP BRITAIN GROW MORE FOOD

Big Program for Farm Production Launched.

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—Britain has decided to conscript labor for her farms and to recruit thousands more women into the country's agricultural army, Minister of Agriculture Robert Hudson announced tonight.

Outlining the government's plans to increase agricultural production to feed the nation in wartime, he stated in a radio broadcast that no farm worker will be allowed to desert the soil in the future, and that experienced men who have left to earn bigger wages in war factories will be brought back.

Drastic measures are needed, Hudson said, to stop the drift of labor from the farms and to carry out the food expansion program. Since September, he estimated, 70,000 workers have left the land, mostly to work in other industries, and Great Britain now has fewer farm hands than before the war.

Factories to Lose Farm Hands.

An order prohibiting employers in outside industries from hiring agricultural workers will be issued by the ministry of labor, Hudson said. Farm hands working in factories and industrial plants must return to agriculture when they lose their present jobs, he added.

Forty thousand men, it is estimated, will be brought back to the land under the conscription scheme.

The government, it was indicated, is planning to conscript conscientious objectors into organized gangs for land reclamation projects.

Fifteen thousand more permanent and seasonal members of the women's land army will be needed within the next few months, Hudson stated. He urged that farmers arrange to billet and train them, and promised that evacuees will be transferred when necessary to make room for the land army women.

Pay Scale Linked to Prices.

A new wage scheme for farm workers linking rates of pay to agricultural prices for the first time was outlined by Hudson. The minimum national wage for agricultural workers, he said, will be 48 shillings a week [about $7.68], compared with the present average of 38½ shillings. The increase of about 26 per cent will be transferred to the consumer in higher prices.

The shortage of animal feeding stuffs, Hudson indicated, was worse than had been revealed. Pig and poultry farmers feeding imported stuffs must cut their live stock and fowls to one-third of the present numbers by fall, he said. Breeding and hatching will be curtailed draetically at once.

"The most important thing," Hudson added, "is to maintain the milk supply. Dairy herds will have the first call on what is available."

At Chicago Rally

GOV. DICKINSON ASKS REBIRTH OF SPIRITUAL LIVING

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Gov. Luren D. Dickinson of Michigan yesterday told 25,000 persons at an evangelistic rally in Soldiers' field that the billions spent beyond the nation's income will lead to ruin unless the country returns quickly to the spiritual living of the forefathers.

The rally was held under the auspices of "Let's Win America for God, Incorporated," and brought to a close the annual convention of the World's Christian Fundamentals association. The association was one of 100 evangelistic organizations sponsoring the rally.

Gov. Dickinson was escorted to the platform by Dr. Paul Rood of Los Angeles, Cal., president of the Fundamentals association. Before his address the governor, who is 81 years old, sat beneath a small green umbrella sunshade beside a pretty member of his secretarial staff.

"Periodicals are asking," said the governor, "if we are in a cesspool of profligacy, beer gardens, road houses, gambling dens, crime, insanity, social putridity, and Belshazzar feasts like those of Greece and Rome, and, if so, what is the cause and what are the remedies. Are we at the crossroads of American life?"

Gov. Dickinson said the 15 billion dollars spent for crime, as estimated by J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, must be traced to its source if the conditions are to be improved.

"Billions are being spent beyond our income," he said. "There is no relief on unemployment lines and there is a burden of taxes above anything heretofore. Ruinous indulgences foreign to our former American living result in murders, suicides, divorces, diseases, and licentiousness.

"Unconscious encroachments on our former various lines of activity have brought us into the present conditions so unthinkable to our forefathers. Little by little—yielding to outside influences—gambling, the liquor traffic, waste, lavish spending, lowering of industrial and social morale, and indifference, disrespect, and defiance for God's laws are extracting millions that should be used to buy shoes, clothing, food, and other necessities, and thus thousands are turned over to the federal and state authorities to be fed, clothed, and warmed."

NATIONAL GUARD NEEDS MONTHS TO TRAIN AND EQUIP

Lacks Tanks, Trucks, Guns and Even Gas Masks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—If the President should call the National Guard into active service it would take months to equip and train the force for effective use in war. This was the observation of war department officials interviewed today. They set forth the following facts:

The National Guard consists of 225,000 men who in the main know the rules but are lacking in training and equipment.

At this moment the guard could muster 36 tanks— two for each of the 18 tank companies scattered thruout the country. The tankmen are untrained for the type of warfare shown by the German "Panzer" divisions.

The guard has about 500 planes, chiefly observation, and about 600 pilots.

There are few Garand semiautomatic rifles in the 22 guard divisions; all but a few companies are equipped with the Springfield. They have only a few of the new 37 millimeter antitank guns and depend for their training upon 1 pounders—old when the world war started.

Lack Means of Communication.

Signal and radio equipment is lacking. There are about 12 gas masks for every 100 soldiers, and few have had adequate gas training.

The antiaircraft units are fairly well equipped with 3 inch guns and range finders, but have had little experience in firing them. One example is the Washington National Guard unit of the coast artillery, which hasn't used service ammunition in its antiaircraft guns for almost two years. At maneuvers in Virginia last summer they used blank ammunition.

In the last four years the National Guard has been equipped with about 11,000 trucks and automobiles, but need 13,000 more. All of the artillery regiments are truck or tractor drawn, except one in New Jersey which still uses horses. But very few modernized guns have been given them.

No Mechanized Cavalry.

There still are four cavalry regiments and none that is mechanized, altho plans are afoot for replacing horses with armored cars.

When they have mastered the technicalities of these new [to them] weapons, they then will be ready for field training in large bodies. Without experience of fighting in masses, which even the regular army lacked until recently because of inadequate appropriations, "an army isn't much of an army," one officer said.

To acquire knowledge in mass maneuvers, guardsmen, the regular army, and reserve officers—about 300,000 of them—will attend exercises this summer.

Altho deficient in almost everything making for the 1940 style of warfare, the National Guard is credited with 15,000 well trained officers and several thousand noncommissioned officers who have been attending schools to gain knowledge of modern weapons.

TEXAS JAILS 90 OF CULT OPPOSING U. S. ALLEGIANCE

Police Run 50 Others Out of Town.

Waxahachie, Tex., June 2 (AP).—Ninety members of a religious sect were jailed today after attempting to distribute literature described as of a pacifist nature.

Sheriff Joe Roy said his office was swamped with phone calls after a group, estimated at 200, appeared with phonograph records and literature urging nonallegiance to a man-made form of government. Several fist fights were reported.

Hundreds of citizens blocked streets and milled around the jail as officers brought the prisoners in.

Fifty Escorted from Town.

Odessa, Tex., June 2 (AP).—Fifty members of a religious sect, rescued from an angry crowd after they refused to salute the American flag, were escorted out of town by police today. They had been held in jail over night. County Attorney O. E. Gerron previously said they would not be released until they saluted the flag.

Several fist fights occurred after the party appeared yesterday and began distributing religious literature. In the course of the fighting an American flag was produced, but members of the sect refused to salute it. A spokesman said the organization prohibited its members from saluting any man made thing.

The outburst was one of several in Texas in recent weeks. Members of the organization have been escorted from Del Rio, Brownwood, San Antonio, and Harlingen in previous encounters.

Group Hustled Out of Town.

Auburn, Cal., June 2 (AP).—A group of men and women who attempted to distribute literature from a religious organization was hustled into automobiles by irate citizens last night and told to get out of town and stay out.

Pamphlets, said to be of a subversive nature, were destroyed.

Salute Question Is in Court.

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Constitutionality of a flag salute requirement may be decided by the Supreme court tomorrow in a case involving members of a religious group similar to those jailed in Odessa, Tex.

200 Go Thru Paces

Over 200 gas model airplanes took to the air yesterday at 79th street and Kostner avenue as the Windy City Gas Model club held a contest for miniature plane enthusiasts. The contest was conducted with the sanction of the Academy of Model Aeronautics, and trophies were contributed by United Air lines, American Airlines, and other groups as well as by the club.

Thirty-one prizes, eight trophies, and three medals were awarded. The contestants were of all ages, and winners were chosen in two age groups 21 years and over, and under 21 years.

First honors in the contest went to William Johnson Jr., 15 years old, 4175 Irving Park road. Three flights of his model averaged 267 seconds, or almost 4½ minutes each. The longest flight was approximately 6 minutes. He was awarded trophies by the United Airlines and the Gas Model Aeronauts. Second place went to George Bauer, 18, of 8 River street, Dundee, with an average flight of 211 seconds, and third place went to George Pitelka, 22, of 7337 Ogden avenue, Lyons, with an average flight of 206 seconds.

10 HORSES PERISH AS FIRE SWEEPS RIDING STABLES

At least 10 horses perished early today in a fire which attacked a section of the Green Tree stables, 4701 Cumberland road, outside the city limits and near River Grove.

The fire broke out in stable B where 45 animals were quartered. Employés headed by Silas Jayne, the owner, managed to free most of them.

The flames destroyed stable B and also a large refreshment stand, but were prevented from spreading to two other stables by fire companies from Chicago, Park Ridge, Morton Grove, and Rivert Forest. The Chicago companies carried water in tanks from the city limits. The loss in horses and structures amounted to several thousand dollars, Fire Chief Fred Holland of River Grove said.

PANAMA ELECTS DR. ARIAS WITH A RECORD VOTE

PANAMA CITY, Panama, June 2 (AP).—Dr. Arnulfo Arias, government candidate and the only remaining entry, was elected president of Panama by a record vote today.

Dr. Arnulfo Arias.

Unofficial figures at 8 p. m. placed the presidential vote at 85,000, and indicated Dr. Arias may receive 100,000 votes by the time all are counted. The province of Colon cast 12,000 votes for the government party, out of 15,000 registered voters, indicating that Dr. Ricardo Alfaro's last minute withdrawal had not affected the result.

Dr. Arias was given a clear field yesterday when Dr. Alfaro, leader of the oppositionist popular front, withdrew and urged his supporters to refrain from voting. Dr. Alfaro charged it was impossible for the opposition party to exercise its right of suffrage. Election officials, in order to prevent repeaters, made each voter present an identification certificate and dipped the forefinger of each person in indelible ink.

SOARING PILOT AND PASSENGER GLIDE 50 MILES

An American distance record for a glider carrying a woman passenger was claimed yesterday by Stanley Corcoran, 6318 South Knox avenue, and Miss Magdalene Pawling, 4820 Elm street, Niles Center.

The soaring plane, a Frankfort Cinema with a 54 foot wingspread, was cut loose from its towing automobile at Air Activities airport, five miles east of St. Charles, at 2:11 p. m. Two hours and 39 minutes later Corcoran set the glider down at the Kenosha, Wis., airport, 50 air line miles away. At times the glider reached elevations of 6,000 feet.

Corcoran, who is 27 years old, is the designer for the Frankfort Sailplane company, which recently moved to Chicago. Miss Pawling, who is manager of a hosiery shop, is 29 years old.

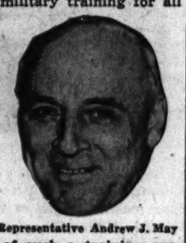
Louisville, Ky., June 2 (AP).—Two soldiers and a woman were killed and two soldiers and two women were injured today when their automobile struck a parked truck. The dead were J. D. Foley, Rosiclare, Ill., of the 1st cavalry, mechanized, and James McKeon of the 13th cavalry, mechanized, both stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., and Miss Alice King, New Stithton, Ky. The injured are Corporal Pat McKeon, brother of James, and Private James Basham, both of Fort Knox; Miss Virginia Seidell, Louisville, and Miss Mary Richardson, Valley Station, Ky.

COMPULSORY U. S. ARMY TRAINING IS SEEN IF NAZIS WIN

750,000 Youths Might Be Called Up Each Year.

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Compulsory military training for all physically fit American youths was predicted in congressional circles today as a virtual certainty if Germany wins the European war.



Representative Andrew J. May

Discussion of such a training system and other methods of augmenting defense has become widespread following President Roosevelt's request that congress give him powers to call the national guard and organized reserves to active duty in peace time.

Representative Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military affairs committee, saying the United States will have to expand greatly its armed forces if the allies are defeated, asserted he favored immediate expansion of the regular army to 500,000 men. It now is limited by law to 280,000, although only 227,000 of that number actually have been enlisted.

Cheaper Than Standing Army.

Other members of the committee voiced the opinion that the compulsory training method, long the accepted practice in many European nations, would be more economical than attempting to maintain a large force of permanent troops and would have the advantage of building up a tremendous reserve of trained fighters.

Representative J. J. Smith [D., Conn.], said it was estimated that approximately 1,500,000 youths reach military service age each year and that if even 50 per cent of them were physically fit, they would form an adequate standing army.

Smith said the desirable method would be to take those 750,000 youths into the army and navy immediately, before they enter their business or professional careers, and give them one year of military training. Thereafter they could be called back for periodic training.

Lower Pay Allotments.

The student soldiers would be paid much less than the army now pays its enlisted men.

In that connection, however, Representative John M. Costello [D., Cal.], said he thought the United States would have to resign itself to an annual national defense bill of at least 2 billion dollars. In normal years, the army and navy combined gets less than half that sum.

The national guard for years has been this country's substitute for compulsory military training, but several house members said current developments had demonstrated the system's weaknesses.

Altho the authorized peace time strength of the guard is about 400,000 men, curtailed appropriations have kept its membership in the neighborhood of 200,000 for years. Only since last September has congress provided funds to bring the guard up to 235,000.

RETURN GIBRALTAR TO BE OUR FRIEND, SPAIN TELLS BRITAIN

MADRID, June 2 (AP).—Manuel Aznar, Spanish journalist, often regarded as spokesman for the government, declared today that Great Britain's retention of Gibraltar was "a useless offense" and added that true friendship between England and Spain will start with its return.

Manuel Aznar.

Aznar repeated his contention that Gibraltar has lost all military value and asked: "Why this insistence in useless injury to Spanish rights? Why this prolongation of the seizure of a parcel of land which is ours?" He insisted there was no need of discussions or conferences on Gibraltar because "only Spanish opinions are admissible."

"When our people was the instrument of a limping policy it was possible to exchange embraces and smiles between the robbers and the robbed. But today there stands a young country ready to sacrifice itself, to die if need be, for the honor of Spain," Aznar concluded.

BODY OF BOY, 11, FOUND HANGING FROM TRESTLE

La Junta, Colo., June 2 (AP).—The body of Antonio Benevides, 11 years old, was found hanging by the neck from a railroad trestle today. Police rounded up for questioning the youthful companions who had spent the afternoon with the victim.

Patrolman Charles Walsh said the boy may have been choked to death during a quarrel before his body was suspended by a rope. The boy's feet touched the ground and, the patrolman observed, he could have supported himself.

POPE PIUS BEGS POWERS TO KEEP WAR HUMANE

Tells of Anguish Over Noncombatants' Fate.

VATICAN CITY, June 2 (AP).—Pope Pius XII. begged Europe's fighting nations today to keep their war as humane as possible.

"We beseech both belligerent sides to remember always those duties of humanity which do not lose any of their value under war law and morality," he said.

The pontiff, replying to greetings from cardinals on the occasion of his name day, expressed dismay over the widening area of the conflict. He told the cardinals:

"We consider it proper on this occasion to reiterate and to emphasize our anguish in seeing how the treatment accorded noncombatants in more than one area is far from conforming to the principles of humanity.

"God is our witness that in declaring this truth, as we must, we are moved by neither partisanship nor consideration for any person.

"Personal considerations cannot be a guide to moral judgment concerning actions."

Golden Rule Urged on Invaders.

The pope said populations in occupied areas should be treated as, "in a similar case, an invader would like to see his own citizens treated."

He cited as elementary principles of government in occupied areas "a respect for life, honor, and the property of citizens; respect of the family and its rights, and, on the religious side, freedom of worship both in private and public, and spiritual aid suitable for the respective peoples and their languages; freedom of religious instruction and education; security of ecclesiastical property, and the privilege of bishops to correspond with their clergy and flocks in matters concerning the welfare of their souls."

The pope said he extended his paternal love "to all our sons and daughters, both those of the German populations, who are always dear to us and among whom we spent many years of our life, and to those of the allied states to which we are also bound by so many pleasing and pious memories."

Hopes Poles Will Be Comforted.

Referring specifically to the Polish nation, which he termed "sorely tried," the pontiff expressed hope that comfort would not be long coming to it "and to all other noble people."

"The present war has now reached full intensity with clashes in the open field and with progressive destruction, and its ruins mount to gigantic proportions," he said.

"But the exterior material damage cannot be compared to the collapse of individuals and the destruction of the spiritual and moral character. What is more eloquent of the terrifying sign of progressive annihilation and the overturn of spiritual values which exists than the growing disintegration of the rule of law which is substituted by force, which restrains and enchains and suffocates ethical and juridical impulses?

Peace Sponsors Dragged In.

"And, possibly, is not the clear indication of this condition the fact that in some regions people which more than any others have been the traditional sponsors of peace have been dragged into war's hurricane?"

The pope called for further prayers "that the rulers of nations may be inspired by those great thoughts of moderation and peace which come from the heart, so that the cruel conflict and tragic destruction of peoples' well-being may cease and, amid the ruins and tears, there may be marked out and opened a path toward the temple of wholesome peace, sealed not by hate and the spirit of revenge, but by the imprints of justice and noble majesty."

COUSIN OF KING TELLS HOW NAZIS STRUCK BELGIUM

Air Force Wiped Out in Only Few Hours.

PARIS, June 2.—Prince Xavier of Bourbon-Parma, brother of Empress Zita and cousin of King Leopold of Belgium, has arrived in Paris by way of Dunkirk after serving with the artillery of the fifth Belgian army corps in Flanders.

He told how the Belgians were compelled to fight blind because their entire air force was put out of action at dawn on May 10. On that day, he said, swarms of German planes suddenly appeared over Belgian airfields. Each field was violently bombed, all Belgian planes were destroyed, all the hangars set ablaze and all the runways wrecked.

Three or four hours after the start of the attack, the prince declared, not a single Belgian plane remained intact.

Waves of Armored Columns.

Describing the advance of the German armored divisions, the prince asserted "their mechanized columns arrived in waves. We had very efficient anti-tank guns and they did good service but the tanks came so swiftly that we were compelled to retire to avoid being outflanked.

"Our artillery was beyond praise. Because of the lack of airplanes our gunners were called upon to sacrifice themselves on numerous occasions. Frequently they fired at the Germans at ranges not exceeding 250 to 300 yards."

The prince added that around Antwerp fighting was hindered by the flow of Dutch refugees along all the roads. He reported that Louvain was completely destroyed by the Germans, altho it was some 15 miles behind the battlefield.

Prince Xavier declared that King Leopold's capitulation became known while the Belgians were resisting in the region of Bruges two days after Leopold had issued an order calling on every man to do his duty to the end so as to keep Belgium intact.

Continue to Battle.

When the news of the surrender was made known, Prince Xavier declared "many officers and men wept like children. Gen. De Krahe and his entire division refused to lay down their arms and rejoined the French. Judging by the oaths I heard them take all Belgian officers and men who can do so will escape to France to continue the struggle."

AND NOW THE MILITIA.

The President has asked congress for authority to call the National Guard and the reserves into active service at his discretion. The request was buried at the end of his latest message to congress seeking another billion dollars for the army and navy. It is noteworthy that everything in the message except the request for authority to call the militia had been foreshadowed in White House announcements. Why a matter of such great importance was kept from the country as long as possible is Mr. Roosevelt's secret.

The parallels with 1914-'17 are striking. Just as then, so now the rearmament program has been made the occasion for attempting to induce a war fever in the country. Mr. Roosevelt need not have made his melodramatic appearance before congress on May 16 nor to have followed that with a supplementary demand for further armament credits as if the whole bill could not have been presented at once. He knew that congress and the country were in full accord with him on the need for preparation. The most plausible explanation of his conduct was his desire to create the impression that the country is in great and growing danger of invasion and thus prepare the people mentally for participation in the war in his third term.

He has, of course, denied that his object is war, but so did his political mentor, President Wilson, in similar circumstances. Now he has followed Mr. Wilson again in preparing to call the National Guard. Mr. Wilson intimated, and it was true, that a plot was being hatched in Mexico to invade this country and it was therefore necessary to send the militia to the border. Mr. Roosevelt offers only the vaguest explanation of his request. Units of the Guard may be required, he says, "to maintain our position of neutrality and to safeguard the national defense." The words can mean anything or nothing.

Mr. Roosevelt has already sent Sumner Welles, his Col. House, to Europe to consult the heads of state in the various countries. On Washington's birthday in 1916 Col. House had drawn up a memorandum in the British foreign office pledging American support for the allies if it was needed. Nobody in this country knew about that secret agreement except Mr. Wilson. He accepted it as a statement of his policy, inserting only the word "probably" to qualify the commitment. As soon as the political conventions in June were out of the way he sent the National Guard to the border. He campaigned for the presidency as the man who had kept us out of war. Five months after his reelection and less than a year after the move to the border war was declared.

Mr. Wilson in 1914 had opposed making long term loans to the allies, but eventually changed his policy and permitted them. Mr. Roosevelt, who had been enthusiastic for the arms embargo, similarly changed his mind and demanded and obtained its repeal.

The parallel all along the line is close. The inference that Mr. Roosevelt is playing Mr. Wilson's game is difficult to avoid. Why did he avoid stating precisely why he wants the right to summon the Guard? It is to be hoped and expected that congress will insist upon an answer before any such authorization is granted. If Mr. Roosevelt knows of any great danger immediately impending he has no right to keep the facts to himself. The country should share the knowledge if only that it may be mentally and emotionally prepared for eventualities.

The people of this country want to stay out of the war. More particularly, they do not want to be led, blindfolded, into another military adventure in Europe. As long as Mr. Roosevelt refuses to tell why he wishes the power to summon the Guard, the duty of congress is to withhold the authorization. If the danger is real, congress will not hesitate to act.

ONE WAY OF HANDLING THE BOYS.

Former Gov. Richard W. Leche of Louisiana has been convicted of using the mails to defraud the state. He was to have had company, but two associates indicted with him changed their pleas to guilty and left Mr. Leche alone before the bar.

The former governor was arrested in the blowup following the discovery that the president of the state university, Dr. James Monroe Smith, had been using school bonds to swing some extensive speculations which swung back on him. Leche was accused of taking a profit of $116,571 on the purchase of trucks by the state highway department and splitting it with three men who helped him in the fraud. One is dead and two confessed.

The crime was committed against the state. The fraud raided the state treasury. State officials were involved and it was entirely a state affair—all in the family. But the indictment was a federal indictment and Leche went on trial before a federal judge. How did that come about? It was by means of a little device which if it were not first discovered for new uses by John Rogge, assistant United States attorney general working out of Washington, was first applied by him.

Leche was in the federal court because, according to the indictment, when the boys were paid off their checks were sent thru the mails. That is "using the mails in a fraud" and in come Mr. Jackson's men to take over jurisdiction. The device enables the New Deal to ride herd and keep the cattle from bolting. Or it will until the politicos burn any stamps they have and stay out of postoffices.

THE FRENCH INDUSTRIAL FRONT.

Obviously the battle of Flanders leaves the immediate fate of France dependent, more than ever before, on the courage and skill of her army. Gen. Weygand must save Paris if the nation is to go on fighting. It is equally obvious, of course, that Great Britain must defend her ports and industries against the Nazi air force if the allies are to avoid an early surrender.

These are the minimum requirements, not of victory, but of escape from defeat during the summer. If the allies are to win they must eventually do more than halt the roaring tide of the German assault.

They must mobilize their industry to replace the deficiencies in armament that the Flanders defeat disclosed. In that field Great Britain is the senior partner, but France must do her share. The Flanders defeat has dealt her industrial machine a heavy blow. Nevertheless, she is today in better condition to arm and supply her soldiers than she was when the kaiser's army was turned back at the Marne in 1914.

France's coal fields are in the north. The Nazis have them now, as they had them thruout the last world war. The bulk of French heavy industry surrounds the coal fields, most of it north of a line running west and a little southerly from Le Havre at the mouth of the Seine, thru Paris, to the Swiss border at the Rhine. The Flanders drive slashed off perhaps a quarter of this industrialized area and probably a larger proportion of the heavy industrial plants.

In 1914 the French lost more of their factories. Since the last war, mindful of that loss, they have done much to develop industrial districts, particularly munitions plants, farther in the interior of their country. And today they have the Lorraine iron fields, which Germany held until the treaty of Versailles.

The invasion so far has seriously injured but not destroyed French industry. Coal supply will be the great problem, as it was last time, for France is a coal importing country even in peacetime. Importation of coal places a heavy demand on rail transportation, to get it from the seaboard to industrial areas. French railroads, in physical facilities, are far better than they were a quarter of a century ago, altho it remains to be seen whether they have recovered from the demoralization and confusion introduced by the nationalization of the railroads under the Blum government.

WHEN LOSSES GLORIFY THE LOSERS.

The war may not make any new millionaires, but it has already unmade several old ones. A number of Chicagoans whose net worth ran easily into seven figures as recently as a few weeks ago have been reduced to the six, five, four, and even the three figure class. The drop in wheat prices did it.

Speculators have paid dearly for their conviction that wheat, with a war on, should be selling for more than a dollar a bushel. In the other war breadstuffs went to a premium early and subsequently rose to fantastic levels. Selling at 78 cents a bushel when Hitler went into Poland, wheat looked underpriced, and enough buying by speculators resulted to boost the price 12 cents.

Lack of rain last fall and winter encouraged more speculative buying and the price went to a buck and 10 cents beyond. Some of the advance was later canceled, but there was buck wheat or better thruout the winter and early spring. The final bulge to $1.15 came right after the invasion of Denmark and Norway. It was reasoned that this meant that the war would be prolonged and world war price levels might be approached.

The Scandinavian conquest was excellently timed for the farmers. Their nonrecourse government loans at 63 cents a bushel were to fall due on April 30. The rise in the price of cash wheat to $1.15 on April 22 gave the farmers the opportunity to sell the wheat for perhaps 95 cents a bushel to the country elevators, pay off the government loan of 63 cents per bushel to Uncle Sam, and pocket the difference. Two weeks later cash wheat was selling for 80 cents in Chicago, or 60 cents in the country.

Who lost when the price went down? Certainly not the farmers, for they got rid of 150 million bushels of their grain in the bulge at the end of April. The millers and other processers didn't lose because they had hedged by sales of futures to the speculators. The losers in the 35 cent drop in wheat were the speculators, who had not counted upon the possibility that such foreign outlets as Rotterdam and Antwerp would be cut off, and that the war began to look like a brief one. Thus the grain market professionals who usually have correctly appraised the effect of events upon the consumption and production of wheat made a serious miscalculation. Farmers and millers should be grateful to the speculators who paid high prices for grain futures and assumed a risk which has been costly to them. The speculators who suffered from the blitzkrieg will not be able to bear their losses more contentedly because their useful economic function has been so clearly demonstrated.

JUSTICE FOR AJAX.

[Milwaukee Journal.]

Even a dog can get justice in Milwaukee county courts.

A jury in civil court heard the case of a man who sued the owner of Ajax, a German shepherd, on the ground that the dog bit him, knocked off and broke his glasses, and in general did him damage to the extent of $2,000.

But the testimony indicated that the complainant, while Ajax was going about his affairs as any well behaved dog should, got down on his hands and knees and said "woof, woof" to the animal. Ajax objected to that and in the mêlée that followed some damage was done, tho witnesses differed as to the extent.

The jury had heard enough. It concluded that when said citizen got down on all fours and challenged Ajax, he invited the consequences that followed. No damages were forthcoming.

This case does more than vindicate Ajax. It establishes the common sense principle that citizens have some responsibility as to the judgment they use toward the dog population that is around them.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By L. L.

SNUB FOR A PRINCE OF WALES.

For the career of the late Mary Anderson, the actress about whose beauty doddering grandsires still speak in tones of reverence, see her own "A Few Memories," published in 1896, and William Winter's "The Stage Life of Mary Anderson," published in 1886.

It was a fairly short professional career, only 14 years, but the Anderson legend lingers, fragrant with Victorian ideals. She was seldom called a great actress but her own generation appears to have regarded her as little less than an angel. She was the calm and chaste Diana of her era.

Miss Anderson carried the ideal of irreproachable conduct, for which she was generally loved in this country and in England, to the point of declining an invitation to meet the prince of Wales. The First Gentleman of Europe, afterward Edward VII., was too dashing a fellow around the green rooms of London to suit Miss Anderson's notions of propriety.

"Her refusal made a world-wide sensation," writes Daniel Frohman in "Memories of a Manager," "and tho she did not intend such a result, this action had the effect of filling the theater with people who wanted to see the bold young American girl who had deliberately refused this chance of royal recognition."

The influence of the convents in which she was reared from the age of 4, after her father, a confederate officer, had been killed in the civil war, marked her life on the stage. She followed the Victorian ideal by retiring at marriage, when she was only 30, and from that time on she was completely Mrs. Antonio de Navarro, consort of a wealthy Anglo-Italian. It is worth noting that she was the star of the dedicatory performance in the Shakespeare Memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon; she then acted Rosalind in "As You Like It."

RHAPSODY IN GREEN.

I am akin to a green world,
A green world and a lowering sky;
I could lie down in the greenness
And strike my roots where I lie.

I am akin to a green world,
Green to the farthest end;
I should mix well with the cool loam
And with purple iris blend.

I am akin to the green world,
Curtained in green spun rains,
And I should strike down to the earth roots
And feel the sod's growing pains.

I should be one with the lilacs,
Knee deep in a grassy yard,
So to be borne on their fragrance
As the words of a simple bard.

I am enamored of greenness,
Of greenness cool as a kiss,
And I shall pray to the wood god
For a place to rest in like this.

S'Amuser.

It's a Way We Have in the Middle West.

In Quebec they spell it Joliette [May 24]. Or was this another coureur de bois? I resided in the Will county metropolis for some time—not as a guest of the commonwealth. Most of the towners called it Jollyet but a few ritzed it to Zholy-aye. In Wisconsin there is a burg spelled Allouez. Natives say Al-o-weez. Purists claim it should be Al-o-way.

In Egypt, one would say Ky-ro; but the division point on the Illinois Central is Kay-row. If you are buying a ticket in Peoria to the adjacent Mason county town you ask for a ducat to San Joz. If the transaction is made at San Francisco for transportation to the main town of Santa Clara county the pronunciation is San Hosey.

Layfee-et might horrify an alumnus of the Sorbonne, but it'll get you where you want to go if you are headed for the Wabash settlement. Perhaps lexicographers would hold out for Terra Hote but most Vigo county folk still call it Terry Hut. Ned Alvord.

The Last of the Alciatores.

The Louisiane of Chicago [May 23] was owned and operated for 17 years by Gaston Alciatore, whom you should remember as manager of the College Inn for seven years, from 1910 to 1917. The places called Antoine's in New Orleans and the Louisiane in New Orleans were owned by two brothers who never spoke to or visited each other. It was professional jealousy and they had a good battle while they lived. The Louisiane was owned by my father. It was far superior in every manner than Antoine's. Since that time my folks have all passed away and the Louisiane has passed out of the Alciatore hands.

Am at the Peninsular club, Grand Rapids, Mich., serving every dish that made New Orleans famous and I think I can outdo them any time and day. Your old friend, Gaston

[The last of the Alciatore line].

ONE GAL TO ANOTHER.

Let him go, lady, let him go—
He was not worth your charms;
You know he's thru—from dreams of you
He's off to another's arms!

Let him go, lady, let him go—
Be glad that you are free!
He'd never be true to such as you—
Besides, he's in love with me!

The Voice of Abraham Lincoln.

All theorists about the quality of Abraham Lincoln's voice and his style in public speaking are referred to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, March 11, 1861, page 3, column 4:

"His voice was as soft and sympathetic as a girl's. Altho not lifted above the tone of average conversation, it was distinctly audible thruout the entire hall. When after avowing his devotion to peace and conciliation, he said, 'But yet I fear we shall have to put the foot down firmly,' he spoke with deliberation and with a subdued intensity of tone, lifted his foot lightly, and pressed it with a quick but not violent gesture upon the floor. He evidently meant it. The hall rang long and loud with acclamations. It was some minutes before Mr. Lincoln was able to proceed. . . . I have never seen an assemblage more thoroly captivated and entranced by a speaker than were his listeners yesterday by the grim and stalwart Illinoisan."

COMBATING MALARIA.

WITH the discovery of the cause of malaria by Laveran in 1880 hopes were high that the malady would soon be overcome. But how was it spread? This question was answered later by Sir Patrick Manson who proved that it was transmitted to man thru the bite of infected mosquitoes. This finally opened the way for the conquest of the ailment under the slogan: "No mosquitoes—no malaria."

As most of us know, these insects require stagnant ponds or pools for breeding purposes. As soon as the adult forms emerge from the water the female starts on her search for food. Should she suck blood from a human being, animal, or bird ill with the disease—she becomes a potential "distributer."

Altho several decades have elapsed since we have known the "whys and wherefores" we do not seem to be able to rid our communities of the sources. Nevertheless, there has been a great reduction in the number of victims in many parts of the world, altho the infection continues to be a dominant health problem in the United States. It ranges from the gulf to the 35th parallel and—in some seasons—extends much farther north.

How does the infection behave? If the intermittent fever comes on daily it is termed "quotidian"; if every other day—"tertian"; if every third day—"quartan."

What progress have we made in combating the trouble once it has been planted? What drugs are available and how are they utilized? Quinine—known to the early Spanish settlers of Peru—has been our mainstay and succeeds in bringing relief when properly administered—the earlier the better. At the beginning of a seizure the physician may suggest 10 grains three times daily for three or four days. Thereafter, the same quantity is given on retiring at night—for at least eight weeks. This latter rule applies to those who are known to harbor the parasites but who may not manifest acute symptoms.

But disappointments may come and one reason is that the affliction may vary greatly in severity. Hence, a comparison of the plans of treatment may not tell the entire story. We must recall also that individuals are not alike in their resistance, some exhibiting far greater fortitude than others. In fact, in the tertian type not a few may recover spontaneously—with recurrence a remote possibility.

It is never wise, however, to expect that nature's forces will be able to destroy the parasites and every aid must be extended to the patient. We realize, also, that the disorder may be extremely virulent one year in a given locality, with a high percentage of relapses. In another season the cases will be relatively mild.

Fortunately, we have two additional compounds—each of which has considerable value. But neither should be prescribed unless a skilled physician is in charge. One of these—atabrin—is helpful frequently. Plasmochin, on the other hand, is not quite so safe. It has a tendency to produce cyanosis [blueness] and the excretion of blood elements in the urine. There is very little difference between the action of quinine and atabrin in the management of the acute attacks.

What can be done for the one whose fever reappears—indicating that he is not cured? In the so-called tertian kind quinine plus plasmochin will usually suffice, while quinidine [a derivative of quinine] may also be employed. Now, all patients do not take these preparations equally well. With quinine proper certain individuals may complain of difficult breathing, hives, dermatitis, or blood in the urine, while others react satisfactorily. Should the drug be tolerated poorly, atabrin may be substituted.

Can quinine be taken to ward off malaria? In general, this may be considered a false notion. There is no true preventive. Many can use the substance, however, without harm and perhaps escape more often than they would otherwise. But infection has come to many who have followed this program faithfully.

ON TOP OF THE WORLD.

A. R. writes: What substitute is there available that one could utilize instead of alcohol that would enable one to contemplate and meet the problems of existence with a spirit of confidence?

REPLY.

Alcohol destroys inhibitions and self-consciousness. But the same general effect may accompany good health—the result of outdoor activity, exercise, fresh air, good food, and proper elimination. The eyes will sparkle and all faculties will be alert to meet any situation.

ADHESIVE TAPE.

I. W. writes: I have always used adhesive on cuts and have never had any trouble. A friend tells me that the gum on the tape is poisonous. Kindly advise.

REPLY.

It is rarely safe to seal wounds so that air is excluded. After a cut has been thoroly scrubbed, a bit of gauze may be placed beneath the tape. The sticky coating on adhesive is not poisonous, altho some persons will exhibit allergic reactions [sensitivity] to some one of the ingredients. Such instances are rare, however.

CRACKING JOINTS.

A. P. writes: I am 14 years old and I am troubled with popping of the joints whenever I move. What causes this condition?

REPLY.

Too little joint lubrication. Heat [hot packs] and some exercise will help. Diet may be of importance—particularly an adequate supply of vitamins.

WOULD "LAY ONE ON HIS BEEZER."

Chicago, May 31.—A man got up before a club in Boston the other day and said: "There is already evidence that we are spawning a large number of a new kind of American—the youth who is afraid to fight."

That remark is a flagrant insult to the courage and character of American youth. I don't see how any self-respecting youth can restrain himself from hunting this fellow up and laying one on his beezer just to demonstrate that American youth can fight when fighting is really necessary.

How can any one be so stupid as to imagine that our youth would not rush to the colors to fight if this country were invaded?

"The sooner we get to this fight the better," said the speechmaker in Boston. If he's so anxious to get into the fight, why didn't he board the ship that recently left New York to pick up refugees in Ireland, and equip himself with gun and kit upon arriving over there, and then get right into the fighting? But that takes courage! He's the one who's afraid to fight! R. G.

KINDNESS; GOOD WILL.

Chicago, May 29.—I was traveling this afternoon on Coach 745, a South Park way-Hyde Park boulevard bus, northbound. At 1:40 p. m. the bus stopped at East 37th and South Park way for a red light. As the driver paused for this stop signal he noticed an aged Negro, evidently blind, waiting to cross the wide two drive boulevard, from the east to the west side of South Park way. With the red light still on for him, the bus driver took his coin changer, stepped out of the coach and walked over to the elderly colored man. He assisted him across the entire boulevard to the west side.

Every one in the bus at that time commented favorably on this act. I believe that, particularly in these troubled times, this action was significant of the intrinsic kindness and good will that is part of the American way. HELEN JACOBS.

UNCALLED FOR HEAT.

Chicago, May 31.—Listening to the speech of Mr. Roosevelt on the air Sunday evening, I was struck by one phrase that, to me, seemed to carry unnecessary heat. After stating that "no new group of war millionaires" would come into being, he proceeded: "The American people will not relish the idea of any American citizen growing rich and fat in an emergency of blood, etc."

It seems to me that in these troubled times a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude is out of place, especially when there is no cause for it. A coöperative spirit, appealing to the innate sense of fairness of the great majority of Americans, including business men, would have been more appropriate. IRVING EISENBERG.

ON THE STATE'S SALES TAX.

Chicago, June 1.—"Cato Edouard Noonan" is correct in his letter headed "Finds We Have No Sales Tax." The people of Illinois evidently do not know there is no sales tax legal in this state—it is just an occupational tax between the store owner and the state. That is why some stores charge 1 cent on a 15 cent sale, others 1 cent on a 20 cent sale, etc.

If you will write to the department of finance, Springfield, you will find out there is no law compelling you to pay a sales tax. I, for one, pay just for what the article is advertised—if the price says "30 cents," that is all I pay, and not 31 cents. Wake up, people of Illinois!

A CALL FOR HOOVER.

Old Bennington, Vt., May 30.—The address on national defense by former President Herbert Hoover demonstrated once again his incontestable preëminence among living statesmen. No other utterance upon the subject of our national defense and security has come from any source, lay or professional, equal to Mr. Hoover's in clear understanding and wise counsel. By comparison the President's "Fireside Chat" on the previous evening is a poor thing; a tissue of tricky evasions and panicky proposals that few thoughtful Americans will regard other than with a sense of humiliation. It is a tragedy that we face so grave a challenge under leadership so inept.

From this moment there should be one firm resolution in the mind and heart of every American who is interested in seeing the national defense made acquate and the national security unassailable. That resolution can be summed up in this brief slogan: "No third term for Roosevelt; a second term for Hoover!"

JOHN SPARGO.

West Newton, Mass., May 31.—I would like to put a motion before the people of the United States that we nominate Herbert Hoover for President and unanimously elect him.

In my opinion, Roosevelt is a great enough man to lay aside all personal political ambitions for a time and cede to a man of far greater experience in the organization of government during the emergency of war. This implies no reflection on Mr. Roosevelt. This is simply no time for politics or third term dickerings.

May I suggest that some time in June every voter in the nation write to his local paper, and that the papers publish the results of this spontaneous poll. I hereby record my vote for Herbert Hoover. [MISS] M. MOORE.

HOW TO DOUBLE THE FLEET.

Streator, Ill., May 31.—I indorse your fine editorial appearing Memorial day on "How to Double the Fleet in a Week." I am sure you are correct when you say, "The United States and Japan can come to a friendly understanding. . . . America may be able to aid China a great deal more effectively if it isn't quarreling with Japan. . . . Japan need not be driven into the German-Italian camp." Japan will be our friend if treated right and that can be done without compromise. WILLIAM E. GROTE,
Illinois Conference the Evangelical Church.

THE RUSH FOR CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, May 31.—Reading an item describing the way the aliens are standing in line to file their intentions to procure citizenship papers prompts me to write.

In my opinion, and this should be the opinion of every red blooded American, steps should be taken to put a stop to the wholesale issuing of naturalization papers to those who apply until the world is at peace in its entirety.

I think the largest percentage of those applying are trying to hide behind the skirts of American liberty and security, trying to dodge their duties as citizens of their respective countries.

Our first step toward rearming should be to ferret out and rid ourselves of the so-called "fifth column" instead of adding to it.

Our ports of immigration should be closed to all until this is done and steps taken to deport all aliens who at this time have not procured their first papers.

A VET.

RELEASE NAVY TO THE ATLANTIC.

Chicago, May 31.—The proposals outlined in THE TRIBUNE for improving United States-Japan relations and at the same time releasing our naval power for use in the Atlantic should be soundly considered by those in charge of this nation's foreign policy.

We might as well, in order to preserve our navy for service nearer home, begin to face the situation in China and elsewhere pragmatically rather than with pronouncements calculated, as in the past, to fan hatred of this country among the Japanese.

America has more than enough to handle if she wishes to defend the western hemisphere against the rapaciousness of Nazi Weltpolitik, especially should the war's outcome place British, French, and Dutch possessions on or near this continent within the Hitlerian orbit.

GUY D'AULBY.

OUR QUESTION BOX.

Chicago, May 29.—See if you can get any justifiable answers to the following:

1. Why a foreign language newspaper should be published in the United States?

2. Why any applicant for naturalization papers should be granted American citizenship when after residing in this country for 25 to 40 years only sees fit to embrace Americanization at this time? M. J. FOLEY.

INCOME FROM ESTATE.

Chicago, May 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—A father left a will leaving the home and income producing property to his son, the only child. He left the income to the boy's mother during her lifetime.

If he engages in a business venture, unincorporated, can his creditors [1] attach the property or [2] in any way affect the income of the property during the mother's life? H. W.

1. Yes as to the remainder interest assuming that the father's will does not create a "spendthrift" trust.
2. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SHARE OF ESTATE.

Chicago, May 29 [Legal Friend of the People].—Some time ago my deceased father's first cousin died leaving a considerable estate to his first cousins, who are his nearest relatives.

1. Would I be entitled to any part of my deceased father's share of this estate?
2. My father has been dead a number of years. J. A.

1. Yes, if he survived the deceased cousin. If your father died first, then the question whether the gift to him would be cut off would depend on the wording of the will.
2. Depends on the wording of the will.

COURTNEY TO GET U. S. EVIDENCE ON GAMING RACKETS

Policy Wheel Revelation Expected First.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Information compiled by federal investigators on huge gambling rackets in Chicago will be turned over to State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney and city police as soon as the government's pending income tax cases against the gamblers are closed, it was learned yesterday.

Courtney and William J. Campbell, United States attorney, coöperated thruout the government's inquiry into violation of federal laws.

Seventeen syndicate gambling chiefs and their associates, under indictment for tax evasion, are awaiting trial in federal District court. Evasions aggregating $4,703,147 are charged. Interest and penalties boost the total amount claimed to approximately $8,500,000.

The first case which is expected to be revealed in its entirety to Courtney and the police is the story of the three Jones brothers—Negro kings of the policy numbers racket, a lucrative gambling device. The Jones brothers, now rated millionaires, have arranged a settlement of their case, which will be officially closed after a routine court hearing.

Income Nearly 3 Millions.

The government tax collectors have estimated that the brothers had a total income of $2,740,789 for the years 1933 thru 1938. This income, the brothers claim, was shared with their mother, Mrs. Edward Jones, widow of a former Baptist preacher in Evanston.

Federal agents found [and reportedly told the grand jury] that the bulk of this income came from poverty-stricken colored people who played the lottery game called 'Policy." Bets as low as a penny are accepted in this game and winners are determined by drawing numbered balls from a drum.

During their investigation government agents found a wheel at 4711 Michigan avenue which was taking in between $10,000 and $15,000 a day. The location of this place and many others will be given to Courtney as soon as the Jones case has been closed.

Technicality Cuts Bill.

The Joneses, who are former dining car waiters, settled the government's claim for less than $490,000, it has been learned. Their tax liability had been computed as individuals, it is reported, whereas they showed government officials that they are in a partnership with their mother in their gambling and other enterprises.

It was a technicality that treasury officials were powerless to oppose under the law. It dropped the policy kings from high surtax brackets to a lower bracket.

One of the brothers, Edward P. Jones, who faces five years in prison and a $10,000 fine, has agreed as part of the compromise to plead guilty to a criminal charge of tax evasion. Charges against the other brothers, George and McKissack, are to be dismissed when the case is heard.

Consultant's Rôle Told.

The Jones brothers, at the time they first were under investigation, hired as a tax consultant Harry W. Bank, formerly of 33 North La Salle street. At the time Bank was reported before the federal grand jury on the Jones case, Bank was serving as vice president of the Globe Productions, a movie concern headed by James Roosevelt.

Prior to their indictment Bank quit the employ of the Jones brothers. When the brothers went to Washington to confer with treasury officials they were represented by Attorney Gerald Hornidge, ward superintendent of the 4th ward, who had been retained by their mother. Hornidge, a former assistant state's attorney, said yesterday that altho he no longer is active in the practice of law he took the case as a courtesy to Mrs. Jones, whom he has known for 16 years.

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

Select the answer which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 25.

1. Which of the following creatures has webbed feet? Guineas turkeys geese pheasants
2. This year Father's day falls on June 9 June 16 June 23 June 30
3. Your heart beat usually is slowest when you are standing lying down awake sitting lying down asleep
4. The crow's nest on a ship would be located on the mast deck galley engine room
5. The usual number of men on a polo team is 3 4 7 9
6. The portraits of famous statesmen and presidents appear on our United States of America paper money. The same man is portrayed on all bills of the same denomination. For example, Franklin's picture adorns all $100 bills. Try to match the following portraits with the bills on which they always appear. You get one point for each correct matching.

.....On all $ 1 bills [a] Jackson
.....On all $ 2 bills [b] Washington
.....On all $ 5 bills [c] Hamilton
.....On all $10 bills [d] Jefferson
.....On all $20 bills [e] Lincoln

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

1 IN 6 EXPECTED TO VOTE TODAY IN JUDICIAL RACES

One of the quietest, if not the quietest of Cook county elections in many years will occur between 6 a. m. and 5 p. m. today. It has been predicted that only about one out of every six voters will go to the polls.

Six nominees for the Superior court bench and one nominee for the Circuit bench have been named on a coalition or bipartisan ticket by the Democratic and Republican organizations, and no independent candidates filed against them. They include five Democrats and two Republicans. Four of the Democrats and one of the Republicans are now on the Superior bench. In addition there will be one associate judge of the Municipal court elected. The Republican, Edgar B. Elder, has urged that nobody "take the trouble" to vote for him as he intends to challenge the legality of the election.

Only 578 precincts in Chicago and 101 in the suburbs will be open for the election.

BRITISH PILOT, OUT OF BULLETS, DOWNS AN ENEMY

LONDON, June 2 (AP).—A British fighter pilot was credited by the air ministry tonight with "worrying" a German bomber into a crash after the Briton's ammunition had run out.

Over the Dunkirk area Saturday, it was said, the pilot encountered a German Junkers but his cartridge drums had been emptied.

The air ministry said the pilot dived at the Junkers' tail and "worried the enemy so much by a succession of stunts that ultimately he made a fatal error in trying to turn and went crashing into the ground."

LOANS

YOU CAN BORROW $100 IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.43 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, private service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.77 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

WE GUARANTEE the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. You will pay less if you pay your loan ahead of time since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law.

CHICAGO — O. E. HENDERSON, PRESIDENT

When you borrow at Household Finance, you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. (Payments shown in the table include all charges. You pay nothing more.)

Household charges only one rate—the same to everyone. This rate is 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100.

All you do to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is to acquaint us with your problem. We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives—and you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. You get the money you need in a simple, private transaction.

Fair treatment

Household shows every consideration to the borrower faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Find the loan you need in the first column of the table and read across. See how you can repay your loan with a small part of your pay check. Then phone or visit us. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

$100 a month protection

until your youngest child is grown . . . and then, $10,000 for your wife!

If you are the father of young children, you may wonder, "How can I afford all this insurance protection now when I need it most?"

Here is the way this problem has already been solved by thousands of fathers of moderate means. For example, a young father takes a New York Life 'Family Income Policy' of $10,000 (face amount) with a '20-year period'. If he dies during the '20-year period', $100 a month will be paid throughout the remainder of the 'period' . . . and then, in addition, the full face amount of the policy, $10,000 will be payable. If he outlives the '20-year period', the sum payable in event of his death would be $10,000.

For example, if death occurred immediately after the policy was issued, the total guaranteed payments would be $34,000. If he died at the end of the tenth year, the total guaranteed payments would be $22,000. If he lives to retirement age, as so many do, he can obtain, through his policy a life income for his later years.

And the premium? You will probably be surprised to learn that during the '20-year period' the rate is not very much higher than for Ordinary Life. After the 20th year it is the same as the Ordinary Life rate. In short, the premium is very attractive in view of the amount and kind of protection offered.

REVEAL DEWEY'S 1 MAN BLITZKRIEG AGAINST CRIME

Records Show 93.9 Pct. Rate of Convictions.

New York, June 2 [Special].—The annual report of the district attorney of New York county gave ample evidence today of the racket busting accomplishments that have made District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey a national figure and the leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

James J. Hines, powerful Tammany politician and ally of President Roosevelt, headed the list of racketeers whom Dewey unmasked and convicted as the political protector of the vicious policy numbers racket. Also mentioned in the report was Martin T. Manton, the bargain counter federal judge who formed his decisions to favor the highest bidder.

93.9 Per Cent Convicted.

George Groeden, acting chief clerk, officially reported that the percentage of felony convictions in 1939 was 93.9, compared with the 91.8 per cent average batted out by Dewey in 1938, his first year in office.

The result was hailed as the most successful year in the history of the office, and was viewed as a convincing answer to those critics who have been contending that the district attorney was sacrificing the duties of his office to his political aspirations.

A breakdown of the figures in the report showed that 286 persons were convicted by juries; 216 pleaded guilty during trial; 2,080 pleaded guilty before trial; 136 were acquitted by juries; 33 acquitted by direction of the judge; 306 discharged on recommendation of the district attorney; 13 were termed insane, and 160 disposed of on other indictments.

Labor Racketeers on List.

Corrupt politicians, thugs, murderers, racketeers masquerading as labor leaders, blackmailers, and various other criminal elements were among those listed as having been convicted by Dewey.

Hines' name led the list. He supported President Roosevelt before the 1932 Democratic convention while other Tammany leaders were fighting for the nomination of Al Smith. After Mr. Roosevelt moved into the White House Hines received his reward by being made chief distributor of Democratic largesse in New York.

Dewey brought Hines to trial as the political protector for the Arthur [Dutch Schultz] Flegenheimer policy racket and won a conviction in the second trial after the first had been declared a mistrial on a technicality by Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora, a Tammany Hack. Hines is now free on bail pending appeal from a 4 to 8 year sentence.

Ranked Next to Highest Court.

The district attorney's office also was credited with exposing Manton, who, as presiding judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, ranked only behind the nine justices of the Supreme court of the United States in the American judicial hierarchy.

Manton, a Democratic appointee, prostituted his high office, and after Dewey had written a letter to the chairman of the house judiciary committee suggesting impeachment, Manton was indicted, prosecuted and convicted in federal court. He is now in federal prison serving a two year sentence.

Other tenpins in the underworld who were bowled over by Dewey in 1939 included:

Salvatore Spitale, notorious underworld character, frequently arrested but never before convicted of a felony.

Fritz Kuhn, fuehrer of the German American bund whom Dewey sent to Sing Sing for dipping his fingers into bund funds.

Infamous Fences Convicted.

Moe Ducere and Jack Rubin, two of the most infamous and notorious receivers of stolen property in New York.

Dapper Dan Collins, notorious confidence man, for extortion.

Edward S. Moran, former Democratic assemblyman, convicted of taking bribes from taxi companies.

In addition, Dewey's office uncovered a "school for sabotage" run by a labor union.

The homicide bureau obtained convictions in 12 cases where the death penalty was imposed, 10 for first degree murder, and two for kidnaping. After Dewey took office 16 were convicted and sent to the electric chair for killing policemen prior to April 12, 1938. Since that date not a single policeman has been murdered.

Gov. Horner Resting at Winnetka Mansion

HORNER SETTLES DOWN FOR REST IN LAKE RETREAT

Health Is Improved, Says Doctor.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

Gov. Horner's health, which has been the subject of concern for many months, is slightly improved since he decided last February not to run for a third term as governor.

Dr. Nathan Rosen, his physician, made this statement yesterday in Winnetka, where the governor is expected to rest for the summer. The governor was brought there from Springfield by ambulance late Saturday night, arriving at the lake shore mansion at 701 Sheridan road about 3:40 a. m. yesterday.

Dr. Rosen said he expects great improvement in Horner's health after a couple of weeks of rest and quiet. He said the governor suffered from high blood pressure, which in turn had brought on a heart ailment, but that in recent weeks he had been doing remarkably well.

Doctor Discusses Case.

Asked whether there was a chance for complete recovery Dr. Rosen said: "That's hard to prognosticate in cases like his. It's difficult to tell what will happen from day to day, and of course there is the factor of age." Horner is 61 years old.

The governor was notified Saturday evening that the home which had been rented for June 1 occupancy was ready, Dr. Rosen said. The governor ordered the trip made at once. He was accompanied by private cars carrying Dr. Rosen, John Casey, his traveling secretary; Everett Van Diver, his chauffeur; Clarence, his colored butler, a cook, and Bobbie, his fox terrier.

There was no state police escort, as was stated at first. On arrival in Winnetka, however, the party asked directions from police in a squad car and the police led the party to the Sheridan road retreat, which is owned by Ayres Boal, a Chicago real estate man.

Carried in on Couch.

The governor, carried into the house on an invalid's couch, went to sleep immediately, Dr. Rosen said, and did not awaken until about noon, when he had lunch. He was ordered to rest for the remainder of the day, but is expected to make full use of the ample grounds and their choice of sun or shade, with an unhindered view of Lake Michigan about 35 feet below the bluff on which the house stands.

The house is a rambling, two story structure of frame and stucco, which Clarence, the butler, described as "the windingest house I ever saw."

The first floor is at ground level, with only a step or two descending to the spacious lawn, which runs to the bluff's edge dropping off to the beach. The trees surrounding the house are alive with birds and from the easy chairs which were set out on the lawn yesterday there were glimpses of freighters passing far out in the lake, a speeding motorboat, one or two drifting sailboats, and a flock of ducks a few hundred yards offshore.

House in Quiet Seclusion.

The highway is approximately 100 yards from the house, and cars turning in follow a winding drive which ends in a circle just beyond the front entrance. There is no noise from passing traffic.

Casey, who returned with Dr. Rosen to Springfield yesterday afternoon, said the governor would keep in touch with business by mail, or, in urgent matters, by special messenger. The telephone had not yet been put in service yesterday.

The only visitor yesterday was Henry Straus of Glencoe, a cousin of the governor.

Bobbie spent his time barking at the waves and chasing chipmunks.

Clarence sat in the sun.

Van Diver said the lawn would be a nice place for a game of croquet.

Judge William R. Green Decides to Retire at 84

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Judge William R. Green of the Court of Claims has notified President Roosevelt that he intends to retire. Judge Green, who is 84 years old and a Republican, was appointed to the court in 1928 after 17 years in congress as a representative from Iowa.

FUND OF $150,000 FOR DEMOCRATIC CONCLAVE RAISED

Robert J. Dunham, who accepted from Mayor Kelly the assignment to raise the $150,000 pledge as the price of bringing this year's Democratic national convention to Chicago, said yesterday that the task had been completed.

"The entire amount has been subscribed," he said. "Some of it already has been turned over to the national committee and the rest of it will be available whenever it is called for."

Dunham said the money raising was accomplished entirely by his personal solicitation. Many of the contributions came from lines of business that will benefit from the expenditures of the convention crowd, but others came from men to whom the appeal was made entirely on civic grounds.

UNITED CHARITIES JOINS IN TEST OF RELIEF LAW

Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities of Chicago, said yesterday that the organization is cooperating with the Jewish Charities of Chicago and the Salvation Army in sponsoring an action begun Saturday before the Illinois Supreme court to test residence requirements for relief clients.

The action, brought in the names of five Chicagoans, asked the court's permission to file a petition for a writ of mandamus ordering the Chicago relief administration to certify the five persons for relief aid. They were refused relief because they had lived out of the city in 1937 and 1938.

Under a state law which went into effect last July a person must have lived in Chicago for three consecutive years prior to applying for relief to be eligible for payments. Hunter said the law works a hardship on persons who move around looking for work in different localities and that the charitable organizations consider it unfair.

FIRES HOMEWOOD COUNTY POLICE DISTRICT HEAD

Lieut. Fred Mulhausen, police hero who for several years has been in command of the important Homewood county highway police district, has been fired from the force, it was learned yesterday. He was replaced by Lieut. Morris Levitan.

Lieut. Fred Mulhausen.

First reports gave the affair an air of mystery, hinting that it was politically inspired. Lieut. Levitan lives at 1300 South Spaulding avenue in the 24th ward. Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien denied last night that politics had anything to do with Mulhausen's dismissal.

"I let him out as a disciplinary measure," said the sheriff. "I issued an order, and he disobeyed it." The sheriff declined to say what the order was, but he asserted it was routine and unimportant. Lieut. Mulhausen in July, 1932, won the Tribune hero award of $100 for killing one bandit and capturing another.

"AVOID SELF TREATMENT"

is the warning of the United States Public Health Service to sufferers from either Gonorrhea or Syphilis!

THE United States Public Health Service says: "Only a doctor or clinic knows how to treat a venereal disease. Do not attempt self treatment—do not go to the drug store. Drug clerks have no medical training—they do not know how to cure you. Drug store remedies and self treatment are worthless!

"Only the doctor," continues this United States government authority, "will know when you are completely well. He has tests which enable him to discover whether or not you are cured." And such tests are vitally necessary if you are to keep gonorrhea from leading to a sight-destroying eye infection, crippling arthritis, sterility, stricture, or serious prostate, bladder and other troubles! And syphilis from resulting in heart failure, blindness, deafness, paralysis or even insanity!

So, if you know or suspect that you have a venereal infection, take no chances with self treatment but secure expert medical attention at once! Such attention can be obtained very inexpensively from the Public Health Institute, whose doctors have given more than 5,300,000 examinations and treatments for gonorrhea and syphilis in the past 20 years!

PRE-MARRIAGE EXAMINATIONS

With separate departments for men and women, the Public Health Institute is especially well fitted to make the medical tests which the law requires every couple to have before a marriage license can be obtained. A thorough physical examination, including all necessary laboratory tests, costs $3.00 per person. Those examined before 2 P.M. (at 159 or 169 N. Dearborn St.) can have certificates same day.

Because the Public Health Institute was founded by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, its charges are remarkably low for the expert treatment given. A thorough examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including blood tests, urinalysis and gonorrheal smears, costs very little, while individual treatments are easily within the reach of every wage earner.

Furthermore, even those temporarily short of money can arrange to be treated without undergoing an embarrassing credit investigation or signing any papers whatsoever!

Does Your Breath Broadcast—"I WEAR FALSE TEETH"?

Play Safe—Be Sure—Use Poligent

People who wear plates or bridges often suffer from a special kind of bad breath. Dentists call it—"denture breath."

You won't know if you have it—but it can spoil your happiness. Friends will shudder—people avoid you! And the worst of it is that ordinary brushing may not prevent it. Neither will mouth washes. For the odor comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum soaks up germs and decay bacteria and causes a vile odor that you cannot detect.

One thing that definitely stops "denture breath" is daily use of Poligent! This new brushless cleaner has won the approval of thousands of dentists and users. Poligent not only purifies false teeth—but also removes all stain, tarnish and food deposits. Makes breath sweeter—plates look better and feel better. Costs only 30¢ at any drug store and lasts for many weeks. Money back if not delighted.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic
Do this daily: Add a little Poligent powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes—Rinse—and it's ready to use!

Muscle Tactics Described in Bartender Probe.

Lane said. "Our employés were beaten and threatened with death. If we picketed a place owned by the gang our pickets were assaulted.

"Finally Nitti told me that if I would put Louis Romano on the pay roll of the union as an organizer Nitti would see to it that my fellows would not get hurt. In fear of my life and my men's lives, I consented.

"Little by little Romano became my boss because he had the mob back of him. I frequently was told my life would not be worth a nickel if I crossed Romano. Eventually Nitti's men put me out and promoted Romano to the presidency of the union.

Interested Only in Money.

"None of the mob is interested in honest unionism. They are interested in the treasury of $125,000 and the annual income of nearly $200,000 a year. They also want the union to promote sales of brands of liquor favored by them and beer from breweries owned by them.

"Nitti's and Humphreys' men have acquired absolute control of other unions in the meanwhile and they had dreams of rich income thru the trade and crafts council which was to control the entire liquor industry. This had all allied crafts affiliated with our union as well as others such as janitors, elevator operators, and all other employés of hotels, clubs, taverns, and night clubs. I broke up that council.

"Nitti's men got control of the other unions the same way they did the bartenders' union—by putting a few of their men in first, and then working from the inside."

Lists Dominated Unions.

McLane told the prosecutors that the unions now controled by the Nitti gang include the following: Bartenders No. 278, local 25 of the Waiters, local 38 of the Hotel Clerks and Auditors, local 88 of the Cooks, local 129 of the Penny Lunchroom and Institution Employés, local 356 of the Colored Waiters, local 376 of the South Chicago Bartenders, local 394 of the South Chicago Waitresses and Cooks, local 444 of the Colored Waiters, Bartenders, and Miscellaneous; local 450 of the Bartenders and Miscellaneous Employés, local 484 of the Waitresses, local 594 of the Miscellaneous union, local 602 of Checkroom Employés, and local 629 of Soda Fountain and Luncheonette Employés, and the Waitress' alliance.

The "holding company" thru which all these unions are operated as a unit, according to McLane, is known as the Local Joint Board and Council of Chicago. Romano, whom McLane described as a former Capone bodyguard, has been made president of the council.

Protége of Stanton.

Sanders, the missing business agent, was said to have been a protége of Stanton, a former beer runner. Prosecutor Crawford said he would make inquiries concerning the Sanders case because it may fit into the story told by McLane of Nitti's dream of becoming the "legitimate drink king."

According to the information given the prosecutor yesterday, Sanders' wife, Margaret, was told her husband went away on a drunk. She was put on the pay roll of the Waiters' union for a few months, Crawford learned, and then was told to go and take care of herself.

SUBPENA SMITH'S EX-SECRETARY IN SLUSH FUND QUIZ

BY HAL FOUST.

Mrs. Norbert Metz Spengler, former secretary of the late F. Lynden Smith, was subpenaed yesterday to appear in Springfield tonight before a house committee investigating scandals and extravagances in the state administration during Gov. Henry Horner's invalidism. The subpena was served in her apartment at 7715 South drive.

Mrs. Spengler, a bride, was the keeper of Smith's "little black book," his record of slush fund collections and disbursements. The book was safeguarded by Smith during his last months but has been lost since his mysterious death March 9 in a bathtub in a Springfield hospital.

The subpena commands Mrs. Spengler to produce all memoranda she has relating to the 2 per cent assessment on salaries of state employés and the shakedown of interests doing business with the state.

Fired from Job.

Mrs. Spengler was Smith's confidential secretary from 1933 until Dec. 22, 1939, when she was fired, according to statehouse gossip, at the insistence of Gov. Horner. This was at the beginning of the break between Smith and the clique known as the sick room regency, headed by Samuel L. Nudelman, state director of finance.

In the following two months Smith departed for Florida as a political exile for the duration of the primary campaign.

Tonight's meeting of the investigation committee, which is headed by Representative Clinton Searle [R., Rock Island], will be among its last. The special session of the legislature, which convened April 30, is expected to end this week.

Assembly Convenes Tomorrow.

The senate and house will convene tomorrow after a week-end recess. An old age pension bill, increasing the maximum allowance from $30 a month to $40 a month, is to receive final action—house approval of senate amendments. The Searle committee is expected to report that this increase is a fiction in that no additional funds have been raised to pay the state's share of $2,500,000 a year costs, and that expenses of state government now are exceeding revenue by $1,500,000 a month.

A possibility of an immediate second special session was seen yesterday. Two matters arose which may terminate in a decision to summon the legislature again. They were:

1. Some doubt that existing laws give cities sufficient authority to enlarge their airports and take advantage of government allocations for pilot training.

2. Mayor Kelly's warning to the Illinois emergency relief commission that unless it increases allotments to the city to aid sponsorship of Work Projects administration projects, legislation to raise new relief funds may be necessary.

COME BACK, ALL'S FORGIVEN! BIOFF IS TOLD BY UNION

Browne Also Defends Ex-Convict Circella.

Louisville, Ky., June 2 [Special].—George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés and Moving Picture Machine Operators, an A. F. of L. affiliate, today defended two of his organization's key executives, Willie Bioff, the pander, now in jail at Chicago, and Nick Circella, Chicago ex-convict.

The I. A. T. S. E., which is the dominant union in the entertainment world, will open its convention here tomorrow with William Green, A. F. of L. president, as the principal speaker.

Browne, in his first extended comment on the status of his two shady subordinates, whose criminal records have precipitated widespread charges of racketeering against the A. F. of L., contended that both Bioff and Circella had proved efficient union men.

Bioff to Get Job Back.

Browne indicated that Bioff would return to work in the union as soon as he is released from jail in October. Bioff was committed April 15 to finish sentence for collecting money from a prostitute.

"Simply because they dug up an 18 year old misdemeanor doesn't mean Bioff is wrong now," Browne said. Asked if the case of Bioff, who also is under federal indictment in Los Angeles for income tax evasion, would come up at the convention, Browne replied:

"You'll hear of it. You'll hear factual reports on the progress he has made, on the work he has done for the union."

Circella "Good Union Man."

As for Circella, who in 1916 was sentenced to jail in Chicago on charges of assault to commit murder and assault to rob, Browne said: "He is a good union man, too. His troubles were some 20 years ago."

Circella is now Browne's representative in Chicago. In 1922 Circella was indicted in Chicago for robbing a bank messenger, but the case was dropped.

Browne disclosed that John P. ["Big"] Nick of St. Louis, was no longer first vice president of the stagehands union, the post having been assumed by Harland Holmden of Cleveland. It was Nick's brush with the law in St. Louis that has involved the Post-Dispatch of that city in a contempt of court case.

CHINESE RESIST JAP DRIVE; BALK RIVER CROSSING

HONGKONG, June 2 (AP).—Chinese news dispatches reported tonight that Chinese troops have resisted successfully Japanese attempts to cross the Han river in northern Hupeh province, the western boundary of Japanese penetration in that sector. The battle is continuing, the dispatches said, adding that 400 Japanese had been surrounded.

The Japanese sought to cross the river near Siangyang, about 100 miles north of Ichang, Yangtze river port. A highway runs from Siangyang to Ichang.

Chinese quarters in Chungking, about 300 miles west of Ichang, attached much importance to the fighting, declaring that if the Japanese succeeded in driving southward and capturing Ichang it would give them a convenient base for constant air raids on the Chinese capital.

In Hongkong, the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations asked President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull in Washington asking an immediate application of an embargo on war materials for Japan.

HOLD 2, SEARCH FOR 3D IN YOUNG MOTHER'S RAPE

Two men were being held as alleged rapists by Sheffield avenue police last night on complaint of a young woman, the mother of two children. A third man is being sought.

The victim said the three men forced her into their car early yesterday as she left a tavern in the 1400 block in Fullerton avenue, drove her into the northwest part of the county and attacked her. Then they drove her home, she said.

The two suspects denied her charges. They are Benny Puchalski, 22 years old, 2435 Clybourn avenue, and Emil Bratau, 21, of 2111 North Racine avenue.

Good Morning!

The ads speak truly. . . . "Typhoon" offers quite the worst mess of raging waters and all 'round rip roaring storm effects since "Hurricane."

For good measure the film throws in a forest fire started by narsty South sea incendiaries—same to be quenched by aforementioned mess of raging waters.

"Typhoon" divides its time between storms and farce.

It starts with a tempest at sea, during which a drunken captain's valorous small daughter is lashed to a raft and consigned to the care of Providence—which casts her on an unnamed South sea island. . . .

Here, grown to womanhood—a feminine Tarzan of sorts—in a sarong! —she is to be discovered by Skipper Joe, Johnny Potter, a human derelict [but SO handsome, girls!] and their band of native pearl hunters. . . .

The lady of the island has for years lived in solitary splendor save for the companionship of a huge ape that sees all, hears all, and would tell all if he could. The two have built them an habitation at the top of a tall forest tree—with elevator service and everything. Primitive, of course, but adequate. . . .

Now Johnny Potter, discharged from the navy, and brooding over the fact, had been drinking himself to death on the island of Mahiulu—till discovered and shanghaied by his pearl hunting one-time buddy, Skipper Joe. . . .

Let's be brief.

Dea reforms him. . . . The trouble which descends upon the three whites is brought about by a South sea nabob who, wroth over certain things, appears in their midst with a bevy of followers and gets funny with firebrands. . . . Then—ENTER STORM! And some storm it is. But the E. is vurr' H.

"Typhoon" is well acted, unbelievable, and—sort of fun.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Bagdad-on-the-Pacific

Hollywood, Cal., June 2.—Barbara Hutton tells friends that Ricardo Cortez is very charming. . . . The two flickers which have had the biggest advance steam-up are Warner's "All This and Heaven, Too," with Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, and "The Mortal Storm," with Margaret Sullavan and Jimmy Stewart. Both of them look like B. O. naturals.

Virginia Peine.

Barbara Stanwyck, in landing the lead opposite Gary Cooper in the newest Frank Capra picture, burned up every top flight actress in town. Not since the femme stars were battling for the Scarlett O'Hara rôle has there been such grim competition for a lead. . . . Virginia Peine, former Chicagoan, will get married next month in New York, according to letters she has sent locals —to Walter Hirshon. . . . Louise Stanley's big crush is a Texas oil man, John Wrightman. . . . Now that Peter Hayes is out of town, Mary Healy is night clubbing with Harvey Seymour.

George Jessel, here now, digging up a syndicate to buy the Brooklyn Dodgers with George M. Cohan. . . . John Hertz Jr., with Irene Coleman, who is a looker. She is signing with Joe Pasternak for a part in the Deanna Durbin picture. . . . Frances Robinson and Bob Riskin still at it. . . . Laverne Andrews, of the sisters, and Rufus Davis are in tune. . . . Ern Westmore escorting Warner Starlet Elizabeth Earle. . . . Bette Davis and Anatole Litvak discovering each other.

Mary Beth Hughes, the kid who gets her big break in "Four Sons," is going places with Frank Swan. Director Archie Mayo told Darryl Zanuck after "Four Sons" was previewed "a picture like that is worth directing for nothing." Said Zanuck: "We have another script even better than that, if you want to direct one for nothing."

Dive bombing has been the big development of the war. Well, in "Hell Divers," released in 1931, the United States navy planes did some dive bombing that made your hair stand on end. In one sequence, the "Hell Divers" sank a battleship in less than 11 minutes with just such a concentrated dive bombing attack as the German Stukas have made famous. Wally Berry was starred in that picture, and in support were Clark Gable, Conrad Nagel, and Dorothy Jordan. The United States navy authorities should have M.-G.-M. run the picture for them at Washington, D. C., to refresh official minds on something that the navy had perfected nine long years ago.

The J. Edward Brombergs are adding a nursery to their home, for the arrival of Sir Stork in August. . . . Despite the fact that he's proposed, and despite the fact that she is very fond of him, make a small bet that Norma Shearer will not marry George Raft. Her friends say that she'll never marry again. . . . Mickey Rooney with Margaret Young one night, Rita Quigley the next. . . . Casey Robinson and his missus just escaped death in a Manila train wreck. . . . The Johnny Mercers have adopted a baby girl. . . . George Abbott is making passes at Betty Field. . . . Since her one day marriage to Oren Haglund, Priscilla Lane has been stepping with Perc Westmore. . . . Jackie Cooper and Bonita Granville are going steady.

Band Concerts Draw Throngs to Grant Park

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Sunset and evening star and music tinged with their splendor—it is not Chicago's citizenry that will pass them up when the best things in life are free. That was amply demonstrated again last night by the thousands who thronged to Grant park, listened attentively and applauded for two happy hours as Glenn Cliffe Bainum's and the Senn High school bands paraded their melodious wares in the third of 101 lakeside concerts which the city is to enjoy nightly [and on Sunday and holiday afternoons as well] thru the summer.

Other thousands in the afternoon heard the Chicago Woman's Concert band, with Lillian Poenisch conducting and Genevieve Kaleth as solo trumpeter, and the Schurz High school band, under Clayborne Harvey's direction.

Pierre Andre, announcer at the evening concert, voiced the mood of the crowd, as the nodding heads testified, in his introductory commentary. Said Andre, "Remembering that clouds of sadness and strife darken other skies, it seems good that we can gather here under the stars to listen to good music." Overhead, as he spoke, an airplane with a wash of silver light on its wings, circled in salute.

The sun was making a great golden to-do of its leave-taking as Charles Ostergren raised his baton and the Senn band swept with youthful vim and vigor into Texidor's "Amparito Roca" march. From the outset it was evident that the Senn boys and girls were not going to lose their bid for the $100 memberships the Chicago Federation of Musicians is offering to the school band or orchestra judged the best at the end of the season.

They played the overture from Von Weber's opera, "Oberon," Gounod's "Faust" ballet music, Moszkowski's "Malaguena," the overture from Rossini's opera, "The Barber of Seville," and Tschaikowsky's stirring "Marche Slav."

Obviously June was doing her gracious best to make up for the bad behavior of the July night last summer that drenched the park at the Bainum concert. And the conductor and his musicians reciprocated in kind with such selections as Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee" and "Dance of the Tumblers," Glinka's "Jota Aragonaise," the last movement from the Saint-Saëns First symphony, and, playing it for the first time in Chicago, Weinberger's "Mississippi Rhapsody."

Tonight's free concert will be by the Columbia Broadcasting system's orchestra, directed by Carl Hohengarten, and the Calumet High school orchestra, with James Thatcher conducting.

Numbers by the CBS orchestra:

Triumphal March from "Aida".....Verdi
Plantation Rhapsody.....Russell
"Summertime," from "Porgy and Bess".....Gershwin
Three Dances from "Henry VIII.".....German
Rainbow Suite, for Piano and Orchestra.....Kahler
Hunter Kahler, pianist.
Satin Waltz.....Edelstein
Excerpts from "Naila" and "Coppélia".....Delibes
Medley.....Herbert
Coronation March from "The Prophet".....Meyerbeer

The Calumet orchestra's program:

March of the Priests, from "Athalia".....Mendelssohn
Overture to "The Creatures of Prometheus".....Beethoven
Minuet and Farandole, from Suite, "L'Arlésienne".....Bizet
Sarabande.....Bach

Excerpts from "The New Moon".....Romberg

The bandshell is opposite 11th street. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock.

Marguerite Porto, Soprano, Gives Last of Debut Recitals

BY CECIL SMITH.

The last début recital of the waning indoor musical season was given in Kimball hall yesterday afternoon by Marguerite Porto, soprano. Her program included songs from the 17th, 19th, and 20th centuries, with strong emphasis upon French music, and arias from Massenet's "Manon" [the gavotte], Puccini's "La Bohème" [the "Addio"], and Charpentier's "Louise" ["Depuis le jour"].

Miss Porto is another of the large number of singers who endeavor to embark upon an interpretative career without first developing a satisfactory and reliable vocal technique. Her rather small lyric voice lacks focus to such an extent that she cannot achieve a flowing melodic line, nor can she be sure of maintaining an even volume from one note to the next.

No Third Term.

An Arts club member expressed regret to Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed that she had resigned as president of the club.

"I'm a good Republican," said Mrs. Goodspeed [her husband is treasurer of the Republican national committee]. "I've been president eight years and I don't believe in a third term!"

White Paper.

The Austin H. Niblacks of Lake Forest recently called in a local plasterer to repair the ceiling of the living room, which had loosened because of a plumbing leak. The repairs were made while Mrs. Niblack was out of the city, and, since there was only one servant in the house, the plasterer had pretty free run of the place. His bill, in pencil on ruled paper:

I finished the job if it satisfactory send 15.00 to me and deduct the price of one drink which I took from your decanter which I hope you will please excuse.

I, too, have my preferences
Like you, but the difference is
I'm beer, while you're Tom-and-Jerries.

The Reader's Digest's my speed,
And the Trib supplies me first editions;
Stockings, suits, shoes, and hats

And lush drawings by Petty,
I get places via the trolley;
Stuff by Benton and Wood
To me constitute good—

Favorite drink: Coca-Cola,
Favorite bandsman: Prof. Kay Kyser;
The person I shun
Is the borrowing one,
That's how I remain a sadder—wiser.

Stokowski Note.

The arrival of the fabulous Leopold Stokowski in town recently to act as a one man judging committee in the contest he is holding to select the personnel of an all-American youth orchestra which he plans to take to South America was preceded by a lengthy memorandum as to how his stay was to be organized. This even included detailed advice on the proper preparation of his breakfast eggs. Noted for his imperious impatience, Stokowski listened to the young contestants all day without even going out for lunch and he treated them with a consideration that captivated them.

Brooks McCormick's Wedding to Eastern Girl to Be on June 26

BY JUDITH CASS.

BROOKS McCORMICK, second of the Chauncey McCormicks' three sons, will receive his degree at Yale university the middle of this month, and a few days later he will become a bridegroom. The date of his marriage to Miss Hope Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander T. Baldwin of the Corner, Bedford Hills, N. Y., has been set for Wednesday, June 26.

The ceremony is to take place at 6:30 o'clock in the evening in St. Matthew's church, Bedford Hills, with a supper following at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Bisbee, in the same town. The Rev. Arthur Ketchum, rector of St. Matthew's, and the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody of the Groton school, of which the bridegroom and his father are graduates, will officiate.

Mr. McCormick is to be his son's best man. Charles Deering and Roger S. McCormick, brothers of the bridegroom, will usher, as will the bride's brother, Alexander T. Baldwin, and a cousin of the bridegroom, Richard E. Danielson Jr. of Boston. Mr. Danielson's sister, Miss Marion Danielson, a debutante of last season, will be among the 11 bridesmaids, all easterners. They include Miss Loise Baldwin, a sister of the bride. Another sister, Miss Joan, will be maid of honor.

William McCormick Blair to See Son Graduated.

Edward McCormick Blair, who is being graduated from the Harvard school of business administration, is to be the only other Chicagoan among the ushers. His younger brother, Bowen, will receive his degree at Yale on the 18th, so the William McCormick Blairs, as well as Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, will be in New Haven on that occasion. Mrs. Blair will stay on in the east until after the McCormick-Baldwin ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick will go east in about 10 days to attend the marriage on the 15th in Beverly Farms, Mass., of his niece, Miss Frances Fabyan, and Howland Davis. Miss Fabyan is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Marshal Fabyan of Boston. After her son's marriage, Mrs. McCormick will go to the McCormick summer home at Seal Harbor, Me.

Birthday Dinner Tonight for William G. McCormick.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick are having a quiet family dinner tonight to celebrate the 89th birthday of his father, William G. McCormick, who was the first of the large McCormick clan to be born in Chicago. He was born here in 1851, a year after his parents and older brother, the late Robert S. McCormick, arrived from Virginia.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick's grandfather, the late William Deering, was a Chicago citizen, too, so the McCormick sons have the unusual distinction of being fourth generation Chicagoans on both sides of the family. William McCormick has witnessed the growth of Chicago almost from the time it was incorporated as a city. When he was a boy he started for school on his pony and crossed the river on a barge guided by an Indian. Brooks McCormick was named for the late Mrs. William McCormick, who was Eleanor Brooks of Baltimore.

Gertrude Schnur to Wed Arthur D. Bradbury in Fall.

At a luncheon on Saturday at their summer home near Deerfield Mr. and Mrs. William V. Schnur of Glencoe announced the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude, to Arthur D. Bradbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bradbury, also of Glencoe.

Miss Schnur attended Wellesley college and was graduated from the University of Southern California last year. Mr. Bradbury prepared for college at Elgin and is a graduate of Purdue university. The wedding will take place in October.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Drew of St. Paul, Minn., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Helen Louisa, to Robert Kimball Richardson of Beloit, Wis. Miss Drew, a niece of former Dean Rollin D. Salisbury of the University of Chicago, is professor of English at Rockford college. The wedding will take place in July in St. Paul. Miss Drew will

The Fate of the Darmenys

By Elizabeth York Miller

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Knowing she has only a few months to live, Madge Darmeny gathers her family around her to select an heir. Geoffry is her favorite nephew on her husband's side, as he gets around her with his charm. Then there is Frank, another of her husband's nephews, who is unhappily married to her own niece, Leda. Frank has an 8 year old daughter, Betsy, by a former marriage. Shirley Westall, her secretary, takes care of Betsy when she visits her. Amelia Pennyfeather, an eavesdropping dependent relative, lives with Madge, but the others are invited for a visit. Alfred Barnes, a lifelong friend and solicitor, tells her of Geoffry's latest scrape. He has given a bad check for a diamond bracelet. Madge notices Leda with a diamond bracelet, and Leda claims it is a gift from a girl friend. Frank is furious that Leda should have accepted such an expensive gift, but does not suspect Geoffry. Madge tells her family that she is going to have to retrench on her allowances to them and suggests that they all live with her to save expenses and also because the house is large enough for all of them. Amelia tells Leda that Madge is up to something she doesn't want her family to know about.

INSTALMENT VII.

FUTURE PLANS.

Leda gave a violent start. "What makes you think Aunt Madge telephones to a detective agency?" she demanded.

"O, the way she does it," said Amelia importantly. "Gives her own name, but you don't know who she's talking to. And so cunning about it."

"I know it's a long distance call, but I haven't yet been able to find out the number. She always waits until I'm out of the room before she asks for it. And then the next day or so she goes up to London, not saying what for, in particular."

"Maybe it's to see Mr. Barnes," said Leda.

Amelia shook her head violently.

"I know for a fact it isn't that, because the second time she did it he rang up wanting most particularly to speak to her, and when I told him that to the best of my knowledge she was in London, he wanted to know where he could find her. Of course I wouldn't tell him."

"And she acts so queer at times, Leda. All sort of dreamy and I've caught her talking to herself. She's had that copy of her will out of the safe several times, too. Once she pored over it the whole evening."

Leda pricked up her ears. "Aunt Madge has always been secretive about her will. Of course, it's none of our business, really, how she leaves her money, and she's not terribly old. She may live for another twenty years or more. But I've often wondered . . . ?" She threw Amelia a plaintive, questioning look.

"I know what I can expect," Miss Pennyfeather said smugly. "Five hundred pounds cash, thirty shillings a week annuity, and the use of one of the cottages for life. Madge told me that time I lost all my savings in the Cocos Islands expedition and was so worried about the future. It's very kind of her, but after all, I'm only a distant relation. Our mothers were first cousins once removed, you know."

"But what about Frank, Geoffry, and me?" Leda asked anxiously.

"I don't know. She didn't show me the will."

Leda looked around and lowered her voice.

"Isn't there any way you could find out?" she whispered. "For—for Geoffry's sake. You're fond of him, Amelia. We—he wants to know where he stands, and it's only right we should both know."

"I know where she keeps the key of her safe," Amelia said, uncertainly. "But it mightn't be so easy to get hold of it. And it would be a terrible risk. O, no, Leda, I couldn't do that!"

Leda smiled wisely to herself.

She had roused Amelia's insatiable curiosity; let Geoffry do the rest.

Amelia, like most others of her sex, could be putty in Geoffry Darmeny's hands if he chose to take the trouble.

The household at Beechbourne outwardly settled down on the plan which Madge Darmeny had arranged.

Leda, apparently was the only rebel, but even she was careful at first to conceal her feelings. It wasn't much fun to have her comfortable allowance snapped off with no warning, and small consolation to be told that thenceforth her husband must supply her with spending money. That, in fact, Frank was already doing. He paid Betsy's school bills and he gave Leda as much as he could, leaving himself barely enough to live on. He did not repine at being poor, but he had some very fine, public spirited schemes in mind which would take a lot of capital if ever they were to be set in motion.

A little enviously he regarded Beechbourne Park, wondering what its future was to be, wishing he dared to suggest to Mrs. Darmeny that times were changing and that in a new era which demanded the stately homes of England were, in many cases, obsolete survivals, something more than the insignia of a rich man's pleasure and self-aggrandizement.

Leda stood the peace of the countryside and the visits of charity and the church guild meetings just as long as she could, and then her true ...e began to assert itself.

"Of course you may invite your friends here," her aunt told her, when she complained that she was cut off completely from her former life and associates.

So Leda promptly invited some of them for the day, and they came, a rowdy gang who behaved as they would never have dared in any decently run hotel. They preëmpted drinks without a single by-your-leave, ordered the servants about, dropped cigaret stubs and ashes wherever handy, and spread themselves over the terrace, grounds, and tennis courts as offensively as they pleased. They even picked Madge's choicest flowers.

Lunch had to wait three-quarters of an hour because they couldn't be torn from their cocktails. The meal was ruined, but as far as the vandals were concerned, that did not matter. They did not want to eat, anyway, and smoked continuously between the courses.

It was the first time Madge Darmeny had seen Leda quite obviously under the influence of alcohol, and it was a terrible shock to her.

Hurriedly the frightened old woman bundled Betsy off to the Westalls' cottage for the day. Frank had already disappeared in that direction. He went promptly when the invasion arrived.

But Geoffry, noble lad, stuck to the ship and let Aunt Madge know how thoroly he disapproved of the whole scandalous business.

Deliberately he allowed Leda to get tight and thoroly disgrace herself, pointing out to Madge—and not without some reason—that it was Frank's business to keep an eye on her, not his.

O, indeed, Geoffry was very noble, the one dignified figure in that mad assemblage. Amelia Pennyfeather, lurking in the outposts, felt her meager bosom swell with pride for the dignified way in which he attempted to cope with the situation.

Mr. Mortgage, the vicar, coming to tea as was his habit on a Sunday afternoon, turned tail on the threshold when he found such a party in progress.

By this time there was no sign of Madge Darmeny. She had retired to her own rooms.

Down at the Westall cottage Frank and Betsy were having a lovely time.

Sunday was Shirley's day off from Beechbourne, and she cooked the midday meal, which was dinner with them, Betsy delightedly helping her.

In the front parlor Roger Westall and Frank argued to their hearts' content over the old age problems still turning the world upside down. Each, of course, had a cure for all ills. War was a little more than in the air; it menaced the whole of civilization, and both men felt the situation keenly.

Roger Westall was frail in health, as Shirley had said, but vigorous enough mentally.

Frank was spending a great deal of time in his company, and often, if it were in the evening. Shirley was there, sitting on a hassock beside her father's chair, drinking in their words of wisdom.

Shirley, at this time, was emotionally disturbed, but the only way it showed was in a heightening of her beauty. Laughter came readily to her lips. She felt unwontedly happy, and life seemed full of the most amazing possibilities.

For one thing, Mrs. Darmeny seemed to like her more and more, and had developed toward her an almost maternal tenderness during the last two weeks. Tho the Westalls were poor, their blood was of the best in England, and where money was concerned Madge Darmeny was too much of a thorobred, herself, to be snobbish.

Shirley was a lady to her fingertips and her manners were faultless. She was high spirited, gay, charming, but completely free of modern vulgarity. She had the rare gift of being able to listen as well as take her own part in intelligent conversation, and observing her with Betsy, Aunt Madge made a shrewd guess that she possessed all the best qualities which make for a wife and mother.

Here, in Mrs. Darmeny's opinion, was a rare tool to her hand, of the finest tempered steel, and of which she intended to make immediate use. If Geoffry needed steadying, and even if he did not, Shirley Westall was the ideal wife for him.

Parents Must Guard Vitality of Youngsters

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We grownups marvel at our children sometimes, at their vitality, at their endurance. They keep on the go and don't seem to feel fatigue.

Usually they don't, until afterward. Children keep going on the full tide of their enthusiasm for play, their need for activity.

We can't depend on our children to stop or rest at the right moment. We are the ones who must know when they've had enough.

With really hot weather not far ahead, it's good to be forewarned on this point. Even doctors have noticed that some children show less gain from a summer outdoors than they should, due to overactivity.

But not only in health will the results be better if you conserve your child's energy in the warm months. Your behavior problems will be reduced.

Both heat and fatigue are a drain on babies and young children's strength and nerves. If we made use of our own hot weather feelings we'll avoid letting children become overheated and overtired.

Loss of sleep should be especially avoided in hot weather, because the heat itself causes a fatigue of its own, and we don't want to accentuate that by insufficient rest. This applies to small children as well as babies.

Quiet is the thing that conserves children's energy in summer. Altho children under five are hard to keep quiet, we can find a dark, quiet place for them to nap or lie down, and freedom from excitement with books and toys for quiet play, during some part of each day. Of course, you can't just say to them, "Be still," and expect it to work.

To this treatment add good temper, cheerfulness, patience, and avoidance of scolding. Crossness is hot! Doesn't it sound so? And gentleness and serenity are cool.

The Housewife

As pretty as a perfume bottle is a brand new gadget that was invented to rid your clothes of moths. It is an absorbent cedar cone which is fed by a green moth repellent liquid with a pleasant cedar smell, this liquid being contained in a small glass bottle. You simple attach the cone-bottle high up on your closet wall [a little bracket is provided] or place it on a closet shelf. The vapors work down, not up, and penetrate all thru the closet and every garment hanging there. You replenish the bottle with liquid about every four to eight weeks. That's all there is to this easy method of keeping moths away.

Well, it's potato salad season again. I, for one, am glad, for the only thing that's more fun than making a potato salad is eating it. Many cooks don't try to follow a recipe in making it; would rather use the "add a pinch of this" method, testing the salad's goodness by tasting it.

The taste test is necessary for every salad that goes a-picnicking outdoors or in the dining room. But the inexperienced cook must be guided by a basic recipe even tho she does put final approval on her creation by the time honored method of sampling the dish.

So here's my own favorite basic recipe, which may be adhered to strictly or departed from judiciously for a very excellent potato salad.

Potato Salad.

[Serves Four.]

8 small new potatoes, boiled in jackets
3 hard cooked eggs
4 young green onions, sliced, including tops
½ cup diced celery
Thin, sharp French dressing
Salt, mustard, pepper, celery salt
Salad dressing

Boil potatoes in salted water, drain, cool slightly, and remove peelings. Slice or dice warm potatoes, combine with sliced egg and onions, and pour over the combination a thin, sharp French dressing. Thin, commercially prepared French dressing containing a little garlic is excellent for this purpose. Sprinkle salt, dry mustard, pepper and celery salt over the salad, mix lightly with a fork, and chill. Before serving combine with enough boiled dressing or mayonnaise to moisten well.

Equal parts of thick sour cream and salad dressing give an excellent flavor to the salad.

It is important for the sake of thoro blending of flavors to add seasonings to the salad while the potatoes still are warm. Salads made from cold potatoes are rarely as well flavored as those made from freshly cooked "spuds."

A chopped dill pickle or a couple of small sweet pickles, cut fine, may be added to the salad. Chopped, stuffed olives are good in it, too. A little pickling vinegar or liquid from olives may be used in the dressing.

Chopped pimiento, chopped green pepper, parsley, and diced cucumber are other ingredients often added to potato salad.

Chives may be used in place of onions. If onions are omitted for the sake of somebody who may not care for them, there had better be pickles or some other sharp flavoring to make up for the deficiency. Prepared mustard, for example, might be added to the salad dressing, or chili sauce.

And don't forget how good celery can make potato salad.

Sometimes, especially for a hearty outdoors picnic, it's advisable to add sliced cooked frankfurters, bits of salami, cubed cooked roast meat, or diced cooked vegetables of various kinds to a potato salad.

Pageant of Jewish Feasts Staged by 2,000 Children

A pageant of Jewish festivals was held yesterday morning at the Auditorium theater under auspices of the Jewish Board of Education. Two thousand school children who study under the board's direction depicted the great feasts of Judaism. The Halevi Choral society and combined children's choirs of Hebrew schools offered special music. Aaron Rosen, young violinist, was the featured soloist. Ben Aronin, author of the pageant, was narrator.

June 3, 1940.

Universal Day—All five days in this upsetting universal five years have been jittery because of too many surprises in the fast moving world scene. Keep calm.

Year Ahead—For those born today, this year should be a happy and social one, providing opportunities for widening social contacts and for having artistic efforts appreciated.

Names—As a rule most complete names contain at least one or more letters which fall under the No. 1. These letters are A, J, and S. If you have several "a's" and one or more of the other two letters in your name, you have a strong personality and are the leader type. If you do not have any of these letters or only one in your name, you need to acquire more courage and initiative.

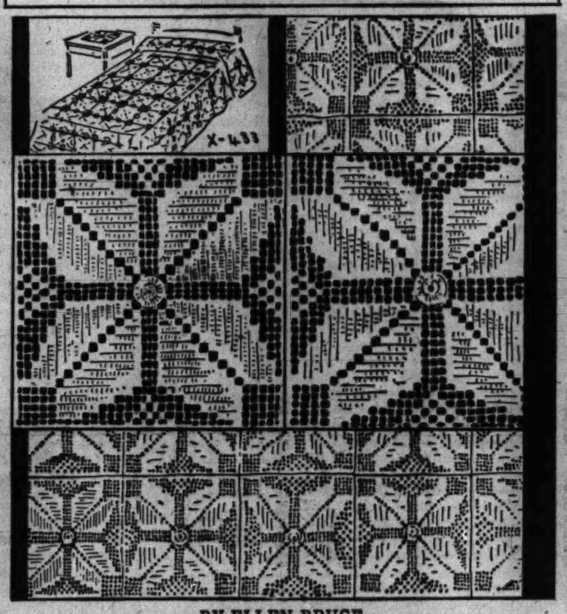
Crocheted Bedspreads



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted bedspreads always are a source of admiration, but this arrowhead design is one which is exceptionally handsome. The richness of the completed bedspread is not to be denied. It is made in squares and joined as work progresses, so that one may quickly see how attractive the finished product will be. White or ecru mercerized crochet cotton is suggested, but any good quality bed cotton may be substituted.

For instructions in crocheting the arrowhead bedspread, No. X-433, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

I feel safe in making the assertion that of any given number of hands which meet defeat thru mismanagement 90 per cent were bungled early in the play. In today's hand the declarer defeated himself before the battle had actually begun.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 spades	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

North was by no means satisfied with his single raise. He felt that his two and one-half honor tricks warranted a stronger bid, but with his bad distribution and lack of intermediate cards it was difficult to select a better bid than the single raise actually chosen unless, perhaps, he had adopted the expedient of making an artificial strength showing bid of two diamonds. Over South's rebid of two no trump North would have been better advised to raise to three no trump, since his distribution was favorable to that contract.

West opened the heart queen, and declarer, after noting that he could afford to lose two tricks in spades and one in hearts and still make his contract, nonchalantly played dummy's heart king, and then the ace of spades. He had been prepared for an uneven break in the suit, with one of the opponents holding three and the other one trump, but this excessively bad break was too much for him. In addition to the unavoidable heart loser, he now had to lose three trump tricks to East.

Granting that the trump break was bad, there still was no excuse for declarer to play in such a slipshod manner. Such breaks do occur every now and then, and there is no need to bow to them without a struggle. In this instance the break could have been overcome.

Declarer should have won the first trick in his own hand in order to lead a trump up to dummy. With West showing out, there would be no point in playing the ace, and East then would win with one of his honors. Regardless of his return, declarer should win and cash all of his side suit tricks, after which he should ruff dummy's third diamond. Then, with only four cards left in every hand, declarer should concede the unavoidable heart loser. West would win, and whatever he returned, dummy would ruff with a low spade. Now whether East overruffed or underruffed [he would have nothing left but trumps], he would be limited to a total of two trump tricks. If he underruffed, the ace of trumps would drop one of his honors; if he overruffed, he would be forced to lead a trump from his remaining honor into the combined tenace in dummy's and declarer's hands.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed's resignation as president of the Arts club has been accepted with regret by the board of directors. The entire membership of the club has the same feeling at losing the energetic and attractive woman who has served as their head for the last eight years. At the directors' meeting it was decided to change the date of the election of officers from the fall to the spring in order to give the officers and committees a longer period to make plans for each season. The change cannot be effected this year until passed by the annual meeting in the fall. Mrs. Goodspeed, however, had planned not to continue as president, so she tendered her resignation on Wednesday so the new ruling might virtually take effect at this time.

Mrs. Brewster to Open Home for Benefit Friday.

The Chicago Public School Art society will receive the proceeds from an unusual benefit for which Mrs. Walter S. Brewster is opening her handsome Lake Forest home, Covin Tree, next Friday. It will be an exhibit and sale of antique and modern vases and table decorations, which, tho used, retain their charm. In addition, colored slides of flower arrangements will be shown at 12, 3, and 4 o'clock.

A charge of $1 will be made to see the colored slides. Admission to the house and grounds will be 50 cents, which may be applied on all purchases of $1 or more. There will be no advance sale of tickets, but every one will be welcome at the house that day.

Party Off to Fish Two Weeks at Duluth.

When a group of eight or ten persons gets together on a fishing trip an enjoyable time is guaranteed whether the fish bite or not. Mrs. Charles Hines, the junior Rush C. Butlers, Mr. and Mrs. James Otis, and the Norris Loves left last Thursday for Duluth, Minn., to spend two weeks vying with each other as anglers.

Mrs. Love's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schuttler of Wheaton, have other interests at the moment. On Friday they will greet their two little granddaughters from Greenville, Del., whose mother, Mrs. George Beach Jr., will follow them on the 12th.

Miss Janet Fairbank is to be the soloist with the Illinois Symphony orchestra tonight at the Studebaker theater. Miss Fairbank sang in Madison, Wis., recently in a Beethoven festival with the University of Wisconsin symphony. She has been spending the winter and spring in New York.

The artist's mother, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, has invited several friends to tonight's concert, among them Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Dr. Frederick Stock, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mrs. Potter Palmer, and Mrs. Cecil Barnes.

Bolero Costume for Summer

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The bolero costume is particularly practical in summer, because it fashions a finished looking outfit with little weight and few incumbrances to make for discomfort. Today's pattern makes up well in prints as it does in plain colors, and washable silks and cottons, the soft variety, are in order. The one piece dress has a V and collarless neckline, a pointed-up waist, and a paneled and molded skirt. The sleeves are short, as are those of the brief bolero, which also is collarless. With this costume wear a perky turban, made of self-material or to contrast. The pattern for it is No. 3144, available for 10 cents extra, and in one adaptable head size only.

Style No. 3238 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material for short sleeved dress and bolero.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Plump Ladies Made Slim in These Models

BY REA SEEGER.

Among the most interesting summer clothes in town are the smart, slenderizing models especially designed for frankly larger streamlines. Willowy string bean shoppers are banished, the ladies with ample silhouettes are welcomed and do they have a grand time!

Simple, beautifully cut and fashioned sheers take inches away for the very good reason that vertical lines are emphasized. Long coat and matching underdress ensembles are spotlight stealers. You'll find them in dark brown, navy, black, and a few greens.

Very flattering and wearable are the sheers combined with narrow lace insertions with the lace in up-and-down bands. Tucks, wide and narrow, accent the filmy beauty of navy blue chiffon in another ensemble. Plenty of dull blacks are obtainable with dainty whiffs of snowy white for accent. Just enough of the white is used and no more. Restraint is exercised all over the costumes. There is no extra trim, little contrast color, or anything that might overblur the simple figure lines.

In the same collection will be found the smart tailored one piece daytime dresses that stress straight lines from shoulder to hem. Action plaits are cleverly placed where they'll accomplish the best magic in keeping trim, smooth silhouettes, and then pressed or stitched down for an even more smooth line. Short sleeves, vee necklines, self material belts, and a total absence of frills, flounces, or ruffles make these the flawless finds of the season. Sizes 32 to 52.

Supercool tub materials are also included. Dull whites, pastels, and a few dotted affairs are all cut by experts, finished to give the best flattery without accenting anything but the best lines of the figure.

Extremely modest prices are almost as exciting as the smart designs of the clothes. The dinner and party clothes in the same shop are just as much "shopping finds" as the daytime models.

140,000 Pray for Peace at Cardinal's Jubilee Mass

Philadelphia, June 2 (AP).—Kneeling in a huge ampitheater, 140,000 men, women and children prayed for peace today at the golden jubilee mass of Cardinal Dennis Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia. The solemn pontifical mass with which the prelate commemorated the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood was selected by him with special intention—averting war from the United States. It was a votive mass of the Holy Ghost.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

We came across some beautifully and lastingly scented soaps almost by accident the other day. We were helping some one find a nice little bread-and-butter gift for a hostess. The soaps filled the bill perfectly. Quality, attractiveness, and inexpensiveness were the requirements, and the soaps more than met them.

This is a soap that's been on the market for years. We'd come to take it for granted. But now that it's all done up in an unusual, especially designed streamlined cake, it assumes a new importance as a beauty bargain.

The cake is a huge one. Nine full ounces, if you please. There are four fragrances and the scent is quite concentrated—so much so that you can toss the soap cakes in with linens or lingerie to serve as sachet. Pine, carnation, lilac, and apple blossom are what you're offered. What you'll choose, of course, will depend on your preferences, but if you've an open mind, you might take a tip from us on carnation. It's awfully good.

Mildness is the chief characteristic of this soap. Its lather is soft and creamy and it cleanses without drying, trying after-effects. It's concrete proof of the fact that a truly fine soap isn't an expensive luxury these days.

In summer you're not as conscious of skin dryness as you are in winter, but it's a wise woman who keeps coddling her thin skin the whole year thru. A bland soap like this is one of the most important guardians of skin softness in all seasons.

Going Light on Food Is Good Summer Idea

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

In a London paper there appeared recently an editorial on the health advantages in "bovine circles," as the writer puts it, of ration cards.

The article emphasized curtailment of meat eating. In leading up to a discussion of the possibilities of bringing about an improvement in health by the use of ration cards, the writer poked a bit of fun at vegetarians.

A pacifist, the writer said, is always ready to punch in the nose any one who disagrees with him, for "a great many pacifists are bloodthirsty vegetarians." Then he adds: "You will find that all the ruthless despots from Genghis Khan to Hitler, have been vegetarians."

The above impressed us, at the moment of reading, because of a tale we just heard about a woman with an appetite that belonged in those "dark age" table days. Alone, she consumes a loaf of bread a day and has meat, with roast pork her favorite, twice and sometimes three times a day. And she was heard to say: "I have a small appetite, really," with over two hundred pounds to give her statement the lie. A vegetarian diet would be right in line for such as she and, indeed, for all of us for a brief try at this time of year, especially.

DODGERS DEFEAT CUBS, 3-2, 2-1; SOX DIVIDE

TWO RUNS IN 9TH BRING SEVENTH SETBACK TO LEE

Vern Olsen Victim in Second Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Brooklyn's Dodgers, those strange men who seem to have mastered the art of weaving victories from little or nothing, reared up twice yesterday and smacked down the Cubs before a 34,204 house in Wrigley field.

The National league second placers performed the first job in slightly dramatic style by ripping loose in the ninth, blasting Bill Lee for two runs and a 3 to 2 decision, which a moment earlier had the markings of a Cub success. Having done that, they returned for more and they got it in the shape of a 2 to 1 verdict over Vern Olsen, the freshman southpaw.

Lee, who was dented with his seventh defeat instead of harvesting his fifth victory, which was so close that he needed to retire only one more man, was strictly the boss of the job for eight innings. In that stretch the Dodgers had frisked him for only four hits, two by Jim Wasdell, American league castoff. One of these hits led to a run, but Lee had two as the result of safeties by Bob Mattick, Stan Hack, and Jim Gleeson. Wasdell did not quit with these two hits. His was the bat that drove in the two Dodgers in the disastrous ninth.

Fluke Double Wins Game.

The ninth opened ominously for Lee and his co-workers on a single by Joe Vosmik, who retired to allow Charles Gilbert to do the running. Babe Phelps flied out, Dolph Camilli fanned and Lee was just about ready to complete his share of the day's business when delay was encountered in the form of a single to right by Harry Lavagetto, Gilbert racing to third. This was where the mischievous Wasdell horned in for the third time. He hoisted a tall fly close to the line in short right and it rolled off the tip of Billy Herman's glove for a double, Gilbert and Lavagetto scoring.

Altho four pitchers were needed to get the Dodgers safely thru the first game, none of the four was bothered to any extent. Whitlow Wyatt started, but after Gleeson's triple had put the Cubs on the way to their second run, he was withdrawn because of a kink in his pitching arm. Newell Kimball took over the assignment until the end of the seventh when Van Lingle Mungo handled it until he got into difficulties in the ninth. Carl Doyle finished. And after Gleeson's triple to the finish there were only two hits—both scratches by Herman.

Durocher's Hit Wins.

The second game was strictly an argument between Olsen and Luke Hamlin. The kid southpaw's third big league start and the first he has completed was an impressive performance except in one spot—the second inning when Manager Leo Durocher doubled to send in two of his help. Hamlin was gracious enough to permit the Cubs to recover one of these runs in the third, but thereafter developed a greedy streak, yielding only three hits in the last six innings. The Cubs couldn't even dent the ex-Tiger after Gleeson had tripled with one gone in the sixth.

FIRST GAME

One hit was sufficient to fix up the Dodgers with a momentary lead in the second inning. Camilli walked with one out and skipped down to second while Hack was retiring Lavagetto. Wasdell, recently of the Senators, poked a two-bagger over short and Camilli scored.

The Cubs used up two hits to fashion the tying run off Wyatt in the third. Mattick paced this bit of scoring industry by leading off with a double to right. Lee's attempt to sacrifice resulted in a pop fly to Lavagetto, but Hack drove a single into center and Mattick went home.

Gleeson tripled to left and Leiber

LYONS WINS, 6-0; FOXX'S HOMER ENDS 2D, 10 TO 8

Red Sox Get 6 Hits in Opener.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., June 2.—Ted Lyons shut out the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 0, this afternoon, bringing grief to a capacity crowd of 33,500. But the great turnout forgot its sorrow when Jimmy Foxx smacked a homer with one on and none out in the ninth to win the second game, 10 to 8.

Lyons, in achieving his fourth victory of the season, yielded only six hits and was in command at all times. His associates gave him a three run lead in the first inning and Ted's only worry thereafter was attainment of a shutout.

Foxx's game winning home run was his 13th of the year and his sixth in six games against the Sox. The last three victories of Boston over the south siders have been scored on homers by Foxx—one in the tenth inning recently in Chicago, one yesterday in the Red Sox's 2 to 1 victory, and the third today.

Sox Fight Back.

John Rigney got off to a bad start in the second game, losing a one run lead in the first inning when the Red Sox clouted him for three runs. The south siders fought back, however, and went ahead in the fourth when Tom Turner singled two runs home to make it 4 to 3. Lou Finney tied it up with a home run in the fifth, but the White Sox went into the lead again in the sixth when Larry Rosenthal's single was followed by Eric McNair's second home run of the day, giving the Chicagoans a 6 to 4 advantage.

The Red Sox added a run in the seventh and finished Rigney, Thornton Lee replacing Johnny. Another Chicago run in the eighth made it 7 to 5 and appeared to sew things up for the south siders, but Lee and his rescuer, Clint Brown, were unable to get the side out before a walk, a home run by Bobby Doerr and two singles had put the Red Sox ahead again, 8 to 7.

Solters Fails in Pinch.

Four singles in the ninth tied it up for the Chicagoans, but Julius Solters came up to hit for Brown and fanned with the bases full and two out. Jim Bagby came into the game to strike Solters out and thereby get credit for the victory.

Edgar Smith, whose luck has been nothing but bad this year, had the doubtful distinction of pitching to two men and losing the game. Ted Williams greeted Smith with a single to center, his third hit of the game. Then Mr. Foxx came to bat, and in a few seconds the happy crowd was on its way home.

FIRST GAME

The White Sox broke out with three runs at the expense of Bill Butland in the first inning of the first game. Kennedy opened with a double to left and Kuhel walked. After Kreevich sacrificed, Doerr knocked down a single by Wright which scored Kennedy. Doerr fumbled Appling's grounder, Kuhel scoring. Rosenthal singled to right, scoring Wright. When Finney juggled the ball, Rosenthal advanced to second and Appling pulled up at third. McNair was given an intentional pass. Then Tresh fanned and Lyons forced McNair.

The Red Sox did not annoy Lyons until they loaded the bases in the sixth. With one down, Cramer drew Ted's first pass. Williams flied to Wright, but Foxx dribbled one in front of the plate. Tresh hit Foxx in the back, Cramer going to third while Foxx stopped at first, credited with a single. Cronin was given a

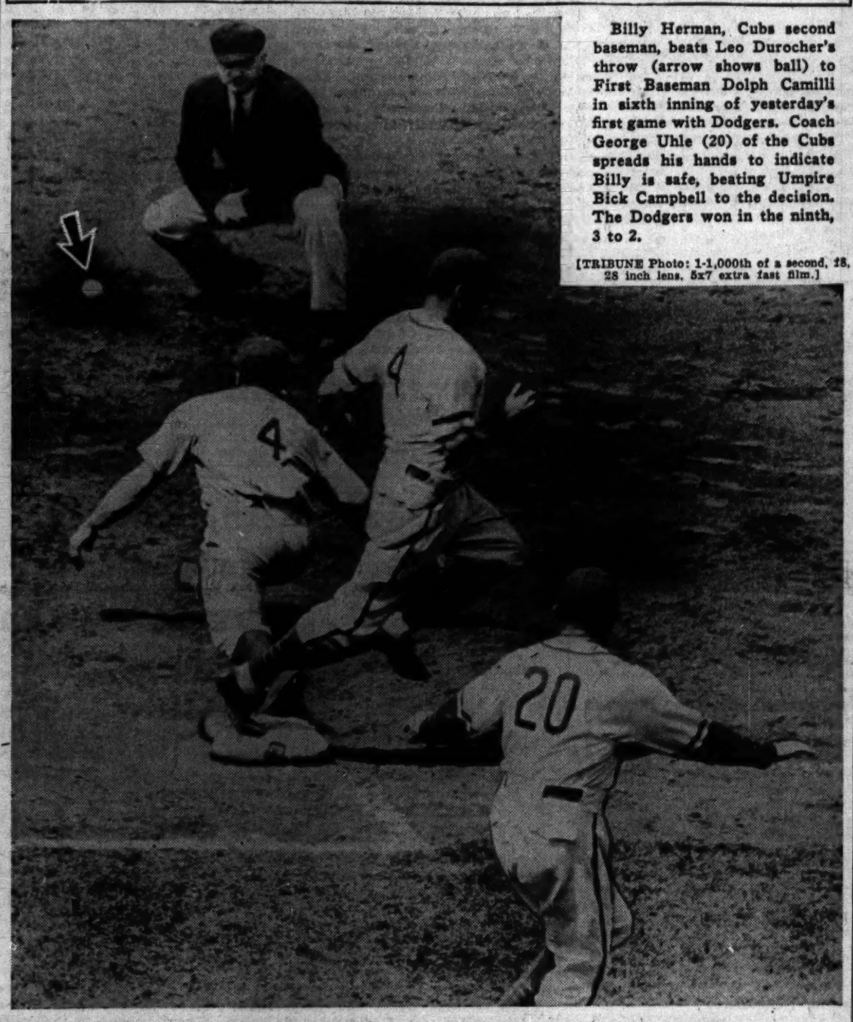
Herman Wins a Race with Durocher's Throw



Billy Herman, Cubs second baseman, beats Leo Durocher's throw (arrow shows ball) to First Baseman Dolph Camilli in sixth inning of yesterday's first game with Dodgers. Coach George Uhle (20) of the Cubs spreads his hands to indicate Billy is safe, beating Umpire Bick Campbell to the decision. The Dodgers won in the ninth, 3 to 2.

It's June 2, So Mr. Watts Gets Another Ace!

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Benton C. Watts made a hole in one on June 2, 1939, by sinking his 6 iron shot to the 145 yard 13th green of the Oak Park Country club. June 2 thereby became a red letter day on Mr. Watts' calendar. From now on, however, he will doubtless have that date ringed in neon lights, for yesterday, the anniversary of his 1939 ace, he repeated the feat on the same 13th green of the same Oak Park Country club, and with the same 6 iron.

Mr. Watts resides at 6317 Blackstone avenue and is a 5 handicap player at the Calumet Country club. He is an official of the Mississippi Glass company, 201 North Wells street. Yesterday he played with Oak Park members, including his company superior, L. D. Wernli; L. S. Snow, and C. E. Snow.

The year-to-the-day encore of the ace caused such commotion that Mr. Watts and his partners had to call on Dick Metz, Oak Park professional, to relay the news of the performance.

A check of unusual golf records last night failed to reveal anything comparable to Watts' anniversary hole-in-one. A. L. Reed of Dallas, Tex., made the 16th hole of Dallas' Lakewood Country club on Nov. 27, 1932, and repeated on Dec. 3, 1932.

TOM WALSH SAYS GOLF PROS WILL HELP RED CROSS

Tom Walsh, president of the Professional Golfers association, last night said plans are underway to enlist the country's top flight golfers in raising money for the Red Cross.

"I am going to the national open in Cleveland this week to talk to the players and with Ed Dudley, chairman of the P. G. A. tournament committee on these plans," Walsh said. "I wrote two of the association officials a week ago suggesting we get behind the Red Cross drive for funds.

"After discussing the matter with the players and Dudley I will lay our plans before the executive committee. In this way we'll have the entire organization behind us in helping such a worthy cause."

CAN PAYCHECK FIGHT? ALLEN TO PROVIDE ANSWER

Heavyweights Battle in Coliseum Wednesday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The pugilistic career of Johnny Paycheck, who is booked for ten rounds, or less, with Altus Allen in Chicago's Coliseum Wednesday evening, can be divided into three parts. In the opening episode, Johnny, who was the 1933 Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, fought with little success and finally, after managerial difficulty, quit the sport.

After 18 months of inactivity, and rechristened Paycheck to encourage forgetfulness of his failure as Johnny Pacek, he came back as the fighting Des Moines bell boy. His success was spectacular and he became the idol of Iowa. But it was suspected, and never specifically denied, that victory, on occasion, had been the result of pencil work in the dressing room or divers hideaways.

Louis Stops His Rise.

This reputation preceded Paycheck to New York when he advanced to challenge the world heavyweight champion, Joe Louis. Paycheck was greeted with apathy despite subsequent headline hunting by Benny Leonard, hired to instruct and advise him.

Louis knocked out Paycheck in the second round and the challenger struck only one light blow in pursuit of title and fortune.

Now Paycheck seeks exoneration of charges of cowardice. He fights to prove he is unafraid, that his ability matches his desire to continue fighting. Altus Allen, an international Golden Gloves champion in 1939, furnishes the standard for measuring Paycheck's aspirations.

It's Allen's Big Chance.

Paycheck may not be fighting for nothing, as his management insisted he would merely for the right to vindicate himself. Manager Harold Stineman, who once boosted King Levinsky as far as Paycheck on the heavyweight ladder, offered to allow Johnny to fight without pay in the first blush of Paycheck's humiliating defeat by Louis.

Certainly Sol Butler, the one time football star who has nursed Allen's pugilistic campaign for a year on skimpy fare, didn't sign for Paycheck without excellent financial reasons. It is reported that Alex Veck, latest of Chicago's promoters, has risked more than $5,000 on the Coliseum venture. This includes, of course, routine expenses and guarantees to the other fighters on the card of four ten round fights.

Veck would like to match the winner with the victor in the Billy Conn-Gus Lesnevich fight, which will be held the same evening in Detroit.

The other matches in the Coliseum will be between Anton Christoforidis, Greek middleweight champion, and Jimmy Burns, Johnstown, Pa.; Yucatan Kid, Miami lightweight, and Nick Castiglione; Georgie Morella, Detroit lightweight, and Willie Joyce. The opening four round fight brings together Annunzio Ferraro, Milwaukee 147 pounder, and George Kontopolis.

Has Altus Enough Experience?

Allen's difficulty Wednesday, if any, may arise from inexperience. In one year this 19 year old south sider has fought 12 times, won nine bouts, lost twice, and had one draw. Willie Muldune of Cleveland and Italo Colonello of Italy are the best known of the men Allen has defeated.

Undoubtedly Allen was chosen as Paycheck's opponent because he weighs approximately the same [Paycheck lacks weight to be a legitimate heavyweight] and because he isn't a tremendously effective puncher. Even without the redemption angle in publicity the match may be interesting. As it is, however, Paycheck is seeking to prove his courage.

Paycheck and Allen will finish boxing drills this afternoon in Trafton's gymnasium. Johnny will spar three rounds and Altus two. The boys are close to fighting weight, Johnny scaling 187 pounds and Allen 183 after workouts yesterday.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

IT'S headline news when a football player runs 60, 70, or 80 yards for a touchdown, but Ben Sheridan, Notre Dame's brilliant ball carrier, once ran 190 yards. . . . It was while he was playing for Havana, Ill., High school, where he was a 12 letter man. . . . He first went 60 yards, only to learn Havana had been off side. . . . On the next play he raced 65 yards, but both sides were off side. . . . Everybody managed to stay within the rules on the third play, which resulted in another 65 yard run by Sheridan. . . . Byron [Whizzer] White, who withdrew from professional football to accept a Rhodes scholarship, will enroll in summer classes at his alma mater, Colorado university, and will work in the stadium to pay his expenses. . . . Well, well, Hollywood has discovered Golden Gloves. . . . One of the catch lines in Jimmy Cagney's new picture, "City of Conquest," is: "He was a good enough boxer to make the Golden Gloves." . . . The Western conference golf championship would belong to Purdue, if Athletic Director Noble Kizer could get permission to let the football coaching staff represent the university. . . . Potsy Clark's original Detroit Lions, a recent survey revealed, hold the National Football league's defensive record. . . . They yielded only 272 points in 37 games, an average of 7.3 per game, over a span of three years, 1934 to 1936, inclusive. . . . Walter Johnson's congressional district in Maryland contains the vote of only one big league player, Charley Keller of the Yankees. . . . Charley already has announced it will go to Walter in the November balloting. . . . A. A. Stagg, who helped found the national collegiate track and field meet when he was athletic director at the University of Chicago, has been invited to serve as referee of the 19th annual games at Minneapolis, June 21-22. . . . When Frankie Frisch recently asked Dizzy Dean why he didn't throw his fast ball any more, Diz replied, "Not at these prices, Frankie." . . . Congratulations to Davey O'Brien, last year's All-Star quarter back, who Wednesday will marry his college sweetheart, Miss Frances Buster, in Fort Worth, Tex. . . . Miss Buster, who will be graduated from Texas Christian university this month, was "Sugar Bowl" queen when O'Brien led the T. C. U. eleven to victory over Carnegie Tech, Jan. 1, 1939. . . . The couple will spend the summer at Delafield, Wis., where Davey again will serve as counselor at St. John's Military academy summer camp.

Frances Buster.

Davey O'Brien.

Esco Sarkkinen, Ohio State end, will sail the Great Lakes as a member of the crew of an ore boat this summer before reporting to Lancaster, O., High school as athletic director. . . . Joe Davis, executive secretary of the Chicago District Golf association, recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of his arrival in Chicago. . . . University of Idaho's boxing team, national collegiate champions, plans to make a tour of the south during the holidays next winter. . . . Which may be as good a place as any to recall that Wisconsin, in the seven years Johnny Walsh has been coach, has won 38 of its 42 boxing matches. . . . The Badgers' achievements include three national collegiate titles. . . . Major league fans who direct their attention to star players won't go wrong by watching third basemen, regardless of the team on the field. . . . The list of spectacular performers this summer includes Bob Kennedy of the White Sox, Ken Keltner of the Indians, Harlond Clift of the Browns, Buddy Lewis of the Senators, Red Rolfe of the Yankees, Merrill May of the Phillies, Stan Hack of the Cubs, Stu Martin of the Cardinals, Al Rubeling of the Athletics, Bill Werber of the Reds, Pinky Higgins of the Tigers, Burgess Whitehead of the Giants, Lee Handley of the Pirates, and Harry Lavagetto of the Dodgers. . . . Harry Mehre, football leader at the University of Mississippi, has assured his school another big rivalry by signing a five year contract with Tulane. . . . Harry Smith, Southern California's All-America football guard, has found a summer job in the cantaloupe sheds at Brawley, Cal.

But Where Are You?

Beneath these spreading branches you and I
Whispered our lilting love songs long ago;
A silver sickle moon was in the sky
And apple blossoms drifted white as snow
Along the orchard wall. You promised me
That we should climb life's hillside hand in hand,
And tho it led thru pain and poverty,
You would not flinch, nor fail to understand.

One silver sail is in the sky tonight
Riding majestically thru the blue,
And perfumed apple blooms are drifting white
Beside the orchard wall—but where are you?
Ah, you have drifted onward with the years
Leaving to me the blossoms and the tears. —T. E. B.

YOU CAN'T LOSE OL' MUCHO GUSTO IN WILL COUNTY

Between Winning Races, He Explores Scenery.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

If you took Mucho Gusto to the corner of 179th and Halsted, turned him around three times and then let go of the halter, he'd hesitate just long enough to get his bearings and then head straight for Kirby Ramsey's barn at Lincoln Fields. Next to Track Superintendent Tom Young, Mucho Gusto probably knows more about the geography of that part of Will county than any other living creature.

During the later stages of his career, this old fellow has become particularly familiar with the layout because his handlers see that he has plenty of leisure to examine the scenery during his morning gallops. The reason for his sedate pace is the fact that his ageing legs are always saved for races when those $5,000 purses are on the line. He's no longer the kind of a horse which works a mile in 1:43 on Wednesday and wins in 1:40 on Saturday.

They Save the Old Boy.

There is just so much energy left in Mucho Gusto's well bandaged underpinning, so it's not wasted on the admiration of early rising railbirds. His morning gallops are so slow that he has plenty of time to smell the flowers, look at the lagoon and gaze at the lush grass with gluttonous intent.

Despite his eight years of age he still is so much better than many of his younger rivals that he has time in his races as well as in his morning gallops to get better acquainted with the Lincoln Fields setup. When he won the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap last Thursday for the second time, he had ample leisure on his way down the stretch to look around and see if there were any new officials working during the current meeting.

He's got to know Judge Larry Boganschutz so well that he's likely to expect a lump of sugar from him if he wins the La Salle handicap a week from Saturday or the Lincoln handicap on closing day.

Foaled in Track Barn.

Mucho Gusto was foaled in a race track barn and he has been strictly a trouper ever since, without knowing anything about that idyllic life thorobreds are supposed to lead—galloping in blue grass pastures, drinking out of cool limestone springs, and resting in the shade of hickory groves. In all his career he never has been turned out in a paddock bigger than a hundred feet square. Better days may be coming, tho, because his owners, Kirby Ramsey and Robert F. Coppage, plan to retire him at the end of this season to some Kentucky breeding farm.

Tho he has won none of the famous stakes, Musto Gusto has run up earnings of $79,880—and that means a lot of victories when you're shooting for $2,500 purses. But don't think he hasn't conquered any of the great champions.

Once Beat Seabiscuit.

Mucho Gusto beat a horse named Seabiscuit, and another named Bull Lea, and another named Marica. For five-eighths of a mile he outsprinted War Admiral in the Narragansett Special. He's kept pace with the best of them in his time. It's no wonder then that Chicago's race followers gave the old fellow a big hand as he came galloping home in front on Memorial day. They'll turn out to see him again in his other Lincoln Fields engagements—the La Salle and the Lincoln handicaps.

Mucho Gusto has won a great variety of stakes on a great many tracks, including among his victories two Peabody Memorials, the Lincoln handicap, the Rowe Memorial, the Narragansett handicap, the Governor's handicap at Narragansett, the Governor's handicap at Detroit, the Pilgrim handicap, the Christmas handicap at Tropical Park, the Orange Blossom handicap, Coral Gables handicap, E. Phocian Howard Memorial, Motor City handicap, the Kentucky handicap, the East Hill handicap.

WILSON, RODAK MEET FOR FIFTH TIME TONIGHT

Jackie Will Spot Leo Ten Pounds in Battle.

Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh featherweight, who lost a decision in 15 rounds to Leo Rodak two years ago, returns for revenge in a 10 round rematch with the Chicago lightweight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight.

Leo Rodak.

Wilson, fifth ranking 126 pound contender, will be spotting the 27 year old Rodak about 10 pounds. Rodak, who weighed 136½ pounds when he conquered Yucatan Kid in Miami on May 1, must not carry more than 135 this time. Wilson was at 125½ pounds in his 10 round victory over Bobby Green in Lancaster, Pa., last April 26.

Wilson Disputes Decision.

In the previous meeting [their fourth, three others ending in draw decisions] each weighed 126 pounds. The bout was held in Baltimore because the Maryland boxing commission gave the match featherweight title recognition.

Wilson disputes losing this decision to his Chicago rival. Rodak, who has won 10 of his last 15 engagements, all of which were held out of town, will attempt to prove the triumph was not a fluke. Leo numbers among his victims Everett Rightmire, Jimmy Tygh, Jimmy Perrin, and Al Mancini.

Pleasant Meets McGeever.

Johnny Pleasant, 1939 Chicago Golden Gloves lightweight champion, who scored a one round technical knockout over Phil Latona a week ago, will meet Eddie McGeever of Scranton, Pa., in an eight round semi-final. Matches of four rounds bring together George Amorine, Newark, N. J., middleweight, and Harry Fredricksen; Hank Thorsen, Milwaukee light heavyweight, and Paul Frazier, and Matt Daugherty, lightweight, also of Milwaukee, and Jimmy Cagney.

Catholic Track Title Is Taken by St. Ignatius

St. Ignatius ended St. George's two year reign as Catholic High School league track champion yesterday on Stagg field by scoring 30 points, two more than the deposed titleholders.

Trailing St. George, 25 to 26, the St. Ignatius foursome of Jacoby, Hennessey, Widmar, and Scelze won the half mile relay, the final event, to capture the title. St. George ran third.

Four records were shattered. Kunka of Leo clipped four-tenths of a second off the 440 yard dash, being clocked in :51.1; Jacoby, St. Ignatius, did the 200 yard low hurdles in :23 to shave two-tenths off the old mark, and R. Zimny, St. Rita, boosted the shot put to 49 feet 4½ inches, 5 inches farther than the previous record, and Patrick, Leo, added 5 inches to the broad jump by leaping 21 feet 11 inches.

Van Goethen, St. George, also broke the old broad jump mark to finish second. His leap was 21 feet 7½ inches, and Smith, St. Rita, also bettered the shot put record with a heave of 49

WALTERS GAINS NINTH VICTORY; REDS, BEES SPLIT

Cincinnati Wins, 11 to 1; Then Loses, 2-0.

Cincinnati, O., June 2 (AP).—With unbeaten Bucky Walters easing along to his ninth victory, the Cincinnati Reds won the first game of today's double header from the Boston Bees, 11 to 1, but wasted almost an opportunity an inning to suffer a 2 to 0 defeat in the nightcap at the hands of Dick Errickson.

Walters yielded only five hits. Jim Turner and Joe Beggs, in the second game, allowed but four, none until Sebastian Sisti's single in the seventh. A bobbled double play ball opened the gates for the Boston runs in the eighth inning. Johnny Rizzo hit two home runs in the first game.

Yanks Crush Browns Twice, 13-4 and 11-1

New York, June 2 (AP).—A 26 hit batting spree by the world champion Yankees in two games today swamped the St. Louis Browns, 13 to 4 and 11 to 1, and gave New York a record of nine victories in the last 10 contests.

Every one of the Yankees joined in the hitting in the opener and all except the pitcher hit safely in the nightcap. George Selkirk hit home runs in each game, his first coming with two on during a five run fifth inning which finished Bob Harris. Joe DiMaggio also made a homer with one on and Bill Knickerbocker hit two doubles and a triple in the first game.

The Yankees blasted out 10 runs in the first two innings of the second game, getting six off Vernon Kennedy in one inning on three triples, a single, a double, and a walk.

TELLS HOW IERC VOTED TO DROP ITS AID TO CITY

Bares Recording of Two Absentee Ballots.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

William H. Sexton, special traction counsel and senior member of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, told last night what happened at the commission's meeting of May 10 when it voted to stop cash contributions to Chicago WPA projects.

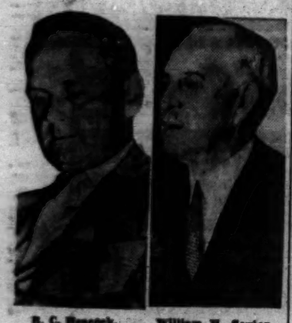
Because of an addition to a motion to allocate $170,000 from state relief funds to the city, Sexton did not vote and two other members of the commission were recorded as voting for a proposal they had not heard, he asserted.

Aid Given Since November.

The allocations to WPA had been made since last November under a law that provides relief funds may be used as part of local sponsors' contributions to WPA projects if the projects take cases off direct relief.

As a result of the commission's decision, based on its contention the program is not saving it money, Mayor Kelly appeared before last Friday's meeting of the IERC and asked reconsideration of the matter. He said a special session of the legislature will be necessary to provide relief for Chicago if the program is discontinued. Just how it was voted out of existence was described last night by Sexton.

Present at the session, Sexton said, were Neil H. Jacoby, chairman; B. C. Heacock of Peoria; State Treasurer Louie E. Lewis and State Finance Director S. L. Nudelman, ex-officio members; Melvin L. Straus, and Sexton.



B. C. Heacock. William H. Sexton.

A motion was before the commission to allocate the $170,000 to the city for the month of May. At this point Lewis and Nudelman left to catch a train for Springfield. They asked to be recorded as voting for the motion, Sexton said.

When the motion was put by Heacock, Sexton stated, he added two provisions: [1] that the allocations on the basis of $18 a man for each man transferred from relief to WPA be continued thru the month of June, and [2] that the June allocation be the last and the city be notified that with the June contribution the IERC would terminate its participation in the program.

Sexton then asked to divide the question and stated his reasons: that he wished to vote for the allocation, but that before consideration of the last section of the motion he wished to know what congress proposed to do on the question of requiring sponsors to pay 25 per cent of WPA projects. This provision, he thought, might be modified or killed entirely, he said.

Abstains from Voting.

Heacock immediately stated he would withdraw his motion. This would have meant withdrawing the allocation provision. Rather than defer action, Sexton asked to be recorded as present but not voting. Lewis and Nudelman, meanwhile, were recorded as voting aye—to terminate the aid program.

"I have been in favor of the plan from its inception," Sexton stated last night. "I have wanted, however, to see it carried out in the spigit of the statute. And I think we have saved money.

"That is a matter upon which we can't always strike a balance at a moment's notice because of the lag. WPA pay rolls and books must be examined before we can say just how we stand for each month. This often takes weeks. It seems inevitable that this be so, tho we have done everything possible to remedy it.

"If we cut out this project aid system I am afraid that those left without jobs will not be absorbed and will go back on relief. I think this system postponed last fall's relief crisis, a crisis that may be back with us again now."

ANOTHER MEMBER'S STORY

Peoria, Ill., June 2 [Special].—Before the Illinois Emergency Relief commission voted to stop cash contributions to Chicago WPA projects on June 30 it gave the program weeks of consideration. It examined thoroly Chicago's WPA situation. When the vote was put there were no dissenters, and only one member failed to cast his ballot.

This was the statement here tonight of B. C. Heacock, tractor manufacturer and a downstate member of the IERC. He said that so far as he knows no reconsideration of its action is contemplated by the commission when it meets in Chicago next Thursday.

"It was understood from the first," asserted Heacock, a prominent Republican, "that the contributions to Chicago and the village of Lemont [in Cook county] were experimental. These communities—a large one and a small one—simply were testing grounds."

Test Made Under New Law.

The experiment was made, Heacock added, under the new Illinois law which provides that relief funds may be used as part of a local sponsor's contribution to WPA projects if the projects remove persons from the relief rolls. The object of the IERC in trying out the program was to save money, he said.

"But we weren't saving money," Heacock continued. "We tried it in November and December when we were contributing $13 for each reliefer who was transferred to WPA, and we have tried it since Jan. 1, when we began to pay $18 a person. Our figures showed that with the increasing reduction of WPA projects, red figures soon would begin to appear on our books. This would be absolutely illegal.

"Before acting, however, we studied Chicago's WPA situation. We estimated the length of time it would take the city to close up its major projects. Then we acted on May 10, giving the city 51 days' notice, or until July 1.

"But during this grace period the city has done nothing, just as it did nothing to help itself during the months from November to May. If, on July 1, Chicagoans find their city full of scars—open ditches and torn up streets—they will have nothing to blame but their own administration."

Heacock made it plain that he was not speaking for the commission, but only as one downstate member of it.

Tells of Peril to IERC.

"Now, if we don't cut Chicago off, we will wreck the commission. We will have to let in all the other towns and cities. They would all soon be just like Chicago—unwilling to help themselves, unwilling to sponsor their own WPA projects, and looking to the IERC for help."

Heacock took issue with a published statement that the commission will decide at its Thursday meeting whether or not to make its action stick.

"The matter was decided," he said, "after months of scrutiny and study and after weeks of careful investigation. There is no reason to reopen it except that Chicago is receiving the decision ungraciously. Only political pressure could bring about reconsideration, and I never have observed the slightest suggestion of politics in the IERC.

"But if the decision should be upset, only politics could be responsible. And if that happened the IERC would have become just another worthless, wasteful political body."

Denies Anti-Chicago Feeling.

DeKalb, Ill., June 2 [Special].—So far as he knows, there is no anti-Chicago feeling in the IERC, Thomas E. Courtney, a member, said here tonight. On the contrary, he declared, it is realized that Chicago has special problems.

Altho Courtney was one of the members who approved the plan for contributing relief funds to Chicago WPA projects, he has been unable to attend IERC meetings in recent months. He said he is unfamiliar with the findings upon which the commission based its decision to discontinue the program.

"It seemed sound to me when we approved it," he said. Courtney added he will attend the meeting Thursday in Chicago to hear first hand what determined the IERC's action. "I am impartial," he continued. As a member of the IERC, I feel the same toward all Illinois communities."

BROWDER AGAIN CARRIES BANNER OF COMMUNISTS

New York, June 2 (AP).—Earl Russell Browder, the Wichita, Kas., boy who grew up to become America's No. 1 communist, was nominated for President of the United States today at the communist party's convention in Madison Square Garden.

Browder, leader of the party, is free on bail on appeal from a four year prison sentence for using a fraudulent passport. He was the party's candidate in 1936 and polled 80,000 votes. Nominated for Vice President was James W. Ford, Alabama Negro. The proceedings were broadcast over two national radio networks.

Accepting the nomination, Browder said:

"The masses of the United States cry out for a new party, for a modern Abraham Lincoln, as the only road toward the solution of the crisis of today, the crisis of the breakdown of capitalism, the crisis of imperialist war that threatens destruction to the world. I pledge our party to coöperate with labor and the people toward this great goal."

The convention adopted a platform opposing President Roosevelt's national defense program and calling for support of "the peace policy of the soviet union."

$35,000 STATUE IS STOLEN FROM INVENTOR'S ROOM

Henry Unschuld, an inventor, reported to police last night that thieves entered his room in the Congress hotel and stole a gold and silver statue which he values at $35,000.

The statue is of St. Vincent of Ferrari, and is about 200 years old. It stands 20 inches in height and weighs 18 pounds. Its gold and silver value is about $1,800, but its art value is $35,000, according to Unschuld.

Unschuld refused to see newspaper men, but he is believed to be the same Henry Unschuld who was burned in an explosion in London on Jan. 15, 1939, while experimenting with a secret motor fuel for the British air ministry. At that time he was identified as a Chicago inventor.

Joy on the Beach

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lawrence Lukas, 5 years old, of 2846 Clybourn avenue, with pail and shovel, eager to get into the thick of things on the Oak street beach yesterday as a warming sun brought the first real promise of summer.

Chicagoans flocked to the outdoors yesterday as sunny skies brought the city its warmest day of the year. From a low of 64 degrees in the early morning hours, the temperature rose to an official high of 86 degrees at 4 p. m. Forecaster Gordon E. Dunn said today would be fair and warmer.

City parks and the forest preserves were crowded with picnickers and family groups. Thousands of other persons went to the beaches. County highway police reported the country roads jammed with motorists.

A fishing outing ended in tragedy yesterday when Joseph J. Jalowski, 42 years old, 2418 West 46th place, a former navy man, drowned after his boat capsized in the Fox river near Antioch in Lake county. Three companions, Orville L. Creech, 6108 South Fairfield avenue; George Duewerth, 3008 West 59th street, and William Zint, 6128 South Talman avenue, swam to the shore. They said the boat overturned when Jalowski stood up to change seats.

LOANS ON GRAIN MADE CALLABLE FOR EMERGENCY

Government's Order Is Explained.

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP). — Agricultural department officials said today that a modification of the 1940 wheat and barley grower loan program was ordered because an emergency might arise to cause an immediate demand for large amounts of grain.

The order, issued Friday, provided that loans be made on a demand basis, callable at any time. Before that, loans on farm stored grain had been on a 10 month basis and those on grain in warehouses on an eight month basis.

No Price Brake, Say Officials.

Officials said the order was not issued with any thought of applying it as a brake on grain price rises.

Experts explained that it was conceivable, altho not probable, that by some trend in the war a foreign belligerent or neutral nation might be shut off from its grain supply. In that event, they said, the United States might find it necessary to ship substantial quantities of grain immediately. Under the previous situation, the grain tied up under the terms of the ten or eight month loans would not be available. By making the loans callable on demand, the stored grain could be released promptly for export or other markets.

Seeks to Support Prices.

The agricultural department at present is devoting much of its attention to efforts to support grain prices, rather than to check them from rising. Secretary Wallace was reported to be insisting, informally, that the futures commodity markets retain present minimum prices on grains.

At the government's request, these markets set minimum quotations at not less than closing prices on May 18 after severe price declines had resulted from sensational European war developments.

PRICES LOWER IN WEEK

The setting of minimum grain quotations to prevent a possible drastic decline resulting from the loss of large foreign markets and the possible spread of the war to the Mediterranean basin were factors contributing to a moderate recession in prices last week, traders said. July wheat lost 3 cents a bushel.

Chicago grain futures prices last week were:

Justice Office Will Join N. Y. in Milk Probe

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Asserting that it hoped the inquiry would become a "model for similar undertakings elsewhere," the justice department announced today that it was joining New York City in an investigation of alleged restraints of trade in the metropolitan market.

The announcement said that such an investigation was "particularly important at the present when the European war may well result in skyrocketing food prices in this country."

Complaints have been received from responsible sources, the department said, that there was "monopolistic control" of the shipment of milk interstate into the New York metropolitan area.

Some of Complaints.

The announcement said the specific complaints were:

"Collusive action by the major milk companies to maintain an artificial distinction between grade A and grade B classes of milk in order to exact unreasonable prices from the consumer.

"Maintenance thru combination of artificial prices for milk sold to consumers.

"Combination to coerce retail distributors of milk in various ways."

An "effective attack on such restraints," the department said, required an organization with jurisdiction to investigate beyond city limits, composed of both municipal and federal officials.

Mentions Chicago Situation.

The department observed that "a comprehensive prosecution of restraints of trade in Chicago milk was followed by a drop of four cents a quart in store delivery without loss to the farmer."

A principal issue has always been the large "spread" between the price paid by consumers—as high as 20 cents a quart—and the amount returned to the producers, the farmers—as low as four cents.

The milk distributors have consistently maintained that their profit margin was narrow and that the "spread" in prices was due to the amount of dairy products which went into things like cheese and ice cream on which the return is much less than 20 cents a quart.

HALL PRINTING EARNS $1,219,059 IN FISCAL YEAR

The W. F. Hall Printing company yesterday reported for the fiscal year ended March 31 consolidated net income was $1,219,059, equal to $3.13 a share on the 389,357 shares of common stock outstanding, against $898,853, or $2.32 a share on 370,357 common shares after deducting dividends on the preferred stock which was retired during the 1939-1940 year.

Alfred B. Geiger, president, told stockholders that the total of business last year was larger than in the preceding year because of additional printing requirements of regular customers as well as new business.

Steel Plants' Production Rises as Demand Grows

Steel mills have again increased production to meet larger demands from domestic sources, from England and France, and from neutral countries cut off from their normal sources of supply. The magazine Steel, reporting buying at the fastest rate since the start of the war last September, said output rose 3½ points last week to a national average of 78⅛ per cent of capacity.

MEXICO DICKERS WITH 2D FIRM ON OIL SETTLEMENT

MEXICO CITY, June 2 (AP).—Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexican ambassador to the United States, tonight confirmed reports that negotiations are in progress with another American petroleum company for settlement for oil properties expropriated in 1938. The diplomat refused to name the company, but well informed oil circles said it was the Cities Service corporation.

Cities Service's two Mexican subsidiaries produced about 3,300 barrels daily of the 140,000 total output at the time of expropriation. An indemnification of about $3,000,000 is being discussed, it was reported.

Extend Claim Deadline.

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Mexico has granted a request of the United States government that the period for adjudication of claims growing out of the expropriation of American owned farm properties be extended to June 30. This applies to claims concerning properties expropriated by Mexico since Aug. 30, 1927.

IL DUCE'S SHADOW CASTS ITS GLOOM IN STOCK MARKET

New York, June 2 [Special].—The New York stock trade bogged down last week. Some speculators extended their Memorial day recess over the week-end, but many others stayed on the sidelines to keep an eye on Italian activities.

As a whole, prices made a moderate recovery. Observers said there was a lack of real pressure on the market. Rearmament programs and favorable industrial news were regarded as probable market props.

Sales volume for the week was only about 3 million shares.

WHOLESALE PORK PRICES REDUCED 12 TO 22% IN MAY

Wholesale prices of most cuts of fresh pork declined 12 to 22 per cent in May as a result of increased supplies, the Institute of American Meat Packers reported yesterday.

The institute said prices for lamb and the better grades of beef also were lower in the wholesale markets than in April. All live stock prices sagged as a result of the lower meat prices.

The month's production of all kinds of meat was described as substantially larger than in May, 1939.

AVIATION CORP. BUYS ASSETS OF DETROIT FIRM

The purchase price was 42,000 shares of Aviation corporation stock, the announcement said.

TIN PLATE AND CANS.

I understand that McKeesport Tin Plate was able to return to profitable operations last year. How did its earnings compare with those of previous years? Has it paid any dividends recently?—J. D.

Answer: McKeesport Tin Plate corporation was formed in March, 1937, as the result of the merger of the McKeesport Tin Plate company, which had operated since 1902, and its subsidiary, the National Can company. The present corporation is rated as the fourth largest producer of tin plate in the country and the third ranking manufacturer of metal containers.

About one-half of the company's tin plate output is used by the metal container division and the rest is sold to other manufacturers. McKeesport containers are used in the food packing, oil, paint, chemical, syrup, drug, and alcoholic beverage industries. The company also makes lithographed and lacquered containers and such household utensils as bread boxes and waste baskets.

The tin plate manufacturing is conducted in factories near McKeesport, Pa., on the Youghiogheny river. The containers are made in plants in Maspeth, Long Island, N. Y.; Baltimore, Md.; Boston, Mass., and Hamilton, O.

Capitalization of the present company consists of $6,000,000 in funded debt and 727,496 shares of $10 par common stock. No dividend has been paid on the common stock since 50 cents a share was distributed Jan. 5, 1938, which was the only payment that year. In 1937 $1 a share was paid after the merger. Before the merger dividends on the common stock of McKeesport Tin Plate company had been paid without interruption from 1905 and on National Can stock from 1930.

After a loss of $679,238 in 1938, the company's operations in 1939 improved and a profit of $178,486, equal to 25 cents a share, was earned. In 1937 net profit adjusted for comparison was $915,777 or $1.26 a share.

SELF-SEALING TANK.

Do you know of any American company which makes bulletproof gasoline tanks for military airplanes? —F. L.

Answer: The Glenn L. Martin company of Baltimore, Md., a leading airplane maker, demonstrated to army officials several weeks ago a self-sealing fuel tank. Punctures in the tank made by bullets are automatically and instantly filled, thus preventing leakage of gasoline, according to company officials.

Union Rejects Gen. Motors' Working Pact

Detroit, Mich., June 2 (AP).—The C. I. O. United Automobile Workers today rejected counter-proposals for a revised agreement with General Motors corporation and asked the federal government to intervene in arranging an "equitable" settlement.

President R. J. Thomas said the union's General Motors council termed corporation proposals "inadequate" and that local unions would be instructed to reject them. The council received the corporation's proposals yesterday.

An agreement would have affected some 135,000 employés in 52 corporation plants in which the union won bargaining elections conducted by the National Labor Relations board.

Ask Federal Intercession.

In a telegram to President Roosevelt, requesting immediate federal intercession in the dispute, Thomas said a settlement should be "delayed no longer lest vital interests of workers be sacrificed."

Thomas also said local unions would be asked to empower the council's executive committee and international officers to take "whatever action they may deem necessary" in concluding a "satisfactory" contract. Negotiations between the corporation and the union, Thomas said, would be resumed.

Demands of Union.

When conferences were opened several weeks ago the union demanded a general wage increase, vacations with pay, adoption of a shop steward system, seniority changes, and joint settlement of disputes over production speeds.

The council declared that altho the agreement proposed by the corporation contains "a few advances over the existing agreement its basic clauses are not acceptable."

A spokesman for the General Motors said any comment on the union's statement would await study of it by corporation officials.

SOARING PRICES PUSH PRODUCTION OF QUICKSILVER

San Francisco, Cal., June 2 (AP).—Projectiles of death hurled in Europe have quickened life in one of California's oldest industries—the mining of quicksilver.

Soaring prices for this requisite of war have spurred California's 59 producing mines to peak activity. For 10 years preceding 1939 the price averaged $81.49 a flask [76 pounds]. Now quicksilver brings $192 to $194 a flask.

The national output, of which California produces the largest part, is expected to reach 25,000 flasks this year, compared with 18,633 in 1930.

Every shot, whether of rifle or cannon, requires fulminate of mercury as the detonating agent. Drugs and chemicals take 39 per cent of quicksilver output, detonators use 19 per cent, industrial and control instruments 9 per cent.

GERMAN VICTORY MEANS INFLATION IN U. S., SAYS PALYI

Dr. Melchior Palyi, former economic adviser to the Berlin Deutschebank, declared yesterday that a German victory would see the Nazi "military economy" extended to all Europe and would result in monetary inflation in the United States.

"If Germany wins, she will attempt on a big scale the military economy she is now running on a small scale," Palyi said.

War preparations in the United States "will mean inflation," he said, with more money being printed altho there may be no more jobs.

Dr. Palyi said the "self-sufficiency of a Nazi Europe, plus her purchase or barter of wheat and beef from the agricultural countries of South America and cotton from India would produce an agricultural depression in America."

The three day convention of the Scientific Apparatus Makers of America will open today at the Drake hotel. John Roberts, president of the group, said 250 persons would attend. William M. Leiserson, member of the National Labor Relations board, will be one of the speakers.

DAY by DAY on the FARM — by HOMER CROISZ

Corn Needs Warmth.

June 2, 1940.

ALL the corn planted this spring at the Du Page county farm is up and there are even stands in all the fields, but workers were disappointed yesterday as they looked down the rows at the narrow ribbons of yellowish tinted plants. Few of the plants have the healthy green color that farmers like to see. The corn needs warm weather and sunshine.

Altho the moisture from recent rains has been needed, it has made it impossible to cultivate the corn and the men say the soil needs stirring to stimulate growth of the corn and to check grass and weeds.

One Field Suffering.

Only one field is suffering badly. It is a 22 acre plot that was plowed this spring and is infested with quack grass, one of the most persistent weed pests in this area. The quack grass is thick and higher than the corn.

This field was given one cultivation last week with a rotary hoe type of weeder. As soon as the ground dries enough to be worked the corn will be plowed with a row cultivator, equipped with broad shovels to shear off the quack grass plants.

This is an effective way to check quack grass when the sun is hot, but it does little good in cool, cloudy weather because the grass that is plowed up soon takes root and continues to spread. The underground roots that are brought to the surface soon start new growth unless they are dried out by hot sunshine.

The manager says there is little likelihood that any of the corn will need to be planted over. Three years ago rains interfered with cultivation until quack grass got a start in the corn, but none had to be replanted and there was a good corn crop that year.

So far there has been no trouble from cut worms or white grubs in any of the corn, altho these pests thrive in cool, wet weather, especially where sod land is plowed in the spring. White grubs usually are most numerous in fields broken out of old bluegrass or timothy sod.

Comparison Made.

The seven acres of open pollinated corn planted for comparison with a hybrid strain came thru the ground two days before the hybrid. Both were planted in the same field the same day. There still is a noticeable difference in the height of the plants.

The late season has retarded some weeds as well as field crops. Canada thistles are much later than usual this year. The plants are coming up thick in one field of wheat, but there are none in the corn fields yet. Thistles gave more trouble than usual last summer and the men had to chop them out of the corn fields with hoes. Mowers were used to cut thistles in pastures and even in some of the oat fields where patches of the oats were sacrificed in order to keep the thistles from blooming.

British Office Workers Arm for Home Defense—Maps Show Invasion of United States Would Be Difficult

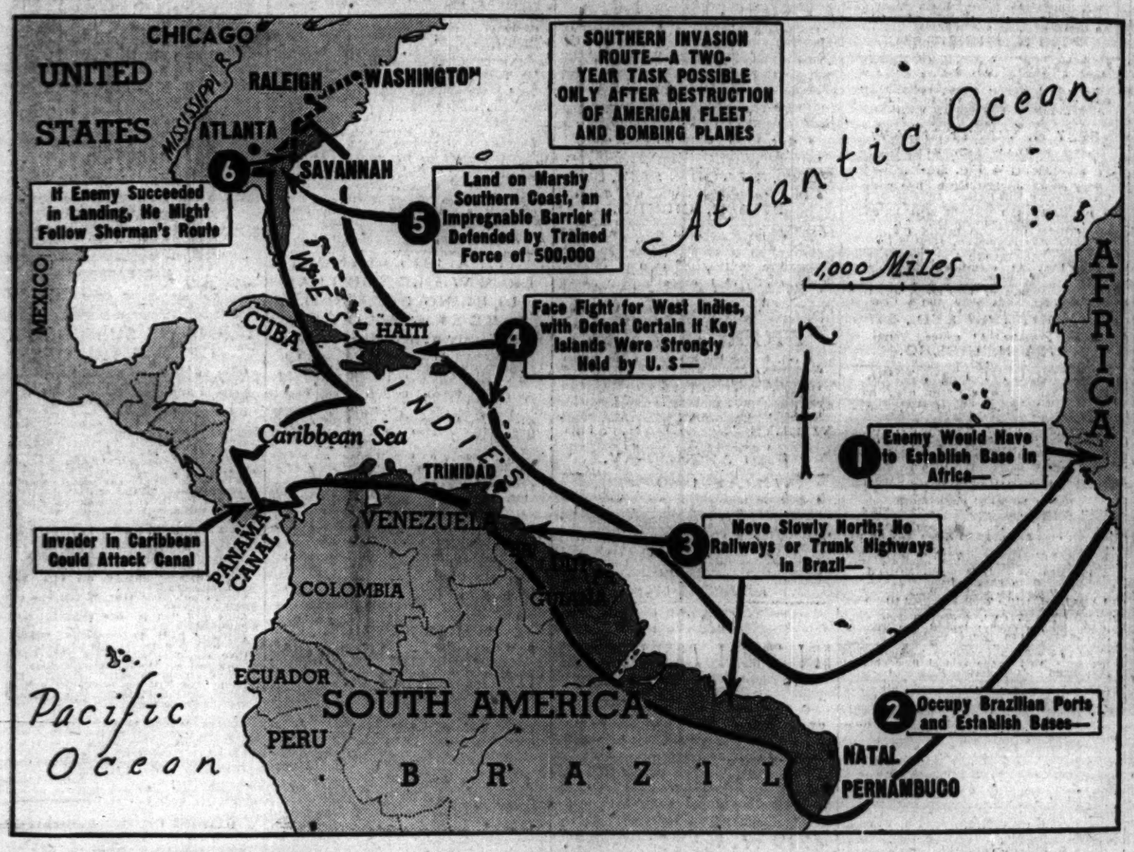
If war comes to America where will the enemy strike? These two maps illustrate the views of national defense experts questioned by The Tribune. An attempt to invade from the north, the experts agreed, could not be accomplished in the face of a well-armed and organized American-Canadian force or a force of long range bombing planes. (Story on page 1.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

French soldiers carrying shells thru communication trench to artillery piece in a western front emplacement. Note camouflage net above gun to conceal it from planes. Guns like these were reported to have stopped many Nazi tanks.



The experts believe this would be the general plan of any attempt to invade America from the south. While weather conditions would demand that the northern plan take the form of a blitzkrieg, to be completed within six months, military authorities believe the southern plan would be a more lengthy and difficult task, taking at least two years. (Story on page 1.)

A Belgian bicycle built for two is made to serve a family of four as these refugees flee before advancing German armies. The family also managed to take some spare clothing aboard, according to the caption, which passed thru the allied censorship.
